WARN OF PLOT TO COMMUNIZE U.S. ARMY, NAVY

Infiltration Told by House Group

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 29—The house military affairs committee today warned that the Communists, as part of a planned "revolution" in this country, are seeking by all available means to penetrate into the army and navy, the pillar of our democratic security.

In an interim report on its continuing investigation into communist infiltrations into the army, the committee said: "Since 1919, we have been at first faintly, later deeply, conscious of the fact that the strongest and most ruthless of the 'ists,' the Communists, have been everywhere at work within this country, supported and financed liberally from abroad, and if they are able to do so, they will penetrate within the armed forces on which we rely for security."

Seek to Stir Soldiers

The report, tracing briefly the history of the Communist party for years prior to World War II, said it circulated propaganda among soldiers of many nations, including the United States. Such propaganda, it added, was designed to agitate soldiers against any war except "one for their liberation under a soviet."

The Communist party line changed in the United States, after Hitler attacked Russia, the report continued, "because in Nazi Germany we had a common enemy." Since then, the committee said, the aim of overthrowing the United States government to set up a communist state has not been openly apparent, but, it added:

"Now, however, we are entering on a new era, in which no one can foresee the turn of events. Groups of determined Communists here have not changed their ideas and will continue, with or without outside aid, to plot such a revolution as they think will realize the Marx-Lenin dream and will stop at nothing to accomplish their aim."

Opposed to U. S. Ideals

The committee said the attempted infiltration into the United States by exponents of Communism and other "isms" contrasts sharply with the traditional American abstention from seeking to impose political idealogies on alien peoples.

"Not a single instance can be cited in all our history," the report said, "where our citizens, backed by the government . . . have intruded into a foreign land for the purpose of convincing its people that ours, and ours alone, is the ideal form of political rule, while theirs is all wrong.

"Yet, for much more than a century, this freedom-loving, forebearing, and hospitable nation has been a prey to almost every 'ism,' 'archy,' and 'ology' conceived by the fertile mind of man. It is our love of freedom and innate common sense which has tolerated these proselytizing interlopers."

Enlistment Ban Lifted

The report did not carry findings as to the extent of communist penetration into our army, which subject is still under investigation. The in-

Czechs Give Ruthenia to Soviet Russia

LONDON, June 29 (AP)—Czechoslovakia has ceded the Carpatho-Ukraine, a mountainous 4,871 square mile sector of extreme eastern Czechoslovakia, to Russia, the Moscow radio said tonight.

A treaty signed in the Kremlin by Czechoslovak Prime Minister Zdenek Fierlinger and Foreign Commissar Molotov provided, the announcement said, that the area "is by mutual agreement and the desire of its peoples returned to the Ukraine soviet socialist republic."

The sector, sometimes known as Ruthenia, formerly adjoined Poland. It was absorbed by Hungary in the 1939 breakup of Czechoslovakia. It comprised nearly one-eleventh of pre-war Czechoslovakia's 54,244 square miles.

Majority Asked Change

Czech officials in London said a majority of the sector's 725,000 inhabitants had asked to be made a part of Russia as far back as the end of the first World war.

At that time, they said, it was impossible to fulfil the request because Polish territory lay between Ruthenia and Russia. Ruthenian leaders in the United States then petitioned Czechoslovakia for incorporation of their state as an autonomous unit within the framework of the Czech republic.

Since the tentative revision of Poland's frontiers in the Yalta agreement brought the Carpatho-Ukraine into contact with Russia, the area's population—predominantly Ukrainian—has renewed its agitation for incorporation into the soviet union.

Czechoslovak sources say that the area's Jewish population of approximately 150,000 was almost wiped out during the German and Hungarian occupation.

May Switch Citizenship

The Carpatho-Ukraine treaty signed in Moscow provides that persons of Ukrainian or Russian nationality living in Slovakia may exercise the option of assuming the citizenship of the U. S. R. R. during January, 1946, in accordance with soviet law, and moving to soviet territory.

Persons of Slovak or Czech nationality living in the Carpatho-Ukraine will be permitted to take Czechoslovak citizenship during the same period.

BRITON HAILS U.S. 'FORTITUDE' IN WAR IN PACIFIC

LONDON, June 29 [Reuters]—Tribute to American "fortitude, courage, and intelligence" in the Pacific was paid by Brendan Bracken, British first lord of the admiralty, in an election speech here tonight.

He said Britons had a duty to the dominions, as well as to their own prisoners and the 8 million British subjects still under Japanese rule in helping to end the Pacific war quickly. "We owe so much to our great American ally that we can hardly express ourselves adequately, except on rare occasions such as when we had Gen. Eisenhower in London."

ST. LOUIS RAISES 885 FAT HOGS, BUT OPA FORBIDS SLAUGHTER

St. Louis, Mo., June 29 (AP)—The city of St. Louis has 885 fat hogs ready for slaughter to relieve meat shortages at city institutions, but will be permitted to butcher only 11 of the animals because of OPA regulations, Raymond Williams, acting city rationing administrator, said today.

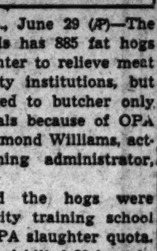
Williams said the hogs were raised at the city training school which has an OPA slaughter quota. He said the school killed 22 hogs in a two month period last year, but will be permitted to kill only 50 per cent of that number now.

He said the OPA had ruled the hogs could not be slaughtered and used at any other city institution.

This, Williams said, would force the city to sell the hogs on open market and then buy meat from commercial sources for the school, for hospitals, and other city establishments. He said the training school may be unable to get meat on the open market.

DEVERS CHOSEN AS CHIEF OF U. S. GROUND FORCES

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Gen. Devers will command the army ground forces, replacing Gen. Stilwell, the war department announced tonight.



Gen. Devers

Stilwell has taken over command of the 10th army on Okinawa, succeeding Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, who was killed in action.

Devers, a native of York, Pa., commanded the 6th army group in Europe. Formerly he was deputy supreme allied commander in the Mediterranean theater. For almost two years at the beginning of the war he was chief of the armored forces.

Devers is now in the United States.

Warns English Will Yet Carry Coals to Newcastle

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 29—Britain's serious shortage of mined coal has slowed down production in the British steel mills. An official of a big steel firm warned that "if the situation doesn't improve, we'll be importing coal from Russia or the Ruhr to keep our mills going, in spite of the fact that the one material with which we're blessed above all is coal."

3 Hang Selves at Order to Go Back to Russia

Fort Dix, N. J., June 29 [Special]—Fearful of the punishment that awaited them in their native Russia, three renegade Russians who fought for Germany hanged themselves today while 151 other Russian prisoners rioted in protest against an order that would return them to Europe.

Nine prisoners were wounded and three Americans were injured before the attempt of the Russians to fight their way to liberty was quelled by tear gas and gunfire.

Maj. George B. Paul, camp public relations officer, said the surviving prisoners were started on their way toward Russia tonight. Their return was one of the provisions of the Yalta agreement concluded by Dictator Stalin, the Late President Roosevelt, and Prime Minister Churchill.

Sullen Over Orders

Sullen ever since they were assembled here early this week, the prisoners barricaded themselves this morning after receiving an order from Lt. Col. George M. Treisch, camp commander, to prepare for their return to Europe.

When smoke was seen coming from the barracks windows, Col. Treisch ordered a tear gas attack. The prisoners then charged out of the barracks, armed with knives and clubs.

The guards opened fire and wounded seven prisoners. Two others were hurt in the roundup that followed. Two lieutenants and one private among the American personnel were injured by clubs.

Fire Damages Barracks

A barracks fire, which was started among the belongings of the prisoners, was extinguished, with only slight damage resulting.

An investigation showed three of the 154 prisoners had committed suicide by hanging themselves from the rafters. Nooses of rope and belts for 15 others were hanging from other rafters.

The nine wounded prisoners were given hospital attention and will join the main body at the scheduled embarkation point.

An Ax Falls; So Do Lots of Telephone Receivers

Willmar, Minn., June 29 (AP)—A sewer digger here came across what he thought was a tree root and hacked it thru with an ax. Forty-seven telephones in the area were out of order until the severed telephone cable could be patched up.

TAKE VENUS DE MILO BACK TO THE LOUVRE AFTER HIDING 5½ YRS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, June 29—The Venus de Milo today drove back to the Louvre in a 10 wheeled 15 ton truck, after standing out the war in an underground hideaway deep beneath the renaissance chateau of Valencay on the banks of the Loire.

Her absence of five and a half years was the first time she left her home in the world's most famous museum since she was set up on a pedestal there 125 years ago. The marble lady, who altho armless is conceded to represent perfection in feminine beauty, was spirited away in October, 1939, and stored in a secret cellar room of the chateau. There she remained until a few days ago. The inhabitants of Valencay knew numerous museum pieces were being kept in the chateau, but were not aware that the Venus was among them, and the Germans never learned where the coveted art treasure was stored.

The Venus de Milo, bought by the French for $160 in 1820, joins two other illustrious ladies, Leonardo da Vinci's Mona Lisa, and the headless Winged Victory of Samothrace, in the great exhibition rooms of the Louvre, which will reopen to the public July 10.

357,686 YANKS IN MEDITERRANEAN TO GO TO PACIFIC

CASERTA, Italy, June 29 (AP)—United States Mediterranean headquarters announced today that 357,686 American soldiers in the Mediterranean theater will be redeployed to the Pacific within the next nine months. There were 508,202 in the theater when the war in Italy ended.

Eighty-seven per cent of the redeployed troops will be sent by way of the United States.

In New York, Col. Edward M. Lastayo, over-all director of army transportation in the Mediterranean area, who arrived aboard the S. S. Darien after 37 months overseas, said that troops now were moving out of Italian ports at the rate of 30,000 monthly.

Tornado Lifts War Bond and Carries It 50 Miles

Prophetstown, Ill., June 29 [Special]—When the tornado struck Wednesday night and wiped out Claude Newlon's home and filling station, Newlon had a $25 war bond on a table in his home. This morning Newlon was notified by police at Dixon, 50 miles away, that a woman had found his bond in a street in Dixon.

5 DAY ADVANCE ON PASSENGER SPACE DECREED

4,000 Troops Called to Work on Lines

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Faced with the possibility of a breakdown in transportation as the nation's armed might swings toward Japan, the government today:

1. Decreed that reservations on passenger trains may be obtained no more than five days in advance, instead of the present 30 day limit.

2. Ordered 4,000 soldiers furloughed for 30 days' work on the railroads to keep troops and supplies rolling to the Pacific.

Blow to Vacation Plans

The five day limit, effective at midnight tonight, may play hob with many a vacation plan. Unable to buy Pullman reservations or reserved seats in chair cars more than five days in advance, departing vacationers will not be sure that they can return on time by rail.

The step was part of a drive to discourage trips considered unessential. Director J. Monroe Johnson of the office of defense transportation, which issued the order, said it was taken to "assure the maximum utilization of the limited amount of space now available to civilians as a result of the greatly increased demand for military transportation."

Officials explained that another purpose of the order is to make it easier for furloughed soldiers to obtain train space. Under the 30 day limit, it was explained, it was possible for vacationers and other civilians to tie up much of the available space.

Western Roads Get Help

However, reservations already made are not canceled by the order.

Most of the furloughed soldiers, all experienced railroaders, will be assigned to transcontinental lines west of Chicago which are carrying the heaviest loads and are the hardest pressed for workers.

The soldiers are now being "screened" for the assignment and will begin reporting on the job next week. They will receive both army pay and regular railroad wages for their work as brakemen, boilermakers, locomotive firemen, machinists, and similar jobs. All will be over 26 years of age and the majority will be past 30.

The furloughs were authorized as a result of an "urgent" request from the railroads, Undersecretary of War Patterson said, adding that the army had responded reluctantly and only because "there is no other way to maintain the speedy flow of traffic essential to the redeployment of our forces."

Other Furloughs All Canceled

"The furloughing of troops to fill civilian jobs," Patterson said in a statement, "is not an efficient way to fight a war and we had hoped that the diminution of our production needs and the partial demobilization of our army after the defeat of Germany would eliminate any further need for such furloughs."

He noted that furloughs previously given to soldiers to work in war plants have now been canceled and expressed hope that the railroad furloughs will be the last that industry will need.

The carriers, rail unions, and government agencies already have started a big program of recruiting workers for the rail lines and the army hopes that the return of discharged soldiers who were former railroaders will help further to ease the labor crisis.

Won't Drown Children, Captain's House Ad Says

Monticello, Ark., June 29 (AP)—Capt. William H. Gitman wants living quarters, but not badly enough to make sacrifices. His ad in a local paper read: "Wanted — Furnished house, apartment, barn, or foxhole. Can be from four to 21 rooms in size. Have six months old twin boys and small five year old dog. Refuse to drown children or allow dog to be ground for hamburger in order to obtain home."

Trapped Trio Rescued by Daring Feat

HOLLANDIA, New Guinea, June 28—[Delayed]—A WAC and two air corps men were snatched out of New Guinea's hidden valley of "Shangri-La" today in a dramatic glider borne rescue 47 days after they were marooned by a plane crash.

Two of 11 paratroopers who had served as an escort for the crash survivors were also removed in the glider. The remaining nine will be taken out in two other snatches, perhaps tomorrow. Their immediate rescue was balked by rain just as the tow plane was preparing to take off on its second flight.

WAC Corp. Margaret Hastings, Oswego, N. Y., said, "It was the happiest moment of my life when I felt the glider rise into the air." Tanned and tousel haired, but self-possessed, she said that she wanted a shower and a permanent first of all.

Officer Begs for Razor

Another survivor, Lt. John McCollom, Trenton, Mo., sought a razor to remove his long, blond beard. Then he sat down to have his first hair cut in more than six weeks. T/Sgt. Kenneth Decker, Kelso, Wash., who carries a six inch scar on the right side of his head as a memento of the crash in which 20 air corps men and WACs were killed, also awaited a haircut.

After weeks of delays the rescue took place with startling speed. At 7:40 a. m. the tow plane and glider left the air strip at Hollandia for the valley 130 miles away, where a level stretch had been cleared to receive the glider. At 9:09 a. m. the glider, piloted by Capt. George R. Allen, Salem, Ore., and Lt. Henry E. Palmer, Baton Rouge, La., made a perfect landing on the strip.

Feared Another Delay

Overhead, Col. Ray T. Elsmore, Menlo Park, Cal., cruised in his B-25 directing operations. It looked like another day's delay when light clouds like puffs of cigar smoke began drifting across the valley. Elsmore ordered all possible speed.

The improvised strip, marked off with white panels and red cargo parachutes, was the scene of furious activity. At 9:49 the clouds had built up to 7,000 feet, but the glider already was loaded and the C-47 tow plane was roaring toward the snatching rig. A moment later the glider was air borne, to land at Hollandia one hour and 20 minutes later.

The glider and the tow plane, the crew of which consisted of Maj. William Samuels, Oakland, Cal.; Capt. William McKenzie, La Crosse, Wis.; Sgt. Donald Gellasch, Detroit,

B-29S RAID HUGE JAP OIL REFINERY ON HONSHU ISLAND

GUAM, June 30 [Saturday]—American Super Forts pounded the big Kudamatsu oil refining plant near Tokuyama on the Japanese home island of Honshu last night in the fourth air attack on Nippon within a week.

Nearly 50 B-29s struck the refinery of the Nippon Oil company with high explosive bombs just before midnight. The plant is on the southwestern Honshu coast where other refineries were seriously damaged in first raids on Japan's oil industry May 10.

The attack last night followed Friday's pre-dawn assaults by about 500 Super Forts, which left fires burning at Japan's great naval base and shipbuilding city of Sasebo and three other cities on Kyushu and Honshu islands. The planes hit the four cities with more than 3,000 tons of fire bombs.

YANKS OCCUPY ISLE 50 MILES PAST OKINAWA

Take Kume; Find No Enemy Troops

GUAM, June 30 [Saturday]—(AP)—American patrols have occupied all of little Kume Island without resistance, Adm. Nimitz announced today—extending the American invasion springboard another 50 miles westward and adding possible airstrip sites and small-craft port facilities.

Tokyo radio, in reporting the landings last Tuesday, asserted "heavy fighting" was in progress, but today's bulletin said "no enemy troops were encountered." There had been no confirmation of the American landings until today.

Seven Miles Long

Kume, within 300 miles of Formosa and 370 from Kyushu, is about seven miles long and three miles wide at its broadest point. Saddle-shaped, the center is flat, with a 1,010 foot peak in the north and a 961 foot height in the south.

About three-fourths of the area is forested. Deep channels pierce the protective coral reef at several points and small finger piers and wharves can accommodate small steamers.

Raise Sugar Cane

Peace time pursuits of the 13,414 civilian inhabitants included raising sugar cane, sweet potatoes, rice and other crops, weaving pongee and mats and operating sugar mills.

Kume is only 32 miles west of the Kerama Islands, the first of the Okinawa group invaded by the Americans.

SET OIL PLANTS AFIRE

MANILA, June 30 [Saturday]—(AP)—The once-great Japanese oil cracking plants and refinery center at Balikpapan on Borneo's southeast coast were being consumed by flames today from 281 additional tons of bombs dropped by airmen of the American far eastern air force.

Other bombers of those forces hit Kindari and Makassar airdromes, in the southern Celebes across the Makassar straits from Balikpapan. Light allied naval units shot up the Borneo northwest coastal area at night.

MacArthur's war bulletin gave no further word concerning American warships which he disclosed yesterday were on the prowl in Makassar straits, but attention focused on Japanese reports that Balikpapan had been under naval bombardment for ten days past.

The Japanese also claimed that allied landing attempts at Balikpapan were repulsed and that allied minesweepers were busy clearing the way for a new invasion move.

[A Tokyo radio report heard in London yesterday said Japanese planes had sunk a large cruiser of the "Cleveland" class, three other cruisers and one destroyer June 25 off Balikpapan.]

Aussies Take Town

MacArthur's bulletin announced that ashore on British North Borneo Australian 9th division troops completed capture of Beaufort, on the narrow gauge railway to the Japanese base of Jesselton, and that the Australians controled 135 miles of the wild north coast from Beaufort southwest to the Miri oil field area.

In the Philippines, MacArthur announced continuing extensive patrols in Luzon's Cagayan valley.

The Luzon guerrillas ambushed one Japanese tank and killed its crew in the mountains east of Iguig, and the United States 6th infantry division advanced three-quarters of a mile toward the Japanese base of Kiangan. Other guerrilla units took Kayan, a village on the slopes of the high Cordilleras. Still other guerrillas were moving over a mountain trail in Ilocos province toward Bontoc, last important Japanese center in the area.

On the southeastern Philippine island of Mindanao mopping up operations were conducted in recently freed territory.

CHARTER CALLED SOLE PEACE HOPE BY VANDENBERG

He Fights for Plans Tho It Is 'Imperfect'

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 29—Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] told the senate today he was aware that the San Francisco peace charter has imperfections but said he will fight for its ratification because he believed the document gives the world a chance to find peace with justice.

Sen. Vandenberg

Vandenberg's address followed by 24 hours an appeal from Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the foreign relations committee, for early senate ratification of the charter. Both senators were delegates at the San Francisco conference at which the charter was drafted.

The senate plans to move quickly in its consideration of the charter. Tomorrow Connally's committee will meet to plan public hearings. On Monday, President Truman will formally present the charter to the senate. Hearings are expected to open July 9.

Agree to Speed Action

Senate Republicans at a caucus following Vandenberg's speech argeed that the charter should have "expeditious attention" in the senate, Vandenberg told reporters. He said the consensus of the meeting was that the charter's ratification should be "facilitated as much as is consistent with a reasonable opportunity for full presentation."

Sen. Taft [R., O.] said there was strong sentiment in the meeting that if the hearings on the charter begin July 9, the senate should defer action on other major legislation, including the Bretton Woods international monetary agreements, so that senators can give the charter their full attention.

Taft is reported preparing a reservation to the charter which would define the powers and duties of the American delegate to the world organization. President Truman has announced he will appoint former State Secretary Stettinius to the post.

He Concedes Imperfections

"I have signed the charter," Vandenberg told the senate, "with no illusions regarding its imperfections and with no pretensions that it guarantees its own benign aims; but with no doubts that it proposes an experiment which must be bravely undertaken in behalf of peace with justice in a better, happier, and safer world.

"I shall support ratification with all the resources at my command. I shall do this in the deep conviction that the alternative is physical and moral chaos in many weary places of the earth. . . . Peace must not be cheated out of its only collective chance."

Thruout his speech, Vandenberg reiterated that he had faith in the eventual success of the charter.

Recalls Franklin's Faith

At one point, he compared his faith in the future with that expressed by Benjamin Franklin following adoption of the American Constitution in 1787.

"Franklin never had cause to regret his faith," Vandenberg said. "In kindred faith I am prepared to proceed with this great adventure. . . . In the event of [the charter's] unexpected failure, I should prefer to have been associated with its hopeful trial than with a refusal to permit it to prove its expected success. . . .

"Within the framework of the charter, thru its refinement in the light of experience, the future can overtake our errors. But there will be no future for it unless we make this start. . . . I prefer this chance to no chance at all."

Criticisms Are Anticipated

Like Connally, Vandenberg attempted to answer in advance the criticisms of the charter which are expected to be raised in the forthcoming senate debate. He particularly denied the charter raised any threat to American sovereignty.

"In my view," Vandenberg asserted, "we sacrifice none of our essential American sovereignty and none of our essential American rights when, exercising intelligent self-interest, we join ourselves in this international enterprise to seek a peace and a security which are as essential to our welfare as the air we breathe. . . .

"In a word, we have not created a super-state. We have not organized a world government. We have not hauled down the Stars and Stripes from the dome of the capitol. We have simply agreed to cooperate effectively with 49 other sovereign states in the mutual pursuit of peace and security."

Opposed to Delay

Without mentioning names, Vandenberg replied to suggestions publicly made by Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] that charter ratification should await the signing of the peace treaty. The Michigan senator asserted the charter's provision for peaceful settlement of disputes made such action unnecessary.

Vandenberg defended the veto formula in the charter—which allows any one of the Big Five powers to veto action by the proposed world security council—by saying it was a realistic reflection of the world today.

"I hasten to assert," Vandenberg said, "that so far as force is concerned, the world is at the mercy of Russia, Britain, and the United States regardless of whether we form this league or not. Those happen to be the facts of life.

"But I submit the world is even more at their mercy without the San Francisco Charter than with it.

"With the charter, there is at least the restraint of a peaceful contract, for whatever that may be worth, and the grim assurance that the aggressor who breaks this contract will stand in naked infamy before the embattled conscience of an outraged world."

Vandenberg said he would "deeply regret" any delay in the senate in considering the charter but he would not urge "precipitous haste" in its ratification.

Newlyweds Aid Red Cross Drive

Mrs. Anne Stuart Batchelder serving doughnuts to husband, Lt. Col. Clifton B. Batchelder, in Red Cross headquarters yesterday.

Workers Needed

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Clifton B. Batchelder, who were married a month ago at Bad Nauheim, Germany, where Mrs. Batchelder, the former Anne Stuart, 25, of 528 Mayflower rd., Lake Forest, served the colonel's tank battalion with coffee and doughnuts from a Red Cross clubmobile, said yesterday that more Red Cross workers are needed for overseas duty.

The colonel and his wife made their appeal for more workers at Red Cross headquarters, 529 S. Wabash av. Red Cross officials said that more than 750 are needed from the Chicago area alone. Women 23 to 36 are eligible, men aged 30 to 45.

Dennis Clayton of St. Louis, Mo., a Red Cross field director, who has just returned from 18 months in Burma, added his plea for more workers. He said they are sorely needed in the Pacific theater of war. Col. Batchelder's home is in Somerville, Miss.

MAJ. RADOVICH GETS 3 YEARS IN BRIBE CASE

'Sacrificed' to Protect Others, Charge

Mitchel Field, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—Maj. Walter V. Radovich, thrice decorated combat flyer was convicted today by court martial of charges that he accepted $7,000 to keep two enlisted men from being sent overseas. He was sentenced to be dismissed from the service and to three years imprisonment.

The 24 year old Los Angeles, Cal., officer, credited with shooting down four Japanese planes, showed no emotion when the verdict was returned after three days of a general court martial.

No Defense Witnesses

Radovich's counsel, former Judge Advocate Gen. Samuel Ansell, had declined to call any defense witnesses on the ground that he could not offer a defense unless certain "secret and confidential" records were made available. He said Radovich was being "sacrificed" to protect other officers.

Maj. Harry V. Osborne Jr., the prosecutor, said he had obtained permission from "higher authorities" in Washington, D. C., to produce some records of the Radovich case, but that the defense could not be permitted to examine others.

Ansell, summing up, declared that important evidence "derogatory to other officers" was withheld.

Higher-Ups Linked to Case

Earlier, Ansell said, it was "in the interest of" Maj. Gen. Frank O'D. Hunter, commanding general of the 1st air force, "or some one superior to him" that Radovich should confess.

Samuel and Elias Bayer, New York thread manufacturers, purportedly gave Radovich the money for transferring Pvt. Martin B. Bayer and Tech. 5th Grade Melvin Usdam out of units that were headed overseas. Both are nephews of Elias Bayer, and the private involved is the son of Samuel Bayer. The brothers are under federal indictment on bribery charges. Both soldiers are now out of the country.

REPORT CHARTER BACKED BY 67 U. S. SENATORS

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Smooth senate sailing for the allied nations charter was assured today with 63 senators on the line for ratification and five others who said they probably would vote for it.

The total of 67 is three more than a flat two-thirds of the entire membership. Ratification requires approval of two-thirds of those present and voting.

Rounding out an Associated Press poll of senators on the question: "Will you vote for United States adherence to the united nations charter, barring unforeseen developments?", eight more members said they would:

Bankhead [D., Ala.], Eastland [D., Miss.], Hayden [D., Ariz.], La Follette [Prog., Wis.], Murray [D., Mont.], Walsh [D., Mass.], Wherry [R., Neb.], and Gurney [R., S. D.]. Gurney previously had been listed "probably yes."

In addition, Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] announced he probably would vote for the document.

REDS' HAND SEEN IN ARMENIANS' PLEA TO PARLEY

BY CLAY GOWRAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 27 [Delayed]—An incident at the San Francisco conference passed virtually unnoticed on May 9 amid the turmoil attending the birth of the charter.

Few paid any attention to a memorandum presented that day by the Armenian national committee which stated that the Armenians in Turkey wish to migrate to Russia to avoid eventual extermination by the Turks.

When a report of the memorandum reached Turkey it provoked interest. Leading Armenians denounced the committee's action, and protested they are satisfied here. The president of the Armenian community council said leading elements here never heard of the national committee going to America. Then the whole thing was forgotten by all but the most astute observers in Istanbul.

See Russia's Hand

Since then these observers, trained by years of experience, have found that the guiding force behind this Armenian plea is the political hand of Russia. Observers say Russia has brought up the Armenian question to supply it with a cause for promoting a communist Turkish government.

There are 80,000 Armenians in Turkey today, all but 10,000 or so residing in Istanbul. An American who has spent years here and knows the Armenians well, said recently, "It's certain that Armenian revolutionary societies have been used and exploited by Russian and other political agencies to foment trouble between the Turkish government and its non-Moslem subjects. Yet I'm convinced such activities have involved a very small number of individuals. Larger tragedies have grown out of the fact that such persons have not been dealt with as individuals, and rather that an entire civilian population has been lumped in with the trouble makers."

"Grudge Against World"

A reliable neutral observer has given this analysis of what he has been able to learn of Russia's highly secret campaign to use the Armenians in order to cause dissension in Turkey:

"The Armenian revolutionaries have a grudge against the world, and feel they owe no allegiance to any country, including that which shelters them. During the war many of them became agents for the axis powers, but this ended with Germany's surrender.

"Now comes the opportunity for them to turn to Moscow, at the moment when they believe Russia has detached herself somewhat from the British and Americans. Guided by Russia, they addressed themselves to the San Francisco conference, asking for a transfer of the Armenian population in Turkey to soviet territory.

Play Double Game

"The Armenian revolutionaries are playing a smart double game. If Russia emerges victorious from her political campaign to tumble over the present Turkish government and get control of the straits, the Armenians feel they will be rewarded by her.

"If, however, the soviets are forced by other nations to give up these dreams, the Armenians will try to make England and the United States forget their present preference for the soviets, which they exhibit openly. They are counting on the Armenians in America and England to act as intermediaries to plead their cause."

HULL RETURNS FROM HOSPITAL TO SIGN CHARTER

Document, in Safe, Is Flown to Capital

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Ailing Cordell Hull left his hospital room today to affix his signature to the united nations charter, of which he has often been called the father.

The 73 year old former state secretary returned to the state department, over which he so long presided, sat down in his former conference seat on the second floor, and signed with a firm hand.

The document had been flown here from San Francisco to receive his signature as a member of the American delegation at the conference.

Hull, whom illness has confined to the naval hospital at Bethesda, Mo., since he resigned as secretary last October, appeared in fairly good health, altho he walked slowly.

He Signs Two Copies

He signed first the original copy of the charter, printed in Chinese, French, English, Russian, and Spanish, using his own pen to write his name immediately below the signature of former State Secretary Stettinius, who acted as chairman at the conference and led the American delegation.

Hull then signed a certified copy, with photographs of the other signatures, which will be sent to the senate for ratification.

Hull also signed the original and certified copy of the interim agreement.

Alger Hiss, state department official who acted as secretary to the conference, arrived this morning by plane with the documents.

He said they were taken to the San Francisco airport last night under guard, and flown here in a 75 pound fireproof safe so that if anything happened to the plane the charter would be preserved.

Parachute on Safe

The safe was equipped with a parachute and bore a label which directed any finder not to attempt to open it but to send it to the department of state at once.

Mrs. Hull, Acting Secretary Grew, H. Freeman Matthews of the European division and others who formerly worked closely with Mr. Hull witnessed the signing.

2 PARTY FOREIGN POLICY CALLED TRUMAN'S HOPE

BY JOSEPH HEARST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Kansas City, Mo., June 29—President Truman wants to develop an American foreign policy that will unite both parties behind it, Alf M. Landon, Republican Presidential nominee in 1936, said today after an hour's conference with the President.

"The President said he wanted both parties united behind this policy so that it would provide a continuity in our foreign relations regardless of any differences on domestic problems or changes of administration over a long period of years," Landon told reporters when he came out of the President's quarters in the penthouse of the Hotel Muehlebach here.

Calls Idea "Constructive"

Landon said he thinks such a united front on foreign policy would be "very, very constructive and is a necessary thing to do."

Landon said he and Mr. Truman also discussed the food situation and flood control plans.

"I told the President that I don't think the food problem was as much a question of dollars and cents as it is a question of a state of mind," the former Kansas governor said. "Farm families have been working their heads off to produce, only to see their crops rot on the ground because of the lack of freight cars while they are pestered by whippersnappers at OPA and while there is a black market going on in farm machinery."

Landon said Mr. Truman agreed with this view generally altho the President told him that he "didn't know about the black market."

Landon said he believed the cure for the nation's state of mind on the food problem is in "recognizing that we have a man in the White House who understands and appreciates the farm situation."

Country "Relaxed" Under Truman

"How does the country look on the President?" he was asked.

"Judgment is suspended," Landon said, smiling. He added that he believed the nation is "relaxed and cool" under the new President.

Earlier the President had put in another busy day. It wasn't known how early he arose, but Ross told reporters that his naval aid, Capt. John K. Vardaman, found him working over papers at his home at 7:30 a. m. Ross said the President was putting the finishing touches to the message he will send to congress Monday with the charter of the world security organization. The message will take only about 5 minutes to read. Mr. Truman has not decided whether to deliver it in person.

Ross said the President also will send his nomination for secretary of state to the senate Monday.

Congratulates MacArthur

Between meeting scores of friends and receiving many delegations at his office in the Federal building here, Mr. Truman cabled his congratulations to Gen. MacArthur, "For the successful conclusion of the Luzon campaign with the complete defeat of the enemy."

"You have swept them from the Philippines and redeemed the promise of the American people to the loyal Filipino people," he said. "Americans are happy that the victory has been won with the lowest possible loss in lives.

"I am confident that the powerful base we are now fashioning in the Philippines will play its full part in the final knockout blow against Japan and restore the world to peace, freedom, and sanity."

PHILLIPS RESIGNS AS ASSISTANT IN STATE DEPARTMENT

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Resignation of William Phillips as special assistant to the secretary of state was announced today by Acting Secretary Grew. The resignation became effective yesterday.

William Phillips

Phillips was reported in the senate last year to have incurred British antagonism while serving as President Roosevelt's personal envoy to India because of a free-India attitude. At that time, Sen. Chandler [D., Ky.] released what he described as a British telegram from New Delhi to London saying Phillips was unwelcome in India. Both the state department and British Ambassador Halifax denied he was persona non grata in India because of his views.

In a prepared statement today, Grew said he and Phillips had had 40 years of close friendship in public service and that "I have never known a more able or devoted servant of our country's foreign affairs."

KELLY PROPOSES UNITED NATIONS SEAT IN CHICAGO

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that Chicago is the logical site for the permanent headquarters of the united nations organization, and announced he would campaign for its selection as soon as President Truman names a successor to former Secretary of State Stettinius.

The mayor, who departed for Washington, D. C., late yesterday to attend induction ceremonies for Robert Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic national committee, as postmaster general, cited Chicago's geographical, industrial, and cultural qualifications.

Furthermore, he said, selection of Chicago would symbolize the essential unity of peoples of all nations since Chicago, more than any other city in the world, is a human melting pot.

ILLICIT LOVE HELD FACTOR IN SAILOR'S KILLING

Coroner Gives Findings Against Mrs. Stevens

Bridgeport, Conn., June 29 [Special]—A factor in the fatal shooting of a sailor by 24 year old Mrs. Imogene Stevens was an illicit love affair between Mrs. Stevens and Charles Milton, her next door neighbor, Coroner Theodore E. Steiber reported today in submitting his findings in the slaying to prosecuting officials.

Steiber found Mrs. Stevens criminally responsible for the death of Albert Kovacs, 19, a submarine sailor, whom she shot in the Milton home in New Canaan last Saturday night. He said her act was committed in an "aura of sex recrimination, beer, and window smashing reprisals."

Arraignment Today

Prosecutor Edmund L. Morrison said that Mrs. Stevens, who is being held in the Fairfield county jail here in default of $50,000 bail, would be arraigned tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Municipal court at New Canaan on a manslaughter charge.

Referring to the illicit love affair, the coroner's report said:

"From the statements made by Mr. Milton, Mrs. Milton, and Mrs. Stevens to the police, it would appear that an illicit love affair had existed between Mrs. Stevens and Mr. Milton, who were immediate neighbors, which caused the Milton home to be broken up for a number of months.

"Later on Mrs. Milton returned to her home as a next door neighbor to Mrs. Stevens and on the surface, at least, all was forgiven by all the parties."

Preceding the shooting, the coroner reported, Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Milton went to a tavern and became drunk. Later the two women and Mr. Milton consumed more liquor at the Stevens home.

Women's Tempers Rise

"While the latter party was in progress," the coroner related, "the subject of Mr. Milton's relations with Mrs. Stevens came up for discussion . . . and the feeling between Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Milton became so intense that Mrs. Milton showed her temper . . . by taking an ice pick and driving it thru the screen and the window of Mrs. Stevens' house as she was passing the front window to go home.

"In reprisal, Mrs. Stevens dashed out of her house and threw a beer glass thru the living room window of Mrs. Milton's house. . . . That the injuries apparent on the body of Mrs. Stevens were inflicted by Mrs. Milton is more than a probability."

The coroner said that Mr. Milton took his wife for a walk in an attempt to sober her up. Shortly afterwards Al Kovacs and his brother, James, 25, came to the Milton home to visit Miss Faith Coombs, who looked after the three Milton children.

Miss Coombs had gone out with three other young people. Albert went to a refrigerator and got a bottle of beer and then went into the living room.

Mrs. Stevens Enters

Meanwhile Mrs. Stevens went to the Milton house with a gun in her hand, the coroner said, "taking it upon herself to act as a protector of her neighbor's home."

When Al Kovacs refused to leave, the coroner continued, Mrs. Stevens fired at him, hitting him in the chest, the right thigh, and the upper left arm. The coroner said that both Mrs. Stevens and Kovacs were "decidedly under the influence of liquor," but added that "the intoxicated condition of Mrs. Stevens does not absolve her from a charge of manslaughter."

David Goldstein, counsel for Mrs. Stevens, issued a statement saying no inference should be drawn from the coroner's finding, as the facts will be disclosed only "after a complete trial." Mrs. Stevens did not testify at the inquest that formed the basis for Coroner Steiber's report.

Mrs. Stevens was a divorcee and the mother of a 6 year old daughter when she married Maj. G. Ralsey Stevens III. in 1943. Her husband was with the paratroops in Germany at the time of the shooting.

STATE TO QUIZ DRAFT EVADER ON WIFE'S DEATH

Edward Garswick, 35, cab driver, long sought for questioning about the murder of his wife, Irene, four years ago, was sentenced yesterday in federal District court to two years in prison as a draft evader. Mrs. Garswick was strangled in their flat at 941 Windsor av.

Judge Elwyn R. Shaw said he would permit the state's attorney's office to question Garswick about the murder. Garswick fled after his wife was found dead and remained a fugitive until his arrest last April in California.

Garwick told the court he left Chicago because of his drinking and gambling. He would not discuss his wife's death.

DENIES DEMOCRATS PAID COLLIER'S FOR LIE ABOUT TRIBUNE

Washington, D. C., June 29 [Special]—Postmaster General Hannegan, who is also chairman of the Democratic National committee, said today it was not the committee that paid Collier's magazine to publish an article about Chicago newspapers in its June 30 issue.

The daily net paid circulation of THE TRIBUNE rose from 985,000 in April to over 1 million in May.

PEPPER EXPECTS U. S. TO RATIFY PEACE CHARTER

Sen. Pepper [D., Fla.] predicted last night that the United States senate will ratify the San Francisco world peace charter. He spoke before 2,300 persons in Orchestra hall. The meeting, sponsored by the Independent Voters of Illinois, was described as the first rally of citizens in support of the charter.

"The signing by the American delegation of the charter was a moral commitment that we would ratify the charter," the Florida senator said. "The senate cannot again fail mankind." Pepper said that 90 per cent of the people favor it. He scoffed at fears of Russia, saying that no nation that has suffered as Russia has wants more war.

Quincy Wright, professor of international law at the University of Chicago, explained the mechanisms of the charter. He said force cannot be used against the big powers.

COUPLE DROWNS WHEN SAILBOAT UPSETS IN LAKE

The bodies of Jean Titus, 22, former Northwestern university student, and Robert Hobart, 23, the son of Dr. Marcus H. Hobart of Evanston, were recovered yesterday from Lake Michigan near the capsized sail boat in which they left Wilmette harbor Thursday night.

Robert Hobart

The boat, an 18 foot Condor type, apparently had been overturned by a squall. The victims had put on life preservers and tied the ends of a 28 foot mooring line around their waists. This suggested that Hobart had set out to tow his companion the five miles to shore. Their bodies were found three-quarters of a mile from the boat.

Miss Titus was the daughter of Raymond E., a vice president of General Finance corporation. She had been living in the home of her uncle, Lyle A. Titus, also a vice president of General Finance corporation at 9520 Monticello av., Skokie.

Boat Regarded as Safe

Young Hobart, a graduate of Dartmouth college, was on leave from navy V-12 training. His father is a staff surgeon at Evanston and County hospitals. The family home is at 621 Foster st., Evanston.

Hobart and Miss Titus met last Saturday at a wedding reception. He called on her Thursday night and suggested taking a sail. They left Skokie at 9:30 p. m.

Dr. Hobart started a search by calling at the Wilmette coast guard station yesterday morning. He said at the time he was not greatly alarmed because Robert was an experienced sailor and the boat was regarded as safe.

Army Plane Locates Boat

Chief Boatswain's Mate Paul Somerville sent out a speed boat, ordered out a crash boat, and called on army flyers at the airport and the civil air patrol for help. A plane piloted by Maj. Arnold Burgin, commanding the Chicago flight service center at the city field, located the overturned sailboat east of Grosse Point lighthouse.

Somerville and Boatswain's Mate Howard Knudsen bailed the boat and righted it. The jib had been lowered and the main sail was partly furled.

Somerville observed the bodies, floating close together. Miss Titus wore two preservers, one a jacket and one a cushion type, and Hobart had one cushion.

LONDON DECREE IS GRANTED WIFE OF DAVID BEATTY

Countess Charges Him with Adultery

LONDON, June 29 (AP)—Countess Beatty received a divorce today from Earl [David Field] Beatty on grounds of adultery.

The 40 year old earl, whose mother was the only daughter of Marshall Field Sr., of Chicago, did not contest the divorce. The countess was granted a decree nisi with costs.

The countess was a widow with two children when she married the earl in 1937. She said in her petition that she was unhappy at times because of other women.

Countess Drove Ambulance

After the war started, she said her naval officer husband was attached to a shore station, and that she served in France driving an ambulance until the retreat from Dunkerque.

The countess said she went to the United States in 1940 and on returning late the next year found a bundle of letters in her apartment addressed to her husband and signed "Tuckie." She alleged that these letters made it clear that the earl had committed adultery.

"She saw her husband and there was a rather tearful scene," the petition said, "she forgave him."

Couple Childless

The countess said she later went to North Africa and on returning to England found a woman's lipstick stained handkerchief in her apartment. She said her husband later admitted associating with a woman named Dorothy Bragg.

The countess and earl had no children.

TRUMAN'S PLAN FOR SUCCESSOR VOTED IN HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 29—The house today adopted legislation urged by President Truman making the speaker of the house next in line after the Vice President for succession to the Presidency.

The bill, passed by voice vote over objections by a small Republican minority that it is unconstitutional, now goes to the senate. The senate, however, is expected to postpone consideration of the measure until fall.

Immediately after today's house passage, members on both sides of the chamber jumped to their feet and gave a spontaneous ovation to Speaker Rayburn [D., Tex.] as their choice for President, next to Mr. Truman.

Morgenthau Now in Line

Under the present succession law, passed by congress in 1886, the Presidency would pass, upon the death or resignation of both President and Vice President, to the secretary of state, or if there were none, to the treasury secretary. With the recent resignation of secretary Stettinius, Mr. Morgenthau, head of the treasury, is at the moment thus next in line for President, if Mr. Truman should die or resign.

The house bill, which was whipped thru the chamber only four days after it was introduced, provides that if the nation is left without a President or Vice President, the Presidency shall fall to the house speaker.

If there is no speaker, or the speaker does not qualify for the highest office, the president pro tem of the senate would serve as chief executive until the election of a qualified speaker. If there is no president pro tem, then the secretary of state, with other cabinet members following, would act as President, but only until a qualified speaker is chosen.

Bar Special Election

This procedure follows the recommendations of President Truman. The house, however, struck from the bill a section providing that a special election for President be held at the time of the "off-year" congressional elections, if the house speaker succeeds to office more than 90 days before such elections. Such a provision was advocated by Truman.

Congressional elections are held every two years, while Presidents are chosen every four years. The proposal would thus have limited the speaker's term as President to two years or less.

This proviso was stricken on motion by Rep. Robison [R., Ky.], who argued 90 days was too short a notice for a Presidential election.

Rep. Hancock [R., N. Y.], ranking minority member of the judiciary committee, contended the entire bill was unconstitutional. He said the Constitution gives congress power to determine what "officer" shall succeed to the Presidency, and said court decisions have held that members of congress are not "officers" of the federal government.

A motion by Hancock to recommit the bill to the judiciary group was defeated, 167 to 32.

AKRON STRIKERS TOLD THEY PERIL YANKS IN PACIFIC

Davis Says Stoppage Is Impeding War

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—The war and navy departments said tonight that unless the CIO rubber workers strike at Akron, O., is called off the inevitable result will be to "condemn countless American soldiers, sailors, and flyers to death."

In an appeal to the approximately 17,000 workers in the five plants of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company to go back to work, the departments also declared that the strike, under way since June 17, is providing the Japanese "with the only hope they now have of resting and recovering" from the heavy blows which have been dealt them.

Earlier in the day the government had ordered cancellation of any occupational draft deferments the strikers may hold.

Perils Air Offensive

Over the signatures of Acting War Secretary Patterson and Assitant Navy Secretary H. Struve Hensel, the two departments issued an appeal to the workers to resume production.

"Unless these workers return to their jobs at once," the appeal said, "we shall have to reduce the force of our aerial offensive against the Japanese home islands and postpone military operations essential to the . . . defeat of Japan."

The strike, which began June 17, resulted from a breakdown in negotiations over 32 grievances. The union, the United Rubber Workers of America, local No. 2, has so far declined to obey a war labor board order to return to work.

The military appeal to the strikers said that curtailment of production at Goodyear had resulted in tying up planes bound for the Pacific because of the shortage of tires, brake materials, and self-sealing gas tanks.

The departments emphasized that the Akron plants are making a variety of rubber products which cannot be obtained elsewhere.

The order for cancellation of occupational deferments was issued by Economic Stabilization Director William H. Davis to selective service.

Union Leader Replies

Akron, O., June 29 (AP)—Replying to official appeals to end the strike at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Local Union President C. V. Wheeler said tonight:

"I wonder how many wires they [the army and navy] have sent to the Goodyear company. How much longer is the government going to continue to drive, threaten, and turn the heat on the rubber workers. The government hasn't said a word to Goodyear about getting together with us to settle our grievances."

The union involved in the strike has argued that the company had not abided by war labor board rulings and that it had also encroached on workers' seniority rights.

LACKING FOOD, DOZEN AURORA CAFES TO CLOSE

A dozen restaurants in Aurora, comprising one-third of the city's downtown eating places, will close for one to two weeks in July, their owners announced yesterday. Reasons cited included shortage of red points. The office of price administration has cut quotas of rationed foods to institutional users for July and August.

In Chicago, Donald F. Kiesau, executive vice president of the Chicago Restaurant association, said there was no prospect of widespread closings here.

He pointed out that suspension of business imperiled subsequent point allotments because points for September and October will be based on the July and August records.

DOCTOR'S ASSAILANT JAILED

Sam Wedzie, 35, of 1124 Wilson av., was sentenced to 90 days in jail yesterday by Judge Harry P. Beam in State st. court for striking Dr. Thomas Leahy on the head with a gun in the latter's home at 919 Lakeside pl. because the doctor refused to prescribe narcotics for him.

U. S. ORDERS BUS COMPANY DOOMED IN LABOR DISPUTE

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—The office of defense transportation today virtually ordered Wentworth Bus Lines, Inc., of Dover, N. H., out of business on the ground that it failed to comply with a war labor board order in a union dispute.

At the direction of the office of economic stabilization, ODT ordered the line's certificate of war necessity canceled. Commercial motor vehicle operators are required to have such a certificate to do business or obtain gasoline allowances.

ODT said it was the first action of its kind.

CAFES REOPEN AT MATTOON; LOTS OF MEAT

Mattoon, Ill., June 29 (AP)—Service in all but one of Mattoon's restaurants was restored today, but taxicabs were available on a priority basis only.

Meat was prominently and abundantly displayed on menus of restaurants closed seven days in protest against a red point reduction scheduled for July 1.

The transportation problem was eased temporarily when Brice Leonard, operator of the city's 15 cabs, put two taxis into use. Leonard, claiming his gasoline rations had been exhausted, took his cabs off the streets Tuesday after failing to get additional rations.

An emergency civic canteen for restaurant patrons closed last night in anticipation of the restaurant reopening today.

INDICT FIRM, FIVE IN BLACK MART LIQUOR DEALS

The Triple "C" Wholesale Liquors, Inc., and five individuals, were indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on charges of filing false reports with the alcohol tax unit in an alleged scheme to divert 7,643 cases of liquor for black market use.

The individuals named are Joseph Chudik and his brother, Frank, owners of the Triple "C" company; Max I. Ruby and his son, Irwin, owners of the Ohio-Michigan Liquor store, and Martin Ressner, a contact man.

Francis J. McGreal, head of the criminal division of the United States attorney's office, said the black market liquor was diverted to the Ohio-Michigan store. The indictment charges 12 specific violations and contains a conspiracy count.

DEADLINE NEAR, MAY FLY OPA BILL TO TRUMAN

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—The White House made preparations tonight to fly legislation extending price control to President Truman for signature.

With the President in Kansas City, Mo., and the present legal backing for price and rationing rules expiring at midnight tomorrow, the measure extending the authority for one year has yet to get thru the house. The house will hold an unusual Saturday morning session to try to deal with it.

It was assumed the same special plane will carry bills appropriating 40 billion dollars for the war department and other government agencies.

FRENCH CRIME AGAINST REICH GIRLS CHARGED

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 29—A shocking allied atrocity in Germany was reported on the floor of the senate today by Sen. Eastland [D., Miss.], who recently returned from a visit to Europe as a member of a joint senate military-naval affairs investigating committee.

Sen. Eastland

Several thousand German women were rounded up in the city of Stuttgart and raped by Senegalese and Berber troops, wearing American uniforms, the senator charged.

"Horrible Occurrence"

"I was informed by generals and high ranking government officials—and other members of the committee were so informed—that in the city of Stuttgart, when the French army moved in, several thousand Christian German girls from good families were rounded up and placed in a subway, and for four or five days they were kept there and criminally assaulted by Senegalese soldiers from Africa," Eastland said.

"It was one of the most horrible occurrences of modern times. Another bad feature of the occurrence was that those French Negroes were in American uniforms, and the population of that whole part of Germany thought that American soldiers were involved."

The war department had no immediate comment on Eastland's statements.

Says Devers Verified Story

The senator reported the incident in joining in the filibuster of Sen. Bilbo [D., Miss.] against the fair employment practice committee. Eastland charged that the FEPC was a communist weapon to create unrest in this country.

Off the floor of the senate he said he was told the story of the mass rape by Jefferson Caffery, United States ambassador to France, and that the story was later verified by Gen. Devers, commander of the American 6th army, and Gen. Patch, commander of the American 7th army.

Eastland said that Devers, horrified by the affair, ordered an American division of troops into the battered city to halt the mass rape.

Eastland said he was told the mass rape was instigated by French officers in the grip of frenzied hate against the conquerors of France. He acknowledged that reported nazi atrocities fanned this hate until the French forgot restraints.

Speaking of the FEPC, Eastland said it would grant "unfair preference" in the hiring of discharged Negro soldiers. Eastland said the Negro soldier has been "an utter and abysmal failure" in this war.

"I'm not saying that out of prejudice," he said. "That is what the responsible generals told us."

Australia to Discharge 64,000 Men Before Dec. 1

San Francisco, Cal., June 29—Joseph B. Chifley, acting prime minister, announced today that 64,000 Australian service men would be released from the army and the air force between July and December, the Melbourne radio reported. Two-thirds will be army men.

RUSSIANS FEED GERMANY WITH KNOUT IN HAND

Mix Kindness and Harsh Rule, Says Briton

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 29—"The Russians are rapidly seeking to forge a lasting link with the vanquished Germans by means of the same policy Bismarck used in beaten Austria in 1866," the Daily Mail reported this morning.

A correspondent just back from Europe said the Russians will try to keep the veil pulled over what they are doing when the allied observers move into Berlin soon. They are "still working on the German population and do not want the risk of outside influences coming into contact with the subjects of their manipulations until the job is done," he said.

Mildness and Knout

New areas recently taken over by the Russians in the heart of Germany, the correspondent noted, "make up a grand central bloc bound to exercise heavy attraction on the German provinces under British and American occupation."

"In these regions," he said, "the Reds' policy employs a remarkable mixture in which mildness and generosity do strange capers alongside the sternest knout in hand tactics. The self-announced executioners of 50 hostages for every Russian killed are the same men who dance with German women and play games with their men."

The Russians are pursuing three courses with Germans classed as "bad," the writer said—executing them, sending them to permanent forced labor, or holding them in prison camps.

Other Germans, however, he said, fare better. Germans on heavy work daily receive 20 ounces of bread, 15 ounces of potatoes, three ounces of meat, small rations of fats and sugar, and four ounces of coffee a month.

Promise to Feed People

This is possible, he said, because the Reds hold large areas that formerly fed millions of Germans who are now in the British and American zones. The Russians brag, over the Berlin radio, that they have solved the food problem and promise the Germans they will continue to be well fed even if there is a shortage in other zones. The Russians have reopened factories, theaters, concert halls, and cabarets.

Lublin Poles are being settled en masse up to the Oder and in East Prussia, he added. Germans are being shifted to make room for the newcomers. The vast Junker estates are going to landless peasants, with priority for the Poles.

3 NAZI SLAYERS OF YANK FLYER DIE ON GALLOWS

Priest Performs Last Religious Rites

RHEINBACH, Germany, June 29 (AP)—A triple hanging of German civilians at dawn today avenged an unidentified American flyer who parachuted into Germany from a flaming plane last Aug. 15 and was shot and hammered to death.

The three Germans, Peter Back, Peter Kohn, and Matthias Gierens, were hanged by United States executioners carrying out the verdict of the first civilian war crime case tried on German soil since the Nazis surrendered.

One Sentenced to Life

They and a fourth defendant were convicted by a military commission. The death sentence of Mathias Krein was commuted to life imprisonment.

The scaffold was erected in a corner of an ancient prison here under the supervision of a pair of traveling army executioners. They are M/Sgt. John C. Woods, former Texas state executioner, and Staff Sgt. Thomas Robinson of New York City, a civilian baker.

A German Catholic priest performed final religious rites for each of the condemned men. Each met his fate without breaking down.

Says Farewell to Family

Back, confessed instigator of the murder, expressed his "respect for the American army and American administration" just before a black silk death hood was placed over his head.

The doomed men were given an opportunity to make a final statement before the nooses were adjusted.

Back asked if his family would suffer at the hands of the Americans.

Lt. Col. J. V. Roddy, San Francisco, Cal., in charge of the hanging, assured him "the case will close with your death."

CHINESE FORCES ONLY 10 MILES FROM KWEILIN

CHUNGKING, June 29 (AP)—Chinese troops fighting into wrecked and burning Liuchow captured the main air field of the abandoned United States air base in the southern suburbs and the city's south rail station, the Chinese high command announced today.

Heavy fighting continues in the western and northwestern suburbs of the strategic junction city.

[Chinese troops have captured Liuchow, former American "bomb Tokyo" base, a Reuters dispatch from Chungking said.]

Other Chinese forces more than 100 miles to the northeast closed within 10 miles of Kweilin [pop. 500,000] where another United States 14th air force base was abandoned last November, a Chinese army spokesman said. A Chinese arc being pushed down from the north and northwest now runs within ten to eighteen miles of Kweilin.

The Chinese command also announced new gains northeast of Canton and along the east coast, but admitted loss of Pingsiang, about eleven miles from the French Indi-China border on the Liuchow-Dongdang railroad.

U.S. MOUNTAIN TROOPS MASS IN ALASKA—TOKYO

San Francisco, Cal., June 29 (AP)—Radio Tokyo warned the Japanese home front today that the United States is massing ground and naval forces in the Aleutians for an attack from the north, and disclosed that speedy transfer of Nipponese war industries to Manchuria was underway to escape further destruction from the air.

Tokyo said American mountain-trained fighters and paratroopers were gathering in the Aleutians and the United States 9th fleet was on the prowl, awaiting a chance to strike the mainland of Japan.

Removal of war industries to the Asiatic continent was admittedly "more fundamental" than "the large scale dispersion of munitions industries in Japan."

REPORT OF JAP PEACE OFFERS DENIED BY GREW

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Answering a statement by Sen. Capehart [R., Ind], Acting State Secretary Grew today said this country has received no Japanese peace offer, either thru official or unofficial channels.

Capehart last night said he had been reliably informed Japanese peace offers "which would be acceptable to me personally" have been made within recent weeks. Capehart said he could not disclose the terms but added "if the Japanese promised to give up all territory they have conquered, including Manchuria, wouldn't that be all right?"

Some weeks ago Grew denied reports that Japan had offered to hand over her navy and air forces and give up all conquered territory, including Manchuria, if Japan herself would not be occupied.

YENAN MEETING IS APPROVED BY CHINESE REDS

CHUNGKING, June 29 (AP)—Chinese Communists wired approval to Chungking today for seven non-Partisan members of the People's political council to visit Yenan to discuss outstanding differences.

This was considered a fresh opportunity to reconcile differences between the central and northern Chinese regimes and unite the republic for the war against Japan.

President Chiang Kai-shek has sanctioned the visit of the group, headed by the scholar, Hwang Yen-pao. Attempts also were made to induce the Communists to reverse a decision refusing to attend the next meeting of the People's political council July 7, eighth war anniversary.

NAVY TO DIVERT DAMAGED SHIPS TO GULF YARDS

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—The navy plans to bring many of its most critically damaged warships thru the Panama canal to gulf repair yards. This policy was disclosed today in a letter to Sen. Hill [D., Ala.] from Acting Navy Secretary Hensel.

In response to an inquiry from Hill, Hensel said a "substantial volume" of repair and overhaul work soon will be given gulf yards.

A large part of the work, he disclosed, will be reconditioning of LST's from the European theater for use in the Pacific.

Larger ships, Hensel said, which have been badly damaged, will be brought to yards on the gulf and the Atlantic to relieve congestion in west coast repair ports.

CHICAGO FLYING COPS PATROL AN IWO NIGHT BEAT

BY HAROLD SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH U. S. 7TH FIGHTER COMMAND ON IWO ISLAND, June 29—Traveling a nocturnal beat with the policemen of these hostile airways closest to Japan's capital is stimulating even when nothing happens. The policemen are the crews of the P-61 Black Widow night fighters, in one of which the writer has just made a combat air patrol.

Our craft is aptly named Blind Date. Its pilot is Lt. Milton C. Green, 28, 3423 Drummond pl., Chicago, reputedly one of the squadron's top flyers. His radio observer is 2d Lt. Marvin A. Bowden, 22, Monticello, Ga.

We are briefed at sunset by Capt. William Charlesworth. "During the full moon period they want us to get in as much flying as possible. If you're on the alert be ready to go on a moment's notice."

Ship Still Virgin

Staff Sgt. Milwood Hlebof, 35, formerly of Moline, Ill., and now of Brooklyn, N. Y., who as crew chief keeps the Blind Date sweet, buckles me into my parachute in the gunner-observer's seat and shows me how to bail out if necessary.

"Have a good rise and good hunting," he calls, then descends thru the hatch and slams the door shut. His squadron made its first kill last night. The Blind Date is still virgin, and the sarge seems a bit wistful about that, for his pride is high in his ship and its crew.

Using a minimum of the runway, the Blind Date roars into the twilight. Iwo shrinks to a cluster of lights behind and below.

No Sign of Japs

A couple of miles above the ocean the air is perpetually cold, and we shiver gratefully a while before turning on the heater that makes me sleepy. Milt is wearing his oxygen mask to aid his night vision, so he stays wide awake.

Jap raiders like these full moons, so we are looking sharply for them. There is no sign of life on white scarred yet forbidding Kita rock down there. Monotony is kept at plane's inter-com phones.

The hours pass, and the moon climbs high, and yet no sign of Japs. They have taken a plastering in their last two visits and are probably licking their wounds.

Port to Be Junked

Seattle, Wash., June 29 (AP)—An 18 million dollar army port, secreted in an Alaskan fjord and used only a year, will be dismantled for salvage this summer by 700 German prisoners of war, Col. Conrad P. Hardy, Seattle district army engineer, has announced. These will be the first prisoners sent outside continental United States, said Col. Hardy.

The project was authorized in July, 1942, to provide a transshipment point where barges from the United States could transfer military supplies to ocean going vessels plying to Kodiak and the Aleutian Islands.

The terminal was located in Excursion inlet, off Icy straits midway between Juneau and Cape Spencer on the Gulf of Alaska.

The terminal was built to accommodate nine ocean going vessels, six barges, two ammunition ships, and two tankers. Housing was provided for 260 officers and 4,400 enlisted men.

DE MILLE SAYS POLITICS KEY TO LIBERTY IN U. S.

Wichita, Kas., June 29 (AP)—Political freedom is the only chance for Americans to retain individual liberty, Cecil B. De Mille, Hollywood producer, told a Wichita town hall meeting tonight.

"No man in America should be deprived of the right to earn a living at his chosen work," said De Mille. "Certainly no private group should have the power to decide who shall work and who shall not, but gradually this complete power has been taken over by a small clique."

De Mille said he was not talking of "honest union members or honest union leaders" but of the "labor racketeer who, thru the control of political power, intends to control the destiny" of America.

U. S. JUDGE HITS ILLINOIS BOARD; FREES CONVICT

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday ordered William Bolds, 38, Negro convict, released from the psychiatric division at Menard. Bolds who was adjudged sane by a jury last June 18, sought his freedom on a writ of habeas corpus.

Bolds had been in prison since 1928 when he was convicted of burglary and sentenced to one year to life. Judge Barnes said the conviction was based on the theft of a ring and $1.67 in Aurora.

Judge Barnes termed Bolds' long imprisonment "cruelty beyond that of medieval ages" for such a small offense. He declared the parole board was responsible for keeping more persons in prison than should be there.

MOSLEMS CLAIM RIGHT TO FILL POSTS IN INDIA

SIMLA, India, June 29 (AP)—Mohammed Ali Jinnah, president of the Moslem League, said tonight that the league alone "is entitled" to nominate Moslems for membership in the proposed new interim government of India.

Jinnah's statement suggested that the league would not compromise in the principal dispute threatening the success of Viceroy Wavell's conference to set up an almost completely Indian government.

The Moslem League's major political rival, the Congress party, has insisted that it too might nominate Moslems for government posts. The league has said that it will not accept or take part in any government with the nonleague Moslems as members.

Conference Adjourns

Wavell's conference adjourned today for two weeks after delegates had approved proposed machinery for setting up an India executive council. Approval by Moslem delegates, however, is subject to ratification by the Moslem working committee at a meeting next week and a Moslem spokesman said this ratification might be withheld.

Wavell had proposed that he select executive council members from among panels of eight to 12 nominees to be submitted by the league and Congress party and panels of three submitted by minority groups. Under the plan his choices would be subject to final ratification by the league and Congress. The exact size of the council was not agreed on.

Gandhi Hopes for Success

As the conference adjourned, announcing that it "expected" to reconvene here July 14, Mohandas K. Gandhi said in an interview that it was his "hope and prayer that things will come out right for both India and Great Britain."

The frail, 75 year old Gandhi said his party had entered the conference in "recognition of the fact that it was a step toward independence."

"I have constituted myself," he explained, "as both an advisor to the Congress [party] and advisor too to the Viceroy, and thru him to the British people."

Gandhi discounted the suggestion that he was considered the controlling voice in the party and not a mere advisor.

"They can shut me up at any time, brush aside my advice," he asserted. "If I tried to cling to power I would fall, never to rise again. That is not my temperament."

BRITISH CRUISER 'SUNK' BY NAZIS REBUILT IN U. S.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29 (AP)—The British cruiser Argonaut, both ends of which were blown away by German torpedoes, has been repaired at the Philadelphia navy yard and is stalking Japanese in the Pacific.

The navy said today that the Berlin radio officially proclaimed the Argonaut sunk in the Mediterranean in the spring of 1943. The royal navy brought the cripple across the Atlantic under her own power, however, steering with her two remaining propellers. At Philadelphia 182 feet of the 512 foot ship were rebuilt, 59 feet at the bow and 123 feet aft.

ELLIOTT LINKED TO F. D. R. PARTY FOR SOAP MEN

Probers Hear He Tried to Sell Guests Ads

Washington, D. C., June 29 [New York News]—The Washington Times-Herald reported tonight that the late President Roosevelt once gave a dinner party for 12 of the largest soap manufacturers and drug store chain executives in the country and delivered a talk on the value of radio advertising which mystified the guests until the president's son, Elliott, called on them later and tried without success to interest them in his Texas radio network.

Elliott was present at the dinner, the Times-Herald said, adding that the party was disclosed by members of two congressional investigating committees.

Treasury Report Made

This revelation came as a result of the first examination by treasury agents of Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt and John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company, were transmitted to the congressional committees investigating Hartford's $200,000 loan to Elliott in 1939 and the subsequent "bad debt" deal after a $4,000 settlement.

The treasury report was transmitted to Colin Stam, detailed by the internal revenue department to the house ways and means and senate finance committees as special agent in all treasury matters.

Stam said that until the remainder of the evidence is submitted it will be regarded as a "top secret."

Committee members pointed out that the first evidence submitted would necessarily concern the details of the $200,000 loan and whether either of the principals was guilty of tax evasion thru its treatment of tax returns.

Claimed Tax Deduction

Hartford declared the $196,000 unpaid portion of the loan as a bad debt and claimed exemption for it in his income tax report, it was disclosed previously. That item has not yet been allowed by the treasury.

Whether Elliott included the $196,000 as a capital gain in his income tax return undoubtedly will be brought out in the report, committee members said.

Meanwhile committee members are personally inquiring into some "unusual coincidences" and seeking to learn whether other loans were made. They said they also expect a statement from George Hartford, ultra-conservative member of the A. & P. owning family, who was first approached and who turned down the $200,000 loan which his elder brother, John, later saw fit to grant.

LONDON POLES INSIST ARMY IS STILL FOR THEM

LONDON, June 29 (AP)—The Polish government in London, expecting at any moment to be cast adrift diplomatically by Britain and the United States, has no plans for its future, a spokesman admitted today.

He said he didn't know what would happen to the London regime when the allies recognize the new Polish government of national unity, formed yesterday in Warsaw, but he denied London reports that the regime was seeking sanctuary in Eire or Canada.

The spokesman declared the Polish army of 200,000 to 250,000 remained "completely loyal to us," and reiterated the claim that the regime here is the only legal Polish government.

[A Polish telegraph agency from Rome reported that Gen. Wlayslaw Anders has arrived in Italy to take command of the Polish 2d corps, which is loyal to the Polish government in London. Gen. Anders returned to Italy from London.]

POLAND'S VETS TO GET 25 ACRES OF GERMAN SOIL

MOSCOW, June 29 (AP)—The Russian news agency Tass reported today that the commander in chief of Polish troops in Warsaw announced that soldiers, guerrillas and families of those who gave their lives for Poland would be alloted 10 hectares [about 25 acres] of land each in western Polish territories. The resettlement of western lands, which apparently include Pomerania and Silesia in pre-war Germany, will be voluntary, and those offered the land will not be obliged to accept, the dispatch said. It added that soldiers of 40 or more would be demobilized and resettlement would begin immediately.

REVEALS BRITAIN HAS 3½ BILLION DEPOSITS IN U. S.

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Harry White, assistant secretary of the treasury, told the senate banking committee today that Great Britain has a balance of 3½ billion dollars in gold and securities on deposit in the United States.

White was called to testify in closed session on the financial arrangements between the two allies and proposals for post-war settlements.

Sen. Taft [R., O.] told reporters that "we asked a lot of pointed questions" and that White will be recalled next Monday.

Designer of Hitler's Homes Seized by Czechs

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, June 29 (AP)—Czechoslovak police announced today the arrest at Karlsbad of a Dr. Kreizler, whom they identified as an employe of Hitler. He designed Hitler's bedrooms, studies, and living rooms in Berlin and Berchtesgaden. He revealed the locations of six storerooms where police found pictures and art objects taken from Czechoslovak homes and museums, the police reported.

How WAC and Soldiers Were Taken from Hidden Valley

Technique by which a WAC corporal and an army lieutenant and sergeant were rescued Thursday from the "hidden valley" of New Guinea. The tow plane swooped to within 20 feet of the ground to pick up their glider tow rope.

HIDDEN VALLEY YANKS BROUGHT OUT BY GLIDER

Lived Amid Warring Natives 47 Days

Passes Up Throne

A little later, while awaiting a luncheon of T-bone steaks and fried potatoes, blue eyed Corp. Hastings said that she was glad to abdicate as queen of Hidden valley. She had previously reported by the walkie-talkie parachuted to the marooned group that native women had offered to make her queen of one of the warrior tribes that inhabit the valley.

"There was nothing to do but get up in the morning, eat, sit around, eat some more and go to bed," she said.

The crash occurred May 13 as Col. Peter J. Prossen, San Antonio, Tex., chief of the maintenance division of the far east air service command, was piloting a plane loaded with men and WACs, mostly from his department. The flight was described officially as a routine orientation trip.

Lt. McCollom, whose twin brother, Robert, St. Paul, Minn., was one of the victims, said, "I was able to pull a couple of the others out of the burning wreckage."

Two other WACs who survived the crash died later.

Lt. McCollom said that 13 pints of water and several boxes of hard candy aboard the plane kept them alive until searching planes found the crash site three days later and dropped food.

Nerves Frayed by Delay

Corp. Hastings revealed that the survivors, shaken and saddened by the tragedy, sometimes got on each other's nerves during the ordeal. "I told the lieutenant off once," she laughed. She was cut and burned on the legs. Sgt. Decker suffered a deep head cut and burns about the hips.

Sgt. Decker said he believed the high watch towers which distinguished the valley from any other in New Guinea were used by native hunters to sight wild pigs. All the survivors agreed that the valley contained no 7 foot natives or 1,000 pound pigs such as flyers thought they had seen. Both the natives and animals were described as of average size or below.

Find Native Village Clean

Corp. Hastings said that the valley dwellers did not appear to have as many children as normal. Visiting a native village, the trio found it clean and well built. The round houses, which appear like mushroom buds from the air, are for the people and the long, barracks-like houses for the pigs. With the exception of some meat, sweet potatoes are almost the sole item of their diet.

The survivors were loaded down with native stone axes, bows, and arrows which they had exchanged for shells.

After a routine hospital examination they will be given a rest for full recuperation. Maj. Gen. Clements McMullen, far east air service command chief, said that all probably would be returned to the United States before resuming service again.

Recount Fatal Crash

HOLLANDIA, New Guinea, June 28 [Delayed]—(AP)—At headquarters here the three survivors told of the crash May 13. Lt. McCollom said he crawled from the burning fuselage. Sgt. Decker and Corp. Hastings said they were thrown out, unconscious.

McCollom crawled back to the plane and gave morphine injections to two passengers who were still alive but mortally injured. They lived about 24 hours. All the others were killed in the crash.

The survivors agreed that some hard candies and a life raft saved them. They ate candy until they were "sick of it," McCollom said, while the yellow raft, punctured, served as a tent, and attracted the attention of a plane that spotted them four days later. It took the trio a day and a half to get four miles down the mountainside to the spot where they were discovered.

Found Natives Harmless

"We weren't afraid of the natives after our first encounter with them," said McCollom. "They carry spears and bows and arrows, but from the way they looked at us from behind trees we knew they were more afraid of us than we were of them."

Corp Hastings said she found the natives "quite interesting, particularly the women, who took me to their hearts and were very kind."

GOVERNOR HOPES TO TURN BAVARIA OVER TO GERMANS NOV. 1

MUNICH, Germany, June 29 (AP)—Col. Charles Keegan, military governor of American occupied Bavaria, said today he would be able to turn the government over to the Germans by Nov. 1 if the progress of the last two months continued. Bavaria comprises over half of the total American occupation area.

"The way it looks now, I will be able to recommend that all military government personnel can consider the job finished by November," the former New York City councilman said. "The Germans themselves can run Bavaria, with American occupation troops remaining, of course, to guard power plants, war industries, and the like."

Dr. Fritz Schaffer, whom Keegan appointed as president of Bavaria, said, "if the military government would permit political activities of groups, the Bavarian peoples party could be brought into action in a very short time. Bavaria should be made free from Prussian influence and become independent and responsible for its own affairs."

CHARGES STALIN STRIPS POLAND OF RICHEST LAND

Loss of Resources to Russia Told

Detroit, Mich., June 29 [Special]—Dictator Stalin's grab of eastern Poland, which was upheld by the late President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at Yalta, takes away some of the most productive areas of Poland, it was charged tonight by Ignatius Nurkiewicz, president of the Polish Federated Manufacturers' Organizations of America.

"To the Poles this grab is as painful as an amputation," Nurkiewicz said in a statement. "It is like chopping off a man's leg and telling him he should be grateful to get a German artificial one."

Vast Resources Lost

Nurkiewicz, who also is a member of the Detroit Polish council, asserted the Russian seizure deprives Poland of 47 per cent of its territory and 38 per cent of its population. He said the annexed territory contained two-thirds of Poland's sheep and two-fifths of Poland's horses and cattle.

He asserted the lost territory produced 98 per cent of Poland's corn; 80 per cent of its tobacco; 78 per cent of its flax, 74 per cent of its natural oil, 72 per cent of its timber, 61 per cent of its hemp, and 50 per cent of its plywood.

Shifts 4,400,000 Farmers

He said that soviet propaganda bureaus had described the Polish population in the annexed area as a "tiny class of feudal landlords," but that the Poles actually number 5,700,000, of whom 4,400,000 were farmers. Millions of them, he added, are being shifted around ruthlessly by the Russians.

Lwow, which is in the seized area, is the principal road and railway junction in that corner of Europe, Nurkiewicz said, adding:

"It is the gateway to the heart of central Europe and the shortest arm-stretch for Stalin to keep a heavy thumb on Czechoslovakia."

STANDS UP 400 MILES HOLDING BABY; COLLAPSES

Kansas City, Mo., June 29 (AP)—A 23 year old mother who stood in a crowded train for 400 miles, holding her 10 month old baby in her arms, collapsed in the Union Station lobby here last night and was removed to a hospital. Mrs. Okemah Van Ness, Ada, Okla., said she was en route to see her sailor husband, Bonner Van Ness, who is stationed at Treasure Island, San Francisco, Cal.

OPA 'TIRES OUT' GROCER; HE WILL GO FISHING NOW

Rulings Called 'Just Too Much'

For 21½ years Albert W. Hecht has operated a meat market and grocery in Sterling dr., Flossmoor. Today he's going out of business. The reason—the OPA has tired him out. A new owner is taking over.

"I'm not quitting because of the OPA," Hecht said. "They couldn't put me out of business. I'm quitting because I'm tired—tired of the OPA, and I won't go back to the meat and grocery business as long as there's an OPA.

"I think they should destroy the OPA and just keep a price control board. Then they could stop sending meat to foreign countries. If there were as much meat as there is red tape in the OPA we couldn't sell it all."

Going to Country

The Flossmoor butcher said he's going out in the country and "live like the Indians," fishing and resting. "Why work anyway?" he asked. "The government's made it easy for us, planning everything from the cradle to the grave."

One of his employes, who has served behind the counter for 16 years, plans to follow his boss' example, go to the country for a while and forget about meat shortages and unhappy customers.

Hecht's action focused attention anew on the plight of the Chicago area's hundreds of meat markets which are striving against shortages and government regulations to apportion meats equitably. But, the survey showed, it's a tough job. Meat supplies are generally 50 per cent below normal requirements, altho here and there some improvement has developed.

Sees No Difference

"I can't see any difference lately," reported Louis Stibeck, operator of a market at 3950 Lawrence av. "I'm 50 per cent under what I can use in spite of buying plenty of sausage."

"I couldn't say the situation is appreciably better," said Adam Herrmann at 1637 W. 63d st. "We do get a little more meat occasionally, but we could easily use 50 per cent more than we have."

Edward Gittersonke, operator of a store at 2057 Ridge rd., Homewood, estimated supplies at 50 per cent less than six months ago, but said he was optimistic about the immediate future. Employes at the Steiter market, 2026 Ridge rd., Homewood, estimated supplies at 75 per cent less in the last six months.

Varied Conditions Found

Interviews at dozens of other stores, scattered thruout the city and suburbs, found varied conditions, but few good. Only one butcher said supplies were so much better that he was able to tell his packer to deliver no more sausages unless ordered.

Some butchers reported they'd deal forever with their packers for getting such fair treatment but a handful complained they had to watch against being shortweighted by a few little known dealers.

REPORT TRUMAN PLEDGES REICH COAL TO FRANCE

PARIS, June 29 (AP)—The French press said today that Gen. De Gaulle had received a letter from President Truman saying that Gen. Eisenhower would be instructed to give France the greatest possible amount of coal mined in Germany.

The newspapers said President Truman had intervened with Prime Minister Churchill to persuade him to the policy, and that the letter followed negotiations in Washington, D. C., conducted by the French supply mission.

One newspaper estimated that France would receive about 45 per cent of all coal taken from mines in the French, British, and American zones of occupation. France has feared another winter coal shortage, altho domestic production has increased to about two-thirds the pre-war normal rate.

THEATER OF AIR HOUR TONIGHT TO BE SALUTE TO NURSING CADETS

Twenty-five cadet nurses will be special guests of the Chicago Theater of the Air program which will salute the cadet nurses corps of the United States public health service on its second anniversary at 9 o'clock tonight over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network. As a tribute to the corps Bruce Foote, baritone, will sing "The Song of the Open Road."

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will be the speaker.

The program will open with the overture to Romberg's "My Maryland." Marion Claire will sing "The Rosary," supported by the orchestra and chorus. She also will sing "A Kiss in the Dark." Ruth Slater will sing "My Old Kentucky Home." Other familiar American music will be included.

A group of songs from the new Broadway musical "Carousel" will be presented. Henry Weber will direct the orchestra and chorus. John Barclay will be the narrator; Jack LaFrandre, the producer.

OUSTED TEACHER TO SEEK RELIEF IN COURT ACTION

Court action seeking to compel the East Chicago school board to reinstate Miss Nellie I. Mills, whom the board dismissed from her teaching position Wednesday night on the charge that she spoke disparagingly of the late President Roosevelt, will be undertaken at once, her attorney, Allen P. Twyman, announced yesterday.

Twyman said the charge of insubordination could not be supported. It was based on a report that she said on the occasion of the late President's death, "For the first time in 12 years we can pledge allegiance to the flag." She also was charged with having failed to carry out the board's orders to all teachers to hold memorial services.

"It was proved at her trial that she did not make the remark attributed to her," said Twyman, "and it has never been proved that she did not conduct the memorial service."

OTTAWA ENSIGN IS AMONG 5 DEAD IN PLANE CRASH

Miami, Fla., June 29 (AP)—Five flyers from the Miami naval air station were killed yesterday when their JM-1 Marauder crashed into the ocean, 57 miles east of Mayport, Fla., the navy announced today. The dead included Ensign James H. Giehler, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Giehler, Ottawa, Ill.

Lawrenceville Flyer Killed

Williams Field, Ariz., June 29 (AP)—Seven men were killed today when an army B-24 crashed and burned southeast of its base at Williams field. The dead included F. O. Ernest Lee Sager, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin D. Sager, Lawrenceville, Ill.

WARN OF PLOT TO COMMUNIZE U. S. ARMY, NAVY

quiry was begun in February, following disclosure that the army, in a sudden change of policy, had removed the ban on enlisting Communists.

Following this disclosure, the committee said, high army officals issued a flood of denials that any Communists held commissions in the army. But, the report continued, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE subsequently published the names of 10 army officers with alleged Communist connections.

The report further noted that Earl Browder, head of the Communist party in this country, publicly asserted that there were some 13,000 Communists in the military service and that some of these had commissions in the army.

Instructions for Campaign

In reviewing the Communist party's traditional policy of seeking to propagandise the armies of nations, the report said specific instructions for such campaigns were issued at the sixth congress of the Communist international in 1928.

Among the instructions to the American delegates at the congress, the report said, were these:

"To take into consideration the morale of the army and the political situation in the country, and the demand for the election of officers which, as a rule, can be advanced only when the army has reached an advanced state of disintegration.

Possible New Strategy

"To link up closely political demands with the principal slogan of the Communist party arming the proletariat, proletarian militia."

The committee posed the question of whether the above quoted communist aim of seeking "election" of army officers was later abandoned in favor of a new strategy of infiltration—"that of securing commissions and subcommissions for their party comrades in the military forces, little by little, with the approval or connivance of government officials and officers high in authority, complaisant or coöperative?"

SITE OF BELGIAN DIPLOMACY LIKE SCENE IN FICTION

ST. WOLFGANG, Austria, June 29 (AP)—In this Graustarkian setting King Leopold III. of the Belgians played on today at the game in which his throne and dynasty were the stakes.

From the closely guarded villa where he confers day after day with a constantly changing procession of Belgian leaders there came no hint that he was bowing to the clamor at home that he abdicate.

[An Associated Press dispatch from Brussels said communist and socialist sources reported that Leopold may abdicate Sunday. Bad flying weather postponed the scheduled departure of Paul van Zeeland, former prime minister and present high commissioner for repatriation, and Albert Deveeze, liberal former minister of war, who had planned to leave Brussels Friday for St. Wolfgang to confer with the monarch.]

Can BORDERLINE ANEMIA* Sap Your Stamina and Strength?
THE answer is yes! Borderline Anemia can steal away your pep and vigor—can take all the fun out of life. Borderline Anemia makes people pale and listless.
And medical records say that thousands and thousands of men—as many as 68% of women—suffer from a Borderline Anemia resulting from a ferro-nutritional deficiency of the blood.
You Need Big Red Blood Cells to Release Energy
If your oxygen-carrying, energy-releasing red cells aren't sufficiently large and rich, you can't hope to keep your full vigor. Your blood is the "supply line" of energy to every muscle, every fibre of your body.
Better Blood, More Energy with Ironized Yeast
Yes, if you grow fatigued with little effort—if you're continually pale and pepless—you may have Borderline Anemia. But there is a way to improved vitality—easy-to-take Ironized Yeast Tablets can help you!
Of course your condition might be due to other causes, so your doctor should be consulted regularly. If you have a Borderline Anemia*, Ironized Yeast Tablets will help you by building up your blood . . . by renewing your energy.
Start taking Ironized Yeast Tablets today to look better, to feel better, to be better. Insist on genuine Ironized Yeast. At all drug stores.
*Resulting from a ferro-nutritional blood deficiency.
Energy-Building Blood
This is what the doctor sees through his microscope looking at blood rich in energy-elements. Note big, plentiful red cells that carry oxygen to release energy to every muscle, limb, tissue.
Borderline Anemia
Thousands have blood like this—and never know it. Note puny size and irregular shape of red cells. Blood like this can't generate the energy you need! Only sturdy blood can give you top energy.

LOOP REALTY DEALER FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL

Sought on Fraud Charge Involving $14,500

Fred L. Winston, loop real estate dealer sought since June 5 on five warrants charging frauds amounting to $14,500, was found dead yesterday in a ninth floor room of the Stevens hotel where he had registered last Tuesday under an assumed name.

Fred L. Winston

He had been dead two or three days. A preliminary medical report indicated death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage, but later investigation indicated an overdose of sedatives may have been a contributing cause.

Realty Dealer Many Years

Winston was 55, and resided at 10 E. Schiller st. with his wife, Carrie, and daughter, Phyllis, 17. He had been in the real estate and building and hotel management business for many years. He maintained offices at 111 W. Washington st. under his own name. There was no connection between his business and Winston & Co., real estate dealers at 38 S. Dearborn st.

Winston registered at the Stevens as Fred Wood of Grosse Point, Mich. He was not noticed around the hotel afterward, and yesterday Nancy Vance, a maid, entering his room found him dead.

Mrs. Carrie Winston leaving coroner's office.

He was seated in a chair, a cigaret in his mouth, an open box of matches in his left hand and an unlighted match in his right. Detectives John Steiner and Maurice O'Connor said death evidently came as he was about to strike the match. On the basis of this a physician gave hemorrhage as the cause of death.

Later, however, the detectives found a bottle and two boxes in a dresser drawer containing an assortment of capsules and pills. Some were sleep inducing and some prescribed to maintain wakefulness. Also found were two envelopes on which Winston had written that his wife be called, giving her address and telephone number.

Real Name Wirzinger

Mrs. Winston was questioned by Coroner Brodie last night. She said her husband had been mentally and physically ill recently. She had only a vague idea of his financial troubles, she added. She said she last saw him the first week in June.

Mrs. Winston said her husband's real name was Wirzinger which he changed to Winston during World War I.

O. P. Lightfoot, assistant state's attorney, said Winston's reputation was good until recent months when he met financial difficulties. Then, Lightfoot said, he went to friends and obtained funds on deals which were not carried out. He did not repay, Lightfoot said. He estimated total alleged frauds at $20,000. The five warrants in the case involve amounts from $1,000 to $5,000.

An inquest will be held at 11 a. m. today at 425 Plymouth ct.

TEEN AGE RAPE TRIO GETS LIFE; A 4TH 40 YEARS

Four Negroes, 15 to 18 years old, were found guilty before Judge Harold G. Ward in Criminal court last night on charges of raping and robbing two young white women and of robbing a third. Judge Ward sentenced three of the defendants to life imprisonment at hard labor on the rape charges and sentenced the 15 year old Negro to 40 to 50 years for robbery.

In passing sentence Judge Ward rejected their pleas for probation. Evidence in the cases moved him to emphasize that the law considered rape as heinous a crime as murder and treason and all three crimes thus are exempt from probation.

Fourth Under Statutory Age

The three sentenced as rapists are Theodore Wiley, 17, of 6017 S. Racine av.; Noel Parks, 18, of 1221 W. 60th st.; and William Robinson, 16, of 5935 S. Racine av. Joseph Jackson, 15, of 6040 Elizabeth st., identified as one of the attackers of both women, was charged only with robbery because he is under the statutory rape age limit of 16.

Asst. State's Atty. Edward Healy termed the defendants "very vicious" and remarked that in some other communities their apprehension might have meant death. Judge Ward directed that the rapists be placed in solitary confinement on the anniversaries of their crimes.

One anniversary is May 20. About 4:30 a. m. Jackson, Robinson, and Parks kidnaped in their automobile a 28 year old wife of a navy man serving overseas. She was on her way home from work in the Dodge Chicago plant.

Threaten Phone Operator with Knife

After taking $4 and a war bond from her they drove to a lot at 65th st. and Sayre av., where all three raped her. They were seized virtually in the act by a county highway police squad under Sgt. John Kringas.

Two days earlier Jackson, Parks, and Wiley kidnaped a 17 year old telephone operator on her way home from a theater. One of the Negroes threatened to slit her throat with a long bladed knife and took her purse and $4. All three attacked her in the car.

All four also were sentenced to a concurrent term of 40 to 50 years for another robbery. Two other women who identified the four as robbers did not appear to prosecute them.

MOTOR COACH HEAD SIGNS AFL UNION CONTRACT

Employes Will Vote Anyway, CIO Says

Interunion strife over the right to organize Chicago Motor Coach operating employes reached a new high point yesterday when Benjamin Weintraub, president of the bus company, announced that investigation had shown a majority of workers favored the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes [AFL] and that he had signed a contract with that union.

Matt Kearns, regional director of the rival CIO unit, the Transport Workers' Union of America, declared Weintraub had "broken faith" with the employes. Regardless of the deal with the AFL union, Kearns said, an employes' election set for tomorrow would be carried out. He said he was confident CIO would win.

NLRB Keeps Hands Off

The company's direct negotiations with the AFL union were made possible when the national labor relations board ruled last Monday that it could not order an election, as the CIO had requested, because the bus company was not under its authority.

Weintraub and officers of the AFL union agreed to designate Circuit Judge Joseph Burke as umpire. He examined union membership cards filed by employes, checked them against payrolls, and reported that 503 of the 877 drivers and garage workers eligible had shown preference for AFL.

The contract provides for prompt negotiations on wages, hours, and other working conditions, but neither company nor union spokesmen indicated the union had any immediate demands to present.

Employes Have Own Union

Previously, the workers had been represented by an independent organization known as the Chicago Motor Coach Employes' fraternity. It survived an effort of the AFL to take it over in 1934 and an NLB election requested by the CIO two years ago. Both unions had members on the fraternity's board of directors, and some company garages were dominated by one union and some by the other. Its contract expired last autumn.

The election called for tomorrow is in the name of the fraternity. It will be held from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. in the offices of the Chicago Civil Liberties committee, 410 S. Michigan av.

BOY, 6, GATHERS PAPER 91 TIMES HIS OWN WEIGHT

Chicago waste paper salvage officials said yesterday that a south side school boy, Lance Lawson, 6, of 8321 Green st., is believed to be the nation's youngest "big time" waste paper collector.

Lance, who took 5,307 pounds of paper to Gresham school in the last year, was cited for his salvage efforts by the war production board and received the first WPB medallion with bars to be presented in Chicago.

The ceremony was held yesterday at the Pioneer Paper Stock company's warehouse at 448 W. Ohio st., and James T. O'Connor, executive secretary of salvage for the WPB, announced a nation-wide survey would be undertaken to secure Lance's honor as the youngest 5,000 pound collector.

Realizes His Ambition

The paper taken to his school by Lance Lawson totaled more than 91 times his own weight of 58 pounds. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Evert Lawson, said he pestered them with his ambition to become a paper trooper until they gave in.

The WPB medallions and bars are expected to provide an additional incentive for thousands of boys and girls in the summer playground paper salvage drive, O'Connor said. The playground campaign ends its first week today with officials expecting a collection of 350 tons of paper from 204 city, school, park district, and agency playgrounds.

On Monday the summer paper campaign will be extended to the playgrounds in all Cook county suburbs. The drive is sponsored by the Chicago Newspaper Publishers association.

Three Drives of Three Weeks Each

The summer campaign is divided into three three-week drives. At the end of each drive, the Chicago waste paper campaign committee will sponsor a luncheon for boys and girls who lead the city in collections. Special prizes will be awarded to the leaders in each drive, and grand prizes will be presented when the last campaign closes.

Each boy and girl who has collected 2,000 pounds of paper since last Sept. 1 will receive a WPB medallion, with a bar for each additional 1,000 pounds.

BANKER SUES 2 FOR DOGS' RAID ON HIS TURKEYS

E. LeRoy Hall, vice president of the Northern Trust company, filed suit yesterday against two of his neighbors in the suburb of Bannockburn to collect $1,000 for damages done by dogs to his flock of turkeys. One defendant, Fred P. Dier, said that his dog and one belonging to Wallace E. Carroll killed or crippled 75 turkeys last autumn. They offered to settle with Hall at the market price, 36 cents a pound, Dier said, but were unable to reach agreement.

VOICE OF LABOR IN MANAGEMENT URGED BY SHEIL

Participation by labor unions in the management of industry was urged by the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, senior auxiliary bishop of Chicago, in an address delivered last night in Gary, Ind., before the Gary Knights of Columbus and the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists.

"This is not a question of labor taking over management lock, stock, and barrel," he said. "It is simply that the workers request, very reasonably, that they should have a voice in things which affect them vitally."

He said that if trade unionists desire to be "citizens of industry" they must assume the obligations of citizens.

Mother of Jap Captive Dies of Auto Injuries

Mrs. Constance Marozas, 65, of 6133 S. Karlov av., a widow, died in Holy Cross hospital last night of injuries suffered June 12 when she was struck by an automobile at 63d st. and Karlov av. She was the mother of Capt. William B. Marozas of the army air forces, who has been a Japanese prisoner of war since Dec. 7, 1941. The car was driven by George Bruce, 40, of 1227 S. Elmwood av., Berwyn.

MAKE LAST PUSH TODAY FOR GOAL OF MIGHTY 7TH

Teams Will Canvass Thruout City

The Mighty 7th war loan drive moved into its final stretch yesterday in Chicago and the nation with a huge army of solicitors joining in the windup. The campaign, which opened May 14, will end tonight.

Sales to individuals in Chicago and Cook county reached $305,183,000, or 93.2 per cent of the quota of $327,474,000. This represented a gain of $8,992,000 since the last report.

Lawrence F. Stern, local chairman, urged volunteer solicitors to redouble their efforts to achieve the quota and maintain Chicago's record.

City-Wide Canvass Today

Block solicitors, thousands of minute men in factories, service men's organizations, and other groups will canvass the city today to muster every last dollar.

Treasury department officials pointed out that all sales processed thru federal reserve banks by July 7 will count toward this drive.

John Gillespie, manager of THE TRIBUNE's public service office, 1 S. Dearborn st., said that the Dad to GI Joe honor roll now has 380 names. Buyers of bonds for sons and daughters in service, under the Tribune plan adopted nationally, have their names listed.

Captured Planes Presented

William Strand, Tribune war correspondent, spoke at a closing bond show at State and Madison sts. He vividly described operations at the Anzio beachhead and said: "The bonds you bought many weeks ago were responsible for saving hundreds of lives on European fronts."

Two captured Japanese airplane engines were presented by the State Street council to be used for technical education in Chicago schools.

One of the final rallies in Chicago will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at 3427 Lawrence av. by the North Lawndale war finance committee. Army and coast guard bands will play and free movies will be shown. Leon M. Zimmerman is chairman.

THE TREATY IN THE SENATE

Sen. Overton wants to railroad the San Francisco Charter thru the senate. He made a formal proposal on Thursday that there be no committee hearings.

Surely, this must be the most extraordinary suggestion ever heard in the senate chamber where, over the years, some truly extraordinary ideas have been presented. Here is a treaty which, its advocates say, will keep the world at peace till the end of time. If they are right, it must be a very powerful treaty indeed. If they are wrong, it is still true that the treaty makes requirements of us which have never before been accepted by this or any other country.

The charter alters in some degree both the principles of our foreign policy and the practices of our diplomacy. It imposes new responsibilities upon our army and navy. In some measure, it foreshadows the territorial and political adjustments to be made after the war. It has a bearing on the ultimate disposition of the islands we have conquered from Japan. It may affect permanently our relations with Alaska and Hawaii. Above all, it may be interpreted to require this country to go to war against the will of the people's representatives in congress and to fight for causes which the American people will regard as unjust.

Surely these matters ought to be examined carefully. Surely there is no reason for ratifying a contract of such importance without even troubling to examine the language. There is no excuse for undue haste. Nothing can be lost by taking time enough to see what the charter provides. Everybody who has read it knows that it is not an easy document to understand, with its numerous and sometimes confusing cross-references. Those who negotiated the document, we are glad to see, are more than willing to explain and defend it paragraph by paragraph and line by line. To adopt any other course would be sheer folly.

It is to be borne in mind, also, that those who favor rushing the ratification of the charter are the same people who were eager to get us into this war with its million casualties already counted and more still to come. The devotion of these war hawks to peace is open to grave question. They were not so passionate for peace but what they welcomed war a few years ago.

The charter should be studied, also, with the fact in mind that the chief negotiator was Mr. Stettinius, a millionaire himself and the spokesman, it may be presumed, of other millionaires. Many people in this country believe that wars are made by millionaires for the profits to be derived. Such views will be strengthened if the charter is railroaded thru the senate. If there is nothing to the accusation, the men who drafted the treaty ought to have no difficulty in proving it.

LESE MAJESTE

By a two to one vote the school board of East Chicago terminated the lifetime teaching contract of Miss Nellie I. Mills on the allegation that a disparaging remark that she was said to have made about the late President Roosevelt constituted insubordination. Pupils differed as to her statement, which was oblique at best, and it was not denied that she held a classroom memorial service, as the board had directed all teachers to do.

In the Voice of the People today we print a letter from a soldier in Germany who heard of the proceedings against the teacher before the board rendered its decision against her. We can add nothing to his remarks, except to recommend that our readers take them to heart.

RADIO RESPONSIBILITY

Passage by the legislature of the radio libel bill may be accepted as a qualified beginning toward the introduction of principles of responsibility and morality into the industry. The final form of the bill leaves a good deal to be desired, in that the side door has been left open to permit some evasion of obligations, but the bill also represents a considerable advance. The provisions of one year in jail or a $500 fine are enough to discourage flagrant abuse of the privilege of using the air.

It is not to the credit of a number of stations and such pressure groups as the CIO that they engaged in a concerted campaign to discredit the bill and to emasculate it. THE TRIBUNE and station W-G-N came in for considerable abuse from these interests because they supported the principle of responsibility in radio utterance.

The Tribune station was not frightened by any of the obligations it would be compelled to assume with all other Illinois stations under the original terms of the bill, for it has always lived up to them even when they were not stated in law. In the absence of legal responsibility, some other stations could not say as much. They have engaged in the dissemination of scandal, malicious gossip, and other kinds of defamatory utterance which have tended to bring all stations alike into disrepute. In arguing against the assumption of responsibility, they were in effect stating their intention to continue in these discreditable practices.

No one in the radio industry could be unaware of the eagerness of the federal government to extend its regulations into every field of communications in recent years. The press has been made aware of it by recent court decisions, and it can be news to no one in radio that a federal regulatory commission with power practically to define its own sphere of jurisdiction is established in Washington.

It was the part of good sense for the radio stations in Illinois to place themselves under the discipline of good taste, good manners, and a regard for truth while they could still do so voluntarily. None of them need fear the consequences of the libel act if they heed these simple standards. By accepting them, they may spare themselves from far more irksome controls imposed by the government.

THE HITLER MYTH

The story is still going the rounds that Hitler may not be dead. The London Daily Sketch reports a mysterious broadcast from an unidentified station saying that "the Fuehrer is alive and safe. He is far beyond the reach of the enemy. Do not despair, Germans! The light will come again from the darkness."

All the Germans have to do, meanwhile, is look about them—at the ruin of their cities and homes, at occupying armies, at a disaster as complete as any people in history ever experienced. Hitler was the architect of this. He is the most discredited man in history, and even a German would have to concede that, whether he is possessed of moral sense or not. On results the frantic man with the mustache was an incredible flop.

If Hitler should come blinking out of a hideout on some unspecified future date, the only source of wonderment would be that he had the crust to show himself. The only promise he could offer would be, "I am the author of all your misery. Take me back and you shall have more of the same." Even a German would have none of it. Or, should we say, especially a German?

UN-AMERICAN

The house committee on un-American activities should address itself to the problem of the behavior of Rep. Adolph J. Sabath, a Chicago adornment in congress. On April 19, under consent to extend his remarks, he inserted in the Congressional Record a war department publication represented as having the title, "Text of United States Expose of Native Fascism." By "extending his remarks" he avoided having to make direct answer from the floor to those able to detect his charlatanry.

In the gratuitous remarks which the Hon. Adolph spread upon the record was this statement: "Mr. Speaker, I only regret that the rules and regulations of the war department precluded the naming of outstanding American Fascists, such as the du Ponts, the Pews, the Girdlers, the Weirs, Van Horn Moseley, H. W. Prentis Jr., Merwin K. Hart, and others, including the 30 Fascists charged with conspiracy and seditious activities and tried, but, due to the untimely death of the trial judge, they are still at large."

On May 16 Rep. Frank Keefe of Wisconsin took the floor in the house to expose Sabath's trickery. The Congressional Record is usually carefully composed and proofread, but when Mr. Keefe looked over his speech as printed in the Record the following day he found out that long passages had been transposed into a speech on an entirely unrelated subject by Rep. Wigglesworth. Thus Mr. Keefe's speech did not make sense when read, and 10 or 15 pages of the Record were so confused as to be unintelligible.

Passing over the possible reasons for this rather remarkable typographical jumble, Mr. Keefe had his speech reprinted in full in the next day's Record. Here is what he had to say about Sabath's doings:

From John W. Martin, administrative assistant to the secretary of war, Mr. Keefe learned that the war department pamphlet used by Sabath was an outline of a talk for army orientation officers. Its subject had nothing to do with "Native Fascism," as Sabath titled it, but was merely "fascism"—the kind found in Italy and Germany. Sabath also invented a series of subtitles not found in the army pamphlet. Among them were "Fascism and Business," "Financial Interests Behind Fascism," "Why Fascists Are Anti-Union," "Can It Happen Here?" "United States Has 100 Per Cent American Fascists," "Can We Spot It?" In addition to these liberties, Sabath took pains to omit passages from the war department pamphlet which would have embarrassed his attempts at perversion of the facts.

Thus the "gentleman from Illinois," hiding not only behind his congressional immunity, but, thru the device of extending his remarks, evading the obligation to substantiate his slander in open debate, proceeded to smear a group of American business men whose common characteristic was opposition to the New Deal. "The purpose," said Mr. Keefe, "is not only clear but it is highly insidious. He intended to convey to the reader that the war department had information, O, yes, more than that—that the war department had evidence to the effect that those whom he mentioned are in fact Fascists."

All but two of the men Sabath mentioned are in war production for their country. "The war and navy departments," said Mr. Keefe, "have repeatedly recommended the efficiency, the patriotism, and the honor of these men and their employes by constantly awarding army and navy 'E' awards to them.

"Of course," continued Mr. Keefe, "if the purpose of the gentleman was to undermine the confidence of the American people in American industry, he will neither press his charges nor correct them. He will be content with the thought that he has taken an effective step toward the creation of the very prejudice which he deprecates so eloquently, and, at the same time, has in large measure helped to destroy the possibility of our industry absorbing the millions who will need employment in the post-war period, and thus pave the way for state socialism."

We feel, with Mr. Keefe, that Sabath deserves nothing but contempt from his colleagues and the people. His covert incitation to social strife while the country is engaged in war deserves the official condemnation of the committee on un-American activities.

MR. PEPYS SWELTERS

30th June—So summer comes in a smothering wave of hotness, wetness, thunder, and lightning, with maybe a little brimstone, and it's what I have been hollering for during the last six months, but now I don't like it. My present opinion is that summer is a dopey, sticky season in which I never have much fun in town, and that its reputation, except for growing things to eat, has been exaggerated.

Talked with a sailor lad who sat beside me on an elevated train, and he was ready to swoon from the heat. He invited me to consider the dreadfulness of his blue seagoing togs, which he said were made of stuff that weighs 18 ounces to the yard. A civilian, shivering in winter, would have trouble in finding a suit so heavy, even in Minneapolis. Maybe by this time that sailor has changed into his cooler whites, by command, or else has been shipped to Alaska. Am sure he will go far, because he is the only fellow I ever met outside the garment trade who could discourse intelligently upon the weights of textiles in men's apparel.

Sallied forth at midnight a week ago to celebrate the 25th anniversary of this paper's city editor, Don Maxwell, who is by no means as old as that sounds. The party, 150 strong, had ample supplies of food, drink, comedians, and orators, and ran full steam ahead until the dawn came up like headaches along Madison st. On going to and departing from this auspicious occasion, I noted that street life on Saturday nights in the loop deserves a chapter in somebody's secret history of the war.

LAKESIDE VACATION

And where is now the city's roar,
The smoky sky, the noisy street?
I hear the cries of men no more,
I hear no more the tread of feet.
Here is my home, with joy replete,
My shelter from corroding care.
Here heaven and earth in concord meet;
Here is my own, my native air.

Upon this pleasant rural shore
The waters from the city beat,
But tho with violence they pour
They cannot reach my high retreat.
Afar the city's noise and heat,
I have today no traffic there.
For me, released, all life is sweet
And earth is but a heavenly stair.

O friend, on whom life's tumults beat,
These breezes will devour all care.
Here, here, afar from any street

The Generous War Gardener

He accosted the man who was standing by a war garden:

"That's a nice bed of lettuce."

"Yes, it looks pretty good, doesn't it?"

"I suppose the cool, wet weather has helped."

"No doubt about it."

"Isn't it likely that some of it will go to seed and be wasted?"

"Yes, I think that's probable."

"Well, you may think I've got a lot of nerve, but would you mind if I took a mess home?"

"I haven't the slightest objection."

He got busy with his pocketknife, filled his newspaper, and then said:

"Thanks. Incidentally, what variety of lettuce is this?"

"I can't answer that. Why not ask the owner of the garden?" W. L. Hudson

THE SPAN OF LIFE

If you would see the span of life unfold,
Follow a river's course from start to end;
Its birth is from a sun-flecked mother pool,
From this, a slender stream, it seeks the bend
That lies ahead where wider vistas stretch,
Rounding a curve it leaps in swift delight
At its own pace. It plays with water bugs,
Chuckles and sings, then on thru dancing light
To distant waterfalls whose thunder speaks
A language that has magical allure;
It hurls itself with wild abandon now,
Down and down, mating with wind and rain, sure
Of its new found strength, careless of manmade bars;
It falls to unplumbed depths, a whirlpool swing,
Then ripples on its way with steady flow
To reach far distant bays where thrushes sing;
From opalescent shade it will emerge
To mingle with the ocean's mighty surge.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

I. writes: "I have heard that service men with certain credits will be given high school diplomas after discharge so they can enter college, even tho they may have had only one year of high school work. Is this true?"

Boards of education in some cities allow credit toward graduation from high school for certain courses which veterans have passed successfully in service schools and for basic training. Veterans eligible for education under the GI bill may return to high school or attend a trade school or college, but those who go to college will have to pass the required entrance examination of the college they choose, or at least provide proof of sufficient high school credits to entitle them to enter.

G. B. asks: "If a veteran obtains unemployment compensation for 10 months at the rate of $100 a month because he is self-employed as a farmer, would this $1,000 be charged against his account in the future in the event that some sort of bonus bill is passed?"

Section 1505 of the GI bill says: "In the event there shall hereafter be authorized any allowance in the nature of adjusted compensation, any benefits received by, or paid for, any veteran under this act shall be charged against and deducted from such adjusted compensation; and in the event a veteran has obtained a loan under terms of this act, the agency disbursing such adjusted compensation shall first pay the unpaid balance and accrued interest due . . . to the extent that the adjusted compensation will permit."

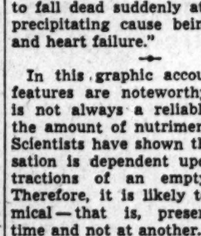
THE EFFECTS OF PROLONGED HUNGER

THE role that food has played in this war is evident. Almost every day we read of some aspect of it in the newspapers. In the United States, rationing is a constant topic of conversation. Red points have become so valuable that they have been added to the list of things that money cannot buy. In the battle scarred nations, conditions are even worse. Famine is widespread and shortages include many items of which we have an abundant supply.



Other than the pictures we have seen, many of us are not familiar with the mental and physical deterioration that follows such a situation. Goodman recently quoted a description of malnutrition by a physician from one of the allied countries.

"Hunger," this observer says, "is not felt until the inadequate diet has lasted four to six weeks; but this phase gives way after a few months to weakness and, when this stage is reached, hunger is only felt for a few minutes at a time after finishing a meal. Loss of weight, and particularly of fat, leaves the muscle contours standing out. The skin becomes thin and flaky, especially on the buttocks, so that this region should be examined early for evidence of starvation. Abscesses develop readily.

"Edema may give a false impression of fatness; thus the faces of children look pale and doughy, whereas after feeding for a few days, they become lean and rosy. Watery diarrhea, a dry tongue, and dyspepsia are common; the teeth decay. Potency is diminished and menstruation repressed. Memory becomes defective; thus seasoned chess players find the game too much for them and take to the simplest card games. A state of torpor grows in which the only interest is food. People are liable to fall dead suddenly at work, the precipitating cause being diarrhea and heart failure."

In this graphic account, several features are noteworthy. Hunger is not always a reliable guide to the amount of nutriment required. Scientists have shown that the sensation is dependent upon the contractions of an empty stomach. Therefore, it is likely to be rhythmical—that is, present at one time and not at another. It is obvious that mature individuals suffer less than the young who are in the process of growth. Just imagine the effect of undernourishment on the boy or girl who is expected to gain considerable weight and grow three to six inches in a year.

Puffiness of the tissues is due primarily to lack of proteins and may appear early inasmuch as this type of edible is more difficult to obtain in periods of conflict. These sufferers are able to secure some rations, but the proportion is far below the needs of the body and consist mainly of carbohydrates found in potatoes and bread. Protein is important also in maintaining resistance as this substance assists in the formation of the vital antibodies which protect us from disease.

Lastly, the reduced diet not only lowers physical strength but depresses the mental faculties. As a result, the victims become sluggish, ill tempered, and often violent. This may account for revolutionary tendencies altho, after a certain point is reached, many show enthusiasm only for eating.

Food means power. Let us use it wisely.

DISSIMILAR

W. R. writes: What is the difference between secondary and pernicious anemia?

REPLY

The latter refers to a specific disorder, of unknown cause, in which the body is lacking in the substance necessary to make red blood cells mature. The former means a low iron content of the blood and is so named because it was originally considered to be secondary to hemorrhage, infections, lack of stomach acids, etc.

FRECKLY FACED

M. L. writes: During the summer I have so many freckles on my face that I hate to look any one in the eyes. I stay out of the sun as much as possible. What else can I do?

REPLY

Wear large brimmed hats and cover the face generously with cosmetics. Treatment is unsatisfactory, altho several creams are available which will hide the blemishes. You should not be self-conscious as your appearance is less important to others than you think.

That Old Post-War Again

It is improbable that the human mind can either retain or gain any stability when [and if] the post-war world becomes reality. Too many promised wonders will beset it. These range from a slot machine in every home, which will enable you to lose money to yourself, to the latest development in the post-war's streamlined toothbrush division: a fountain toothbrush. The latter will go that vacuum cleaner slogan one better, for it will bubble as it beats as it sweeps as it cleans and presumably will work whether the teeth are worn or carried.

This department feels the same way about that all-white-meat chicken the poultry men are promising us for the post-war. We don't want it. Chickens long have been denatured beyond endurance. They are fed milk and curds instead of sunflower seeds, have lost their crow, and during their brief, stuffed life are perched up on wire nets so that their feet never touch the ground. The result is going to be that the drumstick is going to end up with the horse's toes. Where, where, are the horse's toes today? They vanished from disuse. Now not only must the chicken leg vanish, too, but the stump that remains is to be turned to white meat. Then, may we ask, what does one feed the minister when he comes to dinner?

In a favorite book of childhood, a sad melancholy book in which the poor never got any richer but braced themselves from vicissitude to vicissitude with proverbs, the drumsticks from Sunday dinner's chicken always were given to the visiting minister and his wife. This was because the father of the family, an old reprobate, didn't like the drumstick himself, but, by giving it to the minister, made his children fight for it. This same autocrat gave his large brood a weekly sales talk on the savory delights of the chicken neck. It was his only lapse into lyricism and ranked, in a minor key, with Lamb's dissertation on roast pig. Just as Lamb made his every reader water at the mouth for roast pig [and the honest eater must admit that it consists only of far too many blobs of fat], so this father's praises of the chicken neck had his children begging for it and doing all sorts of distasteful little chores to win it as their reward. The father then would say, in bitter disappointment, that he guessed he would have to eat the breast. Every one felt sorry for him and marveled at his generosity in giving away the succulent neck.

This state of affairs must exist in many American households. What are they going to do when the chicken is all white meat? Why not, instead, breed a hydra-headed chicken, one with a neck for each member of a family of six? Or, for families who like to pick up their chicken and eat it, change a centipede into a chicken so that there will be drumsticks forever.

For countless decades the cleavage among chicken eaters has been sharp. A dark meat eater will bore you for hours, if permitted, with adjectives extoling its wonder. The breast eaters are equally fierce. Altogether, this is a fine way to get started on that international amity. Good will begins in the home, see?

Moreover, making the chicken into one big breast is sure to do something terrible to the wishbone. Either it will be so large and tough that no one can break it, or it will become as hard to find as the vermiform appendix. Of course, no one is going to need a wishbone in our post-war world, for all wishes will come true, but there are some of us, members of the disdained school of imaginative thought, who will miss it badly.

In the Mail

"It says in the paper [and in your column, which almost tempted me to believe it] that the rich Morocco binding of the charter offering eternal peace to this battered world is 'tooled with 14 carat gold.' That would be gold of such gross impurity as to suggest that the binder had no faith in the permanent importance of the document. Better gold than 14 carat is used in stamping a $6.47 briefcase, and any self-respecting binder will tell you that gold of less than 23 carats is an insult to good leather." —HG2.

THE LEGISLATURE'S RECORD

Jacksonville, Ill., June 25—Our legislature at Springfield has taken advantage of a very generous governor to put over three very attractive bills for their special benefit. First, they have raised their mileage allowance from five to 10 cents. Second, they tried to raise their salaries for the biennium from $5,000 to $7,500, but finally compromised on $6,000, which the governor apparently has agreed to approve. Only one other state in the Union pays $5,000.

But their most generous act in their own behalf is the passage of the so-called pension bill, which may yield as much as $1,500 per annum for every legislator reaching a certain age and having served a specified time. This pension would be payable for the rest of their lives. This bill would be all right if it could be made to apply to every citizen in the state, who is obliged to raise the money to pay the bills. It is incredible in this time of overwhelming federal taxes that a body of so-called honorable patriotic citizens should make such an outrageous steal on our public treasury. But apparently the governor is for them.

Never in the history of any state has such an outlandish, predatory, inconceivable spending program been put up for the taxpayers to meet as the one now being fostered by Gov. Green. Many attempts have been made by small minorities in both houses to curb his proposed extravagances, all of which have been cast out by a very wholesome majority. The Taxpayers Federation of Illinois has put up an intelligent fight in figures and facts to show up the extravagances proposed, to no avail.

Apparently, the taxpayers of Illinois are sold out by the governor and his large following in both houses. There is no escape for the taxpayers from the combination now organized against them. If the governor insists on approving these generous benefits for our legislators, then it is high time that the people of Illinois awake from their sleep of indifference and see to it that every man who has participated in this special steal be allowed to stay at home the rest of his life and allow men of higher standards of thought and public service to make our laws and run the state institutions. OUTDOOR LIBRARY

Chicago, June 14—Re the controversy between the public library and the G. A. R.; we all appreciate this city is growing and that consequently the library must expand and grow with it. The G. A. R. is a disappearing factor and has slight use for the rooms in the library it has been occupying.

The proper thing at this time is to enlarge the facilities of the library. The writer suggests the use of the north end of Grant park in the summer time, where large parasols and summer chairs could be placed for these readers. The library should not at this time have to rent space in the vicinity as it is now doing. A. V. KONSBERG

NO WONDER THEY JUMPED

Chicago, June 18—Saturday night in a cafe of a Michigan City hotel, which was crowded with Chicago yachtsmen attending the annual Michican City race, two navy chief aviation mates—each with two rows of service ribbons, one with four and the other with five stars—were seated at a table trying to enjoy their dinner.

An inconsiderate smart alec lit a bunch of firecrackers and threw them under their table. Many of the group seemed to take great joy in the apparent terror and distress of these two men who had long been under fire. Is this the consideration real heroes should have? C. STRATTON

THE ARMY'S POLICY

Chicago, June 27—It seems very unfortunate to those of us who do not believe in segregation that the south side meeting held recently to protest against the objections to the Negro WAC encampment in Burnham park should have endorsed Secretary Stimson's refusal to remove the Negro WACs without calling attention to the basic difficulty for which Secretary Stimson is himself responsible, the army segregation policies. That is, the real difficulty about the very trim Negro WAC encampment and the nice looking Negro WACs, who come and go from the encampment, is the fact that the WAC should not have segregated Negro units. As long as segregation exists in such basic policies as army organization, there will be many difficulties as a result. Therefore, why should those of us who object to segregation praise the secretary of war who is responsible for it? EDITH ABBOTT

RECOGNIZES THE SYMPTOMS

GERMANY, June 14—I see in THE TRIBUNE of May 18 an account of an East Chicago teacher in danger of losing her job for saying something against the late President Roosevelt. When I hear of things like that happening in the United States I wonder what we are doing over here telling these people how to live. That is what we are fighting for—so people can do and say what they please. Such bans on free speech were enforced here by the SS and Gestapo when there was any criticism of Hitler. The Lord help us when such things get started in the United States. Since I have been overseas I have become a firm believer in a verse in the Bible that goes something like this: "Devour not your enemies, lest you become as they."

FORMULA FOR WAR

Hillside, Ill., June 11—One of the odd achievements of the San Francisco internationalists' jamboree is the delusion being sold to the public that wars are caused by two countries: Japan and Germany. Nothing could be further from the truth. Wars can start from any one of a hundred situations, complications, ideologies, and aberrations made by man or nature. All we need in the United States to get into a tragic world war is this simple formula: Dear Old Mother England in a jam, plus an Anglophile President, plus a zombie yes man congress, and here it is: one million American casualties and in the red 300 billion dollars.

FEDERAL AUTO TAX DEADLINE IS TOMORROW

Only half of the 500,000 automobile owners in this district have purchased their $5 federal use tax stamp, Nigel D. Campbell, collector of internal revenue, said yesterday. Tomorrow is the deadline, and those failing to display such stamps will be subject to criminal prosecution, he warned.

Beginning Monday, special squads of deputies will issue summonses to owners whose cars and trucks do not display the stamp, the collector said. Names of those failing to heed the summonses will be turned over to the United States attorney for action. The stamp must be prominently displayed on the windshield.

The stamps are on sale at the main and branch offices of the collector as well as all postoffices.

SOLDIER'S WIFE BURNS TO DEATH IN APARTMENT

An inquest will be held today at 1850 N. Wood st. into the death of Mrs. Harriet Costello, 30, of 1625 Homer st., who died in St. Elizabeth's hospital yesterday of burns. These were suffered when her clothing caught fire as she cleaned an oil stove in her apartment.

Her husband, Robert, an army private, has been overseas for two years.

Inquiry also is set for today into the death of Arnette Johnson, 2, of 6821 Dorchester av., who died early yesterday in Jackson Park hospital of burns. Police said she climbed into a bathtub full of hot water.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

June 29, 1945

FIELD test of two weed-killing chemicals is being made in a two acre plot on the Wheaton farm. The field was seeded to oats this spring, and some clover and timothy were planted at the same time, but the field is so heavily infested with Canada thistle and other pests that the farm manager decided to use it as a test area to determine the effectiveness of chemical weed killers.

Field Sinox [sodium dinitro ortho cresylate], a formula similar to the one being used to eradicate weeds in a lawn test has been sprayed on the north one-third of the field. Dow selective weed killer formula G-506, containing ammonium salt of dinitro-ortho-secondary butyl phenol, has been sprayed on the south one-third.

One Area Untreated

The center section will be left untreated to serve purposes of comparison.

A 100 gallon spraying outfit, formerly used only for spraying the farm fruit trees, is being used in the field test. The application was made June 27, when weather conditions were ideal.

There are at least nine varieties of weeds in the two acre field. These are bindweed, burdock, plantain, curled dock, Canada thistle, dandelions, wild mustard, ragweed, and milkweed. The two most troublesome growths under field conditions are Canada thistle and wild mustard, and it is these two that the farm manager will watch most closely.

Crop Soil Unharmed

If the chemicals will kill thistle and mustard in the fields without damaging oats, alfalfa, corn, and other crops, they will have a permanent place in the farm manager's future plans. Neither of the chemicals sterilizes the soil nor affects the ground for later crops.

Spraying of entire fields is comparatively new, altho this method of weed destruction has been used on a large scale in California onion fields. It is anticipated that a spray also will be developed to kill potato vines after the tubers have matured. This will help avoid late season blight and also eliminate the nuisance of vines clogging mechanical potato digging equipment.

Hay fever sufferers also may benefit from development of weed killing chemicals. Lesser ragweed, the main cause of hay fever in most areas, probably can be killed by the chemicals being used on the farm. If so, community and state spraying campaigns may be the key to future elimination of ragweed hay fever.

★ The GARDEN ★

THIS week-end provides the final period for making major plantings of sweet corn; even now there is danger that corn planted at this time may fail to mature if there are late September frosts. The gardener on the Wheaton farm will make a final planting of Golden Bantam in the first week of July. This crop usually matures, but several seasons a small planting made in early July has been damaged by frost.

Any corn with a maturity period of less than 85 days should mature if planted in the next five days. Golden Bantam requires 80 days and Golden Sunshine variety [open pollinated] has a maturity period of 74 days. Of the hybrid varieties, Lincoln, Golden Cross, Marcross, Spancross, and Top Flight Bantam all mature in 85 days or less.

Varieties to be avoided for late planting, because of their long maturity periods, are Stowell's Evergreen, Ioana, Bantam-Evergreen, White Evergreen, and Country Gentleman.

SHAW BACKS A RED; CHURCHILL, HE SAYS, TALKS 'NONSENSE'

LONDON, June 29 (AP)—George Bernard Shaw, the playwright, said today that Prime Minister Churchill was talking "arrant nonsense" about communism and declared that "practical British communism saved us in the war in the west."

Shaw, who is 87, voiced this view in a letter endorsing R. P. Dutt, vice chairman of the Communist party, for parliament in the Sparkbrook district, Birmingham.

"You call yourself a Communist," Shaw wrote. "And so do I," he added. "So would all the others if they understood that our practical British communism has saved us in the war in the west, just as Russian communism, which the Russians learned from England, has saved us in the east.

"I hope there will be enough good sense in the Sparkbrook district people to see that what you have to say about it [communism] is plain common sense and that what Mr. Churchill is saying about it is arrant nonsense, like his pious protest against 'violence' after spending 12,000,000 pounds [$48,000,000] a day for five years in the most frightful form of violence in the history of mankind."

War Memorials Bill Sidetracked in Senate

Springfield, Ill., June 29 [Special]—The senate today killed a bill to establish a war memorials commission by placing it as a special order of business for "high noon on July 4," which will be 84 hours after the legislature adjourns. Chicago and Springfield legislators, hoping to get elaborate memorials to World War II. dead, had joined in sponsoring the bill. Senators from 31 other cities refused to vote for it.

MEETING NEAR ON RETURN OF TANGIER STATUS

LONDON, June 29 (AP)—A British foreign office commentator confirmed today reports the time and place will be set soon for an international conference on the return of Tangier to its former international status.

A responsible source said there was a strong possibility that Spain will be excluded from the deliberations. The commentator declined to disclose what countries would be invited to participate.

Britain, France, and the United States were reported to have taken the position that Spain sacrificed her right to attend the meeting as a result of her unilateral act of 1940 in occupying the strategic port area near the west entrance to the strait of Gibraltar.

GROCER SLAYER TO SEEK PAROLE AFTER 13 YEARS

Stanley Szymilfijnik who has served 13 years of a life sentence for the holdup murder of a grocer in 1932, will apply for executive clemency before the parole board on July 10, it was announced yesterday. Szymilfijnik, whose crossed eyes led to his arrest, was a member of a gang that committed a series of robberies ending in the holdup murder of Adolph Caravetta in his grocery at 736 N. Damen av.

STATE WELFARE BOARD'S LABORS 'USELESS'; QUITS

Members of the Illinois board of public welfare commissioners yesterday tendered their resignation to Gov. Green, giving the explanation that "no useful purpose can be served by our remaining in office."

The board serves as an advisory group to the department of public welfare. The members are Dr. Julius Hess, 205 E. 50th st.; Judge J. E. Fleming of East St. Louis, and Miss Mary E. Humphrey of Springfield.

In a letter to Gov. Green the board wrote "We have finally concluded that no useful purpose can be served by our remaining in office. We urge that the steps taken during our tenure to reorganize and staff the department for better service to the people of Illinois be preserved and advanced. If we thought it possible to protect progress already achieved and planned, we would not be submitting our resignation."

WILD WELCOME GIVEN 14,860 AS 'QUEEN' DOCKS

New York, June 29 (AP)—New York harbor went wild today, giving a thunderous welcome to 14,860 soldiers and sailors crowded aboard the largest liner in the world, the Queen Elizabeth.

Cheers, swing music and the deep blasts of boat whistles greeted the shouting, excited troops as the giant queen took shape thru the harbor mists. All harbor craft and the rusty, war battered freighters anchored in the bay saluted the great grey ship with three blasts of their whistles—and the majestic Queen Elizabeth returned each salute with her own deep throated roar.

Relatives Pack Ferries

Ferry boats crossing the harbor were packed with wives and mothers waving and weeping as they watched the return of their men.

The newly painted ship, built to carry 2,400 in peace time, docked opposite midtown Manhattan, and the long process of debarkation began. Troops were still pouring ashore late tonight.

Seven civilian passengers were aboard the vessel, including Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and Senators Russell [D., Ga.] and Maybank [D., S. C.].

The 13,658 army troops aboard were mostly personnel of the 8th air force and hospital units. There also were 1,202 naval officers and men on the ship.

The 446 army nurses who returned came from six hospitals in Germany, England, France, and Belgium. Dozens of them said they planned to be married during their furloughs.

Other Ships Dock

Other ships docking in the New York area today were the S. S. Darien and the S. S. Marine Ravine.

Troops of the 387th infantry regiment of the 97th division, who debarked from the Marine Raven at Piermont, N. Y., claim credit for the last American shot fired in the war.

This shot was said to have been fired May 10—Two days after V-E day—by an advance company of the regiment which encountered disorganized resistance deep in Czechoslovakia.

Maj. H. W. Thompson, San Bernardino, Cal., acted as spokesman in presenting the claim for the regiment's 143 officers and 2,829 enlisted men.

They were among 3,022 reassignment and rotation troops arriving on the Marine Raven.

Illinois Men Return

Miami, Fla., June 29 (AP)—The vanguard of the 5th division veterans, made up largely of Illinois men, was en route home today after arriving here via air transport command planes from overseas.

The men will go to Fort Sheridan, Ill., for reassignment or release under the army's redeployment plan.

14 GERMAN SUBS DESTROYED BY 5 NAVY AIR UNITS

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Five navy Liberator squadrons, units of the naval air force which operated under the coastal command of the British air force, destroyed 14 German submarines and inflicted damage on others, the navy reported today.

The units, patrol bombing squadrons 103, 105, 107, 110 and 112, comprising fleet air wing 7, have returned home after many months of patrol work in the anti-submarine campaign in the Atlantic. The navys' top scoring land based squadron in the Atlantic was squadron 107, which alone sank nine U-boats, probably sank two more, and did probable damage to 16.

Lt. Comdr. Bertram J. Prueher, Bloomer, Wis., former commander of squadron 107, lost his life when he was shot down while attacking two U-boats he sighted together. He succeeded in sinking one of them.

ARMY RELEASES COLONEL PHILIP R. LA FOLLETTE

Col. Philip R. La Follette, former governor of Wisconsin, was discharged from the army at Fort Sheridan yesterday with 135 points and 34 months overseas duty in the Pacific to his credit. He wears six battle stars and a Legion of Merit awarded to him by Gen. MacArthur.

As executive officer of public relations at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters, Col. La Follette led the advance party of 45 newspaper men into Leyte Oct. 20, 1944, and in the Lingayen gulf Jan. 9, 1945.

Col. La Follette entered service in March, 1942, and went overseas three months later. He has been spending a leave at his home, 2131 Van Hise av., Madison, Wis., while his discharge papers were being processed. He said he intends to resume his law practice in Madison.

TWO JAILBIRDS TAKEN IN CHASE AS BULLETS FLY

Two young men discharged from the county jail in the last 10 days after serving six month terms for burglary were captured in a stolen automobile eary yesterday after a mile chase thru west side streets in which police fired eight shots.

The prisoners are David Cruickshank, 17, of 4011 Arthington st., and Fred Delgenio, 17, of 4417 N. Lawndale av. Cruickshank had been out of jail less than 24 hours; Delgenio was released June 20.

Delgenio admitted stealing the car June 27 from a garage in the rear of the home of Mrs. Harriette Meyers, 3737 Eddy st., after finding the keys while taking $180 from her home.

PARIS, June 29 [AP]—Paris' municipal council ordered today that Avenue Victor Emmanuel, one of the city's main streets, be renamed du President Roosevelt.

SAILOR'S BRIDE, 18, AND ESCORT, ARE FINED $200

A bobby socks bride of 18 ran head on into the law yesterday, after she announced that her love for her husband of six months, now fighting with the navy in the Pacific, had ended and that she was seeking a divorce. The bride, Mrs. Doris Throw of 5509 Greenwood av., was charged with disorderly conduct on the complaint of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Throw, 915 E. 55th st.

Mrs. Doris Throw

Arrested on a similar charge was John C. Williams, 22, of 5610 Maryland av., an inspector in a radio factory engaged in war work, who recently was discharged from the army after 15 months overseas. The bride said that while they had been keeping company there was nothing improper in their relations. "I wrote to my husband and asked him for a divorce," she told Judge Joseph B. Hermes in the Grand Crossing court.

Judge Hermes declared it was unfair to her husband, Henry Throw, seaman 2d class, while he is fighting for his country and imposed suspended fines of $200 and continued the case until July 12 against the bride and Williams. He ordered a psychiatric test for the bride. Mrs. Mary Throw said she had filed suit in Superior court to annul the marriage. The bride was formerly Doris Provencher of Long Beach, Cal., where she met and married her husband.

TELEPHONE SERVICE

with

Extended for Social Use

EFFECTIVE JULY 1

Overseas telephone service between the United States and Italy will be extended to include social calls in addition to the official and press messages formerly handled. Business calls cannot be accepted at this time.

Because of conditions in Italy, it will be necessary for persons in Rome to go to a central location to talk with the United States. Initially, calls from this country to Italy will require advance arrangements by correspondence with the persons to be called. Later it is planned that individuals receiving calls from the United States will be summoned to the central location.

The charge for a three minute call from Chicago to Italy is reduced from $26.25 to $12, effective July 1. On the same date the rate to Switzerland is also reduced to $12.

BISHOP TO OPEN CAMP MEETING OF METHODISTS

Program at Des Plaines to Emphasize Youth

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

Bishop Schuyler E. Garth of Madison, Wis., will open the 86th annual summer assembly on the Methodist camp ground at Des Plaines tomorrow morning. Continuing over a two week period, the program will place emphasis on youth. Nationally known leaders will appear in the famous old open air tabernacle.

The Rev. Allen Porter McCaul of Wheadon Methodist church, Evanston, will direct the youth activities during the period which will be marked by Sunday night programs. Special all-afternoon schedules of games and swimming are featured. Next Saturday night a wiener roast will be followed by a great campfire service. The All-Rock River [northern Illinois] conference youth orchestra will be a feature of youth meetings.

Bishop Magee to Speak

Dr. George Truman Carl of Park Ridge is the program director of the institute. He has announced that Pedro Krause, Mexican tenor; Beverly Shea, baritone, and Mr. and Mrs. Bethuel Gross, vocalists and instrumentalists, will assist in the musical program. Among speakers listed are Bishop Magee of the Methodist area of Chicago; Dr. Roy Short of Nashville, Tenn., editor of the Upper Room, devotional periodical; Bishop Bruce Baxter of Portland, Ore., and Dr. Don Householder of Los Angeles, Cal.

Women's Institute July 11-13

The Des Plaines institute of the Women's Society of Christian Service is scheduled for mornings of July 11, 12, and 13, under the deanship of Mrs. Oliver R. Aspegren of Evanston. Speakers will include Mrs. Wilbur M. Ale of Detroit, Mich., Mrs. T. Otto Nall of Evanston, Mrs. Thomas H. Ludlow of Riverside, Deaconess Ruth Main, Dr. Helen C. White of Madison, Wis., Dr. Horace G. Smith and Ernest F. Tittle of Evanston, and Dr. Robert B. Pierce of Glencoe.

A feature of the musical program will be a concert by the Lindblom choir Sunday, July 8, under the direction of Jewel Martin Lovejoy, director of the Wesley Memorial hospital nurses' choir.

TRAFFIC DEATHS RISE IN CHICAGO, DOWN IN NATION

Traffic deaths thruout the country for the first five months of the year were 9,240, compared with 9,540 for the same period last year, the National Safety council reported yesterday. In May there were 1,760 deaths, against 1,730 in May, 1944. Illinois showed a 3 per cent decrease in the five month period, with 540 deaths this year and 556 last year. Chicago had 182 deaths for the five month period this year and 169 last year.

Religious News Notes

Beginning Monday, 25,000 Protestant and 14,000 Roman Catholic children will start in daily vacation church schools. While many Protestant schools already are in operation, July 2 will be the formal opening. Information on curricula may be obtained from the Church Federation of Greater Chicago and the Catholic Youth organization. . . . The Rev. Dr. John C. Hoekendyk, organizer of Holland's underground resistance to Nazi occupation, will speak on the awakening of the churches in Europe in Bethany Reformed church, Perry av. and 111th pl., tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. in Dutch and at 9:15 p. m. in English. Dr. Hoekendyk, senior chaplain to the Netherlands army, is en route to the East Indies.

The Most Rev. Basil Takach, prelate of the Greek rite Catholics in the United States, will be celebrant at the mass according to the Greek Slavonic rite at 10 a. m. Wednesday in Holy Name cathedral. Archbishop Stritch will preside and preach. At 2 p. m. in the cathedral hall the theological oriental conference of the fourth annual Slav-Unity day will be welcomed by the Rt. Rev. Procopius Neuzil, O. S. B., on behalf of the abbey at Lisle, which is sponsoring the conference. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph P. Morrison, rector of the cathedral, will be chairman of the program. . . . The International Lutheran hour preacher tomorrow will be the Rev. Walter F. Troeger, pastor of Pilgrim Lutheran church, Santa Monica, Cal.

The summer school for Presbyterian youth at Westminster lodge, Saugatuck, Mich., will open Thursday under the direction of the Rev. Albert Hjerpe, Second Presbyterian church, Evanston. . . . Complying with the request of the Church Peace union, the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey will preach on the significance of the San Francisco charter tomorrow morning in Rockefeller Memorial chapel of the University of Chicago.

Fred Morelli, president of St. John's conference of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, will preside at the flag dedication service to be held at noon tomorrow in Old St. John's church yard, 100 W. 18th st. The ceremony will be sponsored by Bishop O'Brien, with the Reverends Thomas Reed, Richard St. John, and Joseph Lux of St. John's parish, coöperating. . . . The Rev. Dr. Frederick L. Barry, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, Evanston, will be consecrated bishop-coadjutor of Albany, N. Y., this morning in Albany's Cathedral of All Saints, by the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the American Episcopal church. Bishop Conkling of Chicago will preach.

Scholarship awards of $1,600 each will be conferred on Cynthia M. Smith of Olympia, Wash., and Robert Strand, West Allis, Wis., Monday night in the Picadilly Tea room by Alfred H. Avery of Cambridge, Mass., donor of the scholarships. The awards were granted as a part of National Youth week, Jan. 28 to Feb. 4, under auspices of the International Council of Religious Education. The Rev. Dr. Harold L. Bowman of First Presbyterian church will deliver the principal address. . . . The awards, known as the Parshad scholarships, were granted to youths thru the United Christian Youth movement to the boy and girl showing greatest evidence of Christian service and responsibility. State winners were Richard B. Vollmer, 1645 N. Monticello av., and Shirley Jean Collis, 723 Emerson st.

Methodists of the nation have contributed $5,803,049 to the World service fund of the church for missionary and educational work in the fiscal year ending May 31. The Rev. Dr. Thomas Lugg, treasurer of the fund, has announced this amount is an increase of 6.7 per cent over that given the previous year. . . . The Rt. Rev. Edwin J. Randall, suffragan bishop of the Episcopal diocese, will be the principal speaker at the 11th annual diocesan outing, sponsored by the Episcopal order of Pencemen tomorrow in Forest Glen Woods.

Assyrians of Chicago will honor Patriarch Mar Eshai Shimun XXIII of the Church of the East with a banquet tomorrow night in the Germania club celebrating the 25th anniversary of his consecration. "Mar" is equivalent to the title Lord, and "Eshai Shimun" is the Assyrian for Jesse Simon. The present patriarch is the 119th in succession from the Apostolic church. In 1250 A. D. the Church of the East, which prescribes a celibate priesthood, enacted that the patriarchate should be hereditary, descending by primogeniture from uncle to nephew. Consequently, Mar Eshai is the 22d prelate in the Shimun family, which has held its titular supremacy now for almost seven centuries.

INSTALL BARRY FOR EPISCOPAL POST IN ALBANY

Albany, N. Y., June 29 [Special]—The Rev. Frederick L. Barry, former rector of St. Luke's church, Evanston, Ill., today became bishop coadjutor of the 77 year old Episcopal diocese of Albany. He received the "laying on of hands" from eight bishops in All Saints cathedral. The Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the Episcopal church, was chief consecrator.

Dr. Barry will assist Bishop G. Ashton Oldham, third bishop of the diocese, and eventually will succeed him. More than 200 clergymen joined in the processional.

The sermon was given by the Rt. Rev. Wallace E. Conkling, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, in the course of which he addressed the new bishop coadjutor, saying: "It will be your purpose to deepen the unity of your people to strive for holiness in the body of the faithful."

A. H. KREHBIEL, MURAL PAINTER, TEACHER, DIES

Albert H. Krehbiel, 70, mural painter and teacher, died yesterday in St. Francis hospital, Evanston. His home was at 325 Touhy av., Park Ridge.

Mr. Krehbiel was a member of the faculty of the Art institute and professor of drawing in the architectural department of the Illinois Institute of Technology. He had studied at the Julien academy in Paris, where he won four gold medals for his work.

He had exhibited in Europe and had won the Municipal Art league prize, the Clyde Carr prize, and was chosen in competition to do the murals at the State Supreme Court building in Springfield. Mr. Krehbiel conducted a summer school in Saugatuck, Mich. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Dulah Evans Krehbiel, and a son, Evans Krehbiel.

ACT TO CONTEST $250,000 WILL OF SLUM DWELLER

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday impounded the will of Chelestino [Chester] Chiesa, 69, a flophouse dweller who left an estate of close to $250,000 when he died a week ago. The will was impounded at the request of Public Administrator John T. Dempsey, who said that a contest may be made by 13 nieces and nephews of Chiesa.

The will left the entire estate, including cash, securities, and real estate, to the Catholic archbishop of Chicago for the poor. Jack Rubens, investigator for the public administrator, said he believes all of Chiesa's wealth has not been found.

OBITUARIES

JAIL SENTENCE GIVEN STUDENT IN AUTO DEATH

Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court yesterday sentenced Roger Olson, 22, of 1236 Astor st., to six months in the county jail on a charge of manslaughter in the automobile death last Sept. 23 of Patrick Coughlin, 17, of 1109 Loyola av.

Coughlin, son of Police Lt. Patrick J. Coughlin, was killed when he was struck by Olson's automobile at Sheridan rd., and North Shore av. Evidence at the trial showed Olson had been drinking and was driving at 50 miles an hour.

In court both Lt. Coughlin and his wife said they did not believe Olson should be sent to jail. They said they favored probation. Judge Ward ruled that after serving the jail term, Olson would be placed on probation for three years. Olson is a student at the Walton school of commerce.

Second child, a boy, also found in home.

A baby's cries, heard by neighbors, led North av. police last night to a basement flat at 1352 N. Leavitt st., occupied by Mrs. Eleanor Lebiedz, wife of a soldier.

The baby was still screaming when Detectives Jack Lerner and Robert Fisher arrived. They broke in. They found Joan Lebiedz, 2 or 2½ years old, a helpless prisoner in her crib. She was tied in a military barracks bag up to her armpits, and the two cords of the bag were tied to opposite sides of the crib. Whenever she moved, the policemen said, the bag tightened around her chest.

In a rear bedroom police found a 3 year old boy who appeared suffering from a cold and malnutrition. Neighbors said they did not know whether he was Mrs. Lebiedz's son or the child of one of two other women who also resided there.

Police took both children to the Juvenile home, then posted a detail to await Mrs. Lebiedz's return. Neighbors told them that she often came home at 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning. Police records show that a younger child, John, six months old, died of pneumonia in his crib April 26, Lt. Le Roy Steffens said.

REFORM ILLINOIS PROBATION LAW, CITY CLUB ASKS

The social and welfare committee of the City Club of Chicago yesterday completed a report urging that the probation laws of Illinois be overhauled. The committee, after an investigation of months, found that the state probation laws were not used adequately or equitably.

The committee recommended that as a basic reform a pre-sentence social investigation be made in all cases after the determination of guilt. "This is necessary if the sentence is to be based on adequate information," the report stated.

Sally Glaser's Engagement Is Announced

BY JUDITH CASS

At a cocktail party today in their winter home, Strawberry Hill at Pebble Beach, Cal., Mr. and Mrs. James M. R. Glaser of Glencoe are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Sarah Louise, to Lt. Hartley Chamberlain Dewey of the army air forces, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hartley Dewey of Beverly Hills, Cal. Mr. Glaser went west for the party. His wife and children will return to Glencoe the middle of July to start making plans for the wedding, which will take place in September in that suburb.

Miss Glaser, who always is called Sally, is the oldest of five children. She attended the North Shore Country Day school and Vassar college and made her debut several seasons ago at a gala outdoor party in Glencoe. She and her fiancé have known each other for some time, as their families have been friends for years.

Lt. Dewey left Cornell university, at which he was a member of the class of 1942, to enter the service. He is stationed in Victorville, Cal.

Birth Announcement

From Washington, D. C., where Lt. George W. Ryerson has been stationed with the naval reserve since February, comes news of the birth of the Ryersons' second daughter and third child June 23 in Georgetown University hospital. The baby, who has been named Ann Dorothea, and her sister and brother, Phoebe Stewart and John Albert, are grandchildren of George B. Massey of Winnetka and of Mrs. John A. Ryerson of Evanston. Young Mrs. Ryerson is the former Phoebe Massey.

Debutante Notes

One of Miss Rosalind Oates' Bryn Mawr classmates, Miss Barbara Thompson of New Canaan, Conn., has come from the east to be one of Miss Oates' assistants at an informal debut tea which her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Oates Jr., will give from 4 to 7 p. m. today in their Lake Forest home. The debutante and her parents will receive in the living room, and if weather permits the guests will be able to gather on the lawn as well. Also among the assistants, who will stay on later for a small supper, are Miss Alice Bentley, Miss Barbara King, Miss Winston Holliday, Miss Joan Clement, Miss Peggy Whipple, and Miss Joan Burgess.

Mr. and Mrs. G. William Reynolds of Lake Shore dr. have reserved Dec. 23 for a debut party in the Racquet club for their younger daughter, Katherine. The debutante, who is called Kay, was graduated from the Girls' Latin school and will go east to school in the fall. Her older sister, Margo, attends Sarah Lawrence.

Miss Betsy Shanklin, a former young Winnetkan now living in Syracuse, N. Y., with her parents, the Arthur T. Shanklins, will return to Chicago to make her debut at a luncheon which her aunt, Mrs. Dwight P. Green, will give Sept. 4 in the Indian Hill club. Miss Shanklin attends Mount Holyoke college.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Howard will entertain at swimming, dinner, and dancing tonight in the Glen View club for their debutante niece, Miss Carolyn Kuehnle, who will be presented to society at a tea Sept. 1 in the Winnetka home of her parents, the Carl F. Kuehnles.

Wedding News

Of interest to Chicagoans is news of the approaching marriage of Miss Antoinette Kniskern to Lt. Walter Hillyer Lundy of the naval reserve, which will take place Tuesday in the First Baptist church of Sylvester, Ga., with a reception following in the Albany, Ga., home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Walter Louis Lundy. Miss Kniskern is the daughter of John Pollock Kniskern of Willoughby, O., formerly of Hinsdale, and of Mme. Arnold Stahel, who now lives in Tunisia, and a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Kniskern of Chicago.

Miss Kniskern, who attended private schools in Scotland and in Tunis, made a dramatic escape from the approaching Germans at the time of the invasion of North Africa and was flown by United States war plane to Algiers. There she served as interpreter at allied headquarters until that office was closed and she was returned to America by army transport plane. Lt. Lundy, a graduate of the University of Georgia, served for two years in the Mediterranean area.

Week-End Calendar

The social events that crowd the calendar for this week-end offer such a wide range of diversions that one is almost sure to find some event among them to appeal to his tastes. Some of the happenings that will attract the largest gatherings:

The opening of the six week Ravinia festival season at 8:30 o'clock tonight in Ravinia park, with a concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, conducted by Désiré Defauw.

The third annual amateur horse show at the Knollwood Country club, opening at 10 a. m. tomorrow and continuing thruout the day. There will be a dinner-dance tonight in the club.

A two day sale opening at 10 a. m. today and tomorrow of the furnishings of the late Mrs. Albert B. Dick's home at 870 W. Deerpath rd., Lake Forest, left in Mrs. Dick's will to the Lake Forest hospital.

The opening of the National Clay Courts Tennis tournament at 2 p. m. today at the River Forest Tennis club, opening at 10 a. m. tomorrow July 8.

A tea which the John L. Doles and Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III. will give from 5 to 7 p. m. tomorrow in the Dunham Woods Riding club for Capt. and Mrs. Benyaurd Bourne Wygant, one of a series of parties planned so that Capt. Wygant may meet parents and prospective students of Elgin academy, of which he has been appointed new headmaster.

The annual swimming meet for the children of members of the Lake Forest Winter club at 3:30 p. m. today at the club.

Inquiring Camera Girl

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Joseph J. Gold, Brooklyn, N. Y.]

THE QUESTION

What in your opinion is the major cause of quarrels between husbands and wives?

WHERE ASKED

Illinois Central station at Randolph st.

THE ANSWERS

Mrs. Ralph Shank, housewife, 2626 164th pl., Hammond, Ind.—A man and a woman have enough good points about them to make them desirable but after they marry the picture changes. They start trying to reform each other. Then one gets his or her feelings hurt and tries to get even by returning an insult.

Mrs. Herbert Miller, designer, 2833 Cambridge av.—A contributing factor to many arguments is lack of patience and understanding. I know that's the trouble in my case. I make decisions before I know all the facts and won't let my husband explain. I take a negative attitude before I know what it's all about.

Everett Caton, bottler, Terre Haute, Ind.—Jealousy enters too many marriages. One gets jealous and starts to pout. The other doesn't know why the mate is pouting, but sets out to prove it doesn't make any difference. Misunderstanding naturally results. Anything can start an argument.

J. S. Hurlbut, advertising representative, 301 S. Park rd., La Grange —In families where there are children I would say the work of bringing up children causes most arguments. One parent might insist on obedience and the other parent, in front of the child, will dispute the soundness of the other's judgment.

Pvt. R. E. Housley, Pascagoula, Miss.—Getting along with any one in complete harmony is difficult. When two persons are constantly thrown together they are bound to disagree. This isn't grounds for a quarrel, however. The trouble with most couples is that they don't put forth an effort to avoid arguments.

Mrs. F. J. Plennert, bookkeeper, 6049 Winthrop av.—The majority of the people I know who argue, argue over money. The wife spends too much for clothes or not enough. The husband plays poker and bets on the horses or else is too tight with his money and never spends any for amusement, a trivial thing to argue about!

Mary Quinlan to Be Among Today's Brides

Miss Mary Ellin Quinlan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Quinlan of Winnetka, will be married to John M. Aasterud, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Aasterud of Pueblo, Colo., at 11 a. m. today in the Church of SS. Faith, Hope, and Charity in Winnetka, with a reception following in the Michigan Shores club. Miss Quinlan, who was graduated from Trinity college early this month, will have as bridesmaids two of her classmates, Miss Virginia Tormey of Madison, Wis., and Miss Ann Boggess of Ponca City, Okla.; Miss Jean Shanesy, and Miss Patricia Tubby. Miss Patricia Quinlan will be maid of honor for her sister, and their brother, John Charles Quinlan, will be the best man. Mr. Aasterud will take his bride to Pueblo to live.

In a ceremony at 8 o'clock tonight in the Union church of Hinsdale, Miss Mary McKinstry will become the bride of Lt. Evan O. Thomas Jr. of the army. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross W. McKinstry, will give a reception in the garden of their Hinsdale home following the wedding.

Miss McKinstry, who attended Scripps college and the Kingswood school, will have her roommate at the latter school, Miss Mary Schlosser of Defiance, O., as maid of honor. Miss Connie Brady of Saginaw, Mich., Miss Betty Jackson, Miss Wilma Smalls of Omaha, Neb., Miss Jessica Waldron of Schenectady, N. Y., and Lt. Thomas' sister, Mrs. Thomas G. Turk of New Orleans, La., will be bridesmaids. Lt. Thomas' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, are here from their home in Pasadena, Cal., for the ceremony.

Lt. Thomas, who is on a 34 day leave following his return from duty in Germany, will take his bride to Fort Bragg, N. C., at the end of his leave.

Miss Anamae Lucille Agar and Arthur George Feeney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Feeney of Brookfield, will be married at 11 a. m. today in St. Francis Xavier's church in La Grange. A reception will follow in the La Grange home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Agar. The bride's brother, Lt. H. Vincent Agar, and Mrs. Agar are here from his post in Washington, D. C., to serve as best man and matron of honor. Her cousin, Miss Lucille Helme of the WAVES, will be maid of honor.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Leona Granger, daughter of Mrs. M. Leona Granger of Wilson av., to Raymond Stoddart of the navy will take place today in All Saint's Episcopal church. Mr. Stoddart, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Stoddart of Pompton Plains, N. J., is stationed at the Glenview naval air station. He and his bride will be at home with her mother.

Mrs. Sol H. Franklin is here from Los Angeles, Cal., for the marriage tonight of her daughter, Sally Ann, to Lt. Donald M. Epstein of the army air forces, son of Mrs. Mildred Epstein of N. Dearborn st. and Dade B. Epstein of W. Burton pl. Lt. Epstein is on a 60 day leave following his release from a German prison camp.

Stylists Design Cotton Outfits for Career Girl

BY REA SEEGER

A lot of thought and ingenuity has been lavished on trick combination ensembles for the career girl, the girl with lots of fashion appreciation, but hampered by a strictly limited clothes budget. Some new cottons designed for this group of shoppers are important not only because the material, chambray, is cool but also because the prices are modest. There are two outfits specially designed for work and play, for town or country, and for a travel and week-end wardrobe. You should see them to really understand the smooth, smart lines, the quality of the chambray, and the beautiful details.

There are four cool summer colors—a green, blue, dark beige, and a strawberry pink. The chambray used has a most effective two tone shimmer that gives an ice cream soda look. The two piece suits [sold only together as a jacket and skirt] have the slightly gathered skirts attached to a band belt and a semi-fitted jacket with long sleeves. The interior of the jacket is most unusual because of the fine taped and finished seams and workmanship. The chambray is cool and smooth, the colors unusually fresh looking for the hottest weather.

A second model is that of the play suit [also sold separately] made of the same chambray, and available in the same four flattering colors as the companion suits. However, the play suits go a bit more feminine with frills of white embroidery around the deep oval neckline and the edges of the deep cut-out sleeves. There are plaits in the shorts and both shorts and blouse-top are in one piece, attached to a wide band belt. Lagniappe for these two models consist of matching gloves of the same chambray and shades, and a few open air hats. All are washable and all have very modest price marks.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

A Solid Foundation

When Bob Hope's popular boss, Charles Luckman, made the awards at the Women's Advertising club luncheon this week he said he was impressed by the fact that the entrants in the contest had one point in common—they all were "based on a solid foundation which augurs well for the future of advertising." He spoke then of the wise man of the Bible "which built his house upon a rock; and the rain descended and the floods came and the winds blew, and beat upon the house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock."

The tribute Mr. Luckman expressed so delightfully applies, fortunately, not only to women in advertising. Thruout these war years countless women have based their business careers on a solid foundation of ability, integrity, and initiative.

These women have contributed more than they know. Suppose some of them discard their careers after the war. What then? The house they have built upon a rock will stand. Other women will occupy it; other women, because of its solid foundation, will be in a stronger, more secure position in the business world.

Hope Springs Eternal

Some nights when I stay overtime
I do not mind a bit;
But every now and then I have
This one complaint, to wit:

I fail to understand just why
I'm always working late,
Tied down by business duties on
The night I have a date!

This is the phase of office life
With which I hate to cope;
For what about my social life—
And love life, too—I hope?

The Younger Generation

A junior steno and a junior clerk have been sparking for the last several months in the office. The other day one of the really big bosses came along and, overhearing their terms of endearment, said in amusement, "Aren't you two ashamed of yourselves, right in front of everybody?"

"Why?" answered the girl, "We're having fun and I bet the others enjoy it, too!"

The boy didn't say anything. He just blushed. Seems like the younger generation is reversing the gender of who does the blushing!

Notes

John Wildberg and his New York representative, Nick Holde, had better get in a huddle. Mr. Wildberg says Chicago will get the New York company of "Anna Lucasta," period. Mr. Holde says Chicago gets part of the New York, or original, company for exactly eight weeks. . . . Philip Yordan, who wrote the play, has a new one with music, called "Danny Boy." . . . Billy Rose's "Concert Varieties" closed abruptly in New York and "The Hasty Heart" expires this evening. . . . If you are worried about Vivian Vance's pink and green bonnet for "The Voice of the Turtle," it's all right. Alfred de Liagre Jr. okayed it. What gentleman could do less?

Percy Grainger Vivid Soloist in Gould and Liszt at Good Grant Park Concert

How about a few bouquets for the people who have rescued the Grant park concerts from a slump of deadly dullness and started them on a 1945 season that so far sounds like more? Some posies, for instance, should go to Robert J. Dunham, for realizing the case was desperate and doing something about it; to Walter Larsen, for assembling the best possible players and improving the conditions of performance, and to Nicolai Malko, for welding those players into an orchestra. Compliments, too, to Percy Grainger for his brilliant performance as last night's soloist, and to the weather man for being on his blandest behavior. All things considered, I'm not going to say an unkind word about those ghastly program notes wished on what I trust is an unsuspecting announcer.

Mr. Grainger is not only one of the finest pianists an orchestra can snare, but he is a handy man around the house, being a composer whose "Country Gardens" draws chirrups of delight from an enormous audience and a fellow who can lift his own piano bench when all available help is busy with the piano. In between all these duties he found time to add Debussy's "Clair de Lune" as encore to bravura appearances in a Liszt Hungarian Rhapsody and Morton Gould's American Concertette, the latter new here, so far as I know, except for José Iturbi's investigation of the blues section at his most recent concert.

Given an alert orchestra and a pianist of Mr. Grainger's brilliance, the concertette is amusing fare. The first movement and the gavotte have a flair for gayety and a kind of infectious gusto, while the slow movement in blues vein opens with the piano, calls up the darker winds, and finally drifts off in the treble tremolo of a honkytonk piano. The finale seemed to me to have more noise than ideas, but the work as a whole is a captivating choice for a pleasant night out under the stars.

Mr. Malko opened his concert with Mozart's Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," a crisp, rather dry performance that had its charms, then turned to Haydn's "Oxford" Symphony, which was played with more skill than juice. As in the Mozart, there was a dry wine taste that was pleasant in the menuetto and finale, but the lovely largo was hindered in its song by conducting that pushed and poked at what should have been an inevitable flow of music. Yet it was an enjoyable concert, and most of the audience was still there when the orchestra signed off with Liszt's "Les Préludes."

"Tempest" Tour

Altho Margaret Webster's revival of "The Tempest" will not tour on Theater guild subscription as once suggested, it does set forth on its travels in mid-September and is said to be penciled in Chicago for three weeks starting Nov. 5. Zorina and Canada Lee will be in the cast and, presumably, Arnold Moss as Prospero, tho there had been salary trouble in the new contracts. Paul Leyssac, first known hereabouts as narrator in "Peter and the Wolf," also will tour after summer work in foreign language broadcasts for the OWI and in making translations of Andersen fairy tales from the Danish. The Czech comedians who played Trinculo and Stephano have returned home, and Benny Baker will replace one of them.

Balinese Dance Puts Life Into Museum Exhibit

The mystery and the glamor of Bali and Java was brought to life yesterday in the cool recesses of the Chicago Natural History [Field] museum with the tinkle of weird instruments, the savage beat of drums, and the delicate imagery of temple dancers.

The unusual performance was presented by Devi-Dja and her troupe of girl dancers from the Den Paser temple of Bali and Raden Soekoro, also of the Indies, as guest soloist, to highlight a preview of a special Netherlands East Indies exhibit which will open to the public today.

Prior to the dance program, 700 members of the museum, staffs of all foreign consulates in Chicago, directors of other museums, and special guests were welcomed to the exhibit by Stanley Field, who has been president of the museum for 37 years. In the name of the Dutch government, a welcome was also extended by Jan A. Schuurman, consul general in Chicago. Prof. Fay-Cooper Cole, chairman of the department of anthropology at the University of Chicago and research associate in Malaysian ethnology at the museum, delivered a brief lecture on life in Malaya.

The exhibit, itself, which is centered in Stanley Field hall, is being presented under the auspices of the Netherlands Information bureau, an agency of the Dutch government. It is composed of 20 panels of striking and artistic photographs of large size, many in natural colors, and a number of paintings.

The panels depict the ancient culture of the islands, the village life, the dances and theater, education, religion, and progress. They reveal how 150 racial groups, speaking 250 languages, live in peace and unity. Coördinated with the display are six cases of material from the museum's own exhibits.

One of the most interesting cases contains the striking figures of a Menangkabau bride and groom of central Sumatra dressed in the golden robes and wearing the rich jewelry which has brought wonder and envy into the eyes of adventurers for centuries.

'The Wicked Mrs. Steel'

By Roy Vickers

(Copyright: 1945: By Roy Vickers)

INSTALMENT XII.

NEAR PANIC

Ralph Hanshew rose gravely from his seat, stood over Gillian, about to utter what was in his mind. Instead, he lifted her and kissed her.

"I think," she murmured presently, "that the cottage is watching us."

"Do 'em good! I'll pay the bill and tell them we'll go and put the banns up."

"You haven't asked me to name the day," she laughed.

"The name of the day is to me a matter of profound indifference," he said magnificently. "Any day next week will suit me."

"Don't be ridiculous. Getting married takes time."

"Not nowadays. You can fix it in a few days!"

"I dare say. But——"

"You're not going to hang out for orange blossoms and all that, are you?"

"I wasn't thinking of that . . ."

"As to your family and mine—we can do the rounds on our honeymoon. Saves them wondering whether they like me, D'you think they will?"

"For one thing," she said "there's Mrs. Steel."

Yes, there was Mrs. Steel—and her staggering plan for their joint future.

"For us, there is no Mrs. Steel," he asserted. "You've had a glimpse of her charming character and a glimpse is enough. Ycu've seen how she keeps those wretched relations crawling by whispering to each in turn that his or her prospects are decidedly warm. They're pretty rotten stuff but she's more than a bit cruel and you know it."

"O, Ralph! And she thinks so highly of you."

"I know she does—and I know why. One or two small inventions of mine have been useful to her business. She loads me with smiles because she is afraid I shall accept an offer from a rival firm. There's a surprise waiting for her."

He warmed to his subject, but she barely listened. She was wondering how to tell him that so much depended upon their handling of Mrs. Steel, but knew that in his present mood he would not listen. It would be so much better that the information should come to him from Mrs. Steel herself.

"'I'll pay the bill now," he said. "And then . . ."

"And then?" she prompted.

"Rush you off your feet, darling."

On the drive home they scarcely spoke.

For her part, Gillian lolled back in a contentment too wholehearted to permit her to worry. After all, there need be no trouble. Mrs. Steel was anxious that they should get married. And even if Ralph wished to take her away literally next week, Mrs. Steel would probably make no serious objection.

"Will you tell her, or shall I?" asked Gillian, as they turned thru the gates to "the house."

"Leave it to me—all of it," he answered.

Mrs. Steel was in the drawing room.

"How was the horse show?" she asked.

"O,—we didn't go!" confessed Gillian.

"We went to a little place I know of for tea," cut in Ralph. "I asked Gillian to marry me and she consented."

Mrs. Steel had not imagined that they could reach this stage so soon.

"But how wonderful!" She was struggling against faintness. "I congratulate you, Ralph. Gillian, my dear, I can't tell you how delighted I am."

"Thank you!" said Ralph with a formal curtness.

"When—when will you get married?" asked Mrs. Steel. "But, of course, you've not had time to think of that yet."

"As soon as I can persuade Gillian—next week, I hope."

"But that's absurd!" cried Mrs. Steel. "Gillian and I will have lots of plans to make. There's the question of where you will live. The Webleys are giving up their house. The house belongs to the estate. I'm sure Gillian will love it when she sees it."

"Thanks very much," cut in Ralph. "But we shan't be living here."

"But you'll want to live somewhere within easy reach of the factory."

"Not even that," said Ralph firmly. "I didn't want to mention it now, Mrs. Steel, but you have rather—er—forced by hand. My contract with you expires next month."

"I know!" Speech itself was becoming difficult to her. "But Tollerman is drawing up a new one. I understood that you had agreed to the terms."

"The terms are excellent and I am most appreciative. But I have decided to join Handleman's—which means that we shall be living somewhere in the Midlands."

There was a sharp edge to his voice that warned Gillian that he took positive pleasure in telling Mrs. Steel he had done with her.

"You mean to leave me!" grasped Mrs. Steel. "And to go to a competitor!" She faced defeat—and suddenly saw a way of driving a wedge between the lovers.

"Why, it would be against your interests, Ralph! And Gillian won't let you do it." She turned to the girl. "Will you, Gillian?"

Gillian was preoccupied. Somehow Mrs. Steel, with those few words, had made it extremely difficult to tell Ralph there and then.

Mrs. Steel was waiting for her to speak.

"I couldn't influence Ralph's decision even if I wanted to, Aunt Margaret," she said. "And I don't want to."

"Of course you don't, dear! No sensible woman tries to drive a man." Mrs. Steel had recovered her self-confidence. "I advise you to tell him the facts and leave the decision to him. After all, a man never thanks a woman for keeping him in the dark."

Sheer intuition was warning Gillian that to mention the Steel millions in connection with their marriage would be to taint every word of love that had passed betwen them.

"Gillian wouldn't keep me in the dark!" remarked Ralph.

"Of course I wouldn't!" cried Gillian.

Mrs. Steel smiled contendedly whereupon, without knowing why, Gillian revolted. As if pursued she ran to Ralph's side and clutched his arm. "I'll tell you—but not here. Aunt Margaret will understand."

Unobserved, Mrs. Steel touched the bell push.

"I don't understand, Gillian," she said reprovingly. "I think, dear, you are being just a little hysterical."

Her words were more than half true. Gillian was on the edge of panic.

"Take me away, Ralph," she begged. "You said you have a married cousin somewhere. I'll tell you everything but—take me away, I must tell you in my own way."

Seek Aids to Teach Crafts to Wounded and Ailing Veterans

The arts and skills unit of Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross reports an urgent need for additional volunteer workers who are capable of instructing hospitalized service men in such crafts as sketching, modeling, weaving, carving, and toy making. The appeal is directed particularly to Chicago area residents who have a hobby which could be shared with wounded and ailing service men in military and naval hospitals, and to public school arts and crafts teachers who will have free time during summer months for such volunteer service.

Applicants for this type of volunteer work are invited to attend a meeting of the corps admissions committee, taking with them from three to five samples of their work. Committee meetings are held regularly from 4 until 5 p. m. on the first and third Wednesdays of each month in the faculty room of the Art institute. The next meeting, however, will be held Tuesday since the first Wednesday falls on the Fourth of July.

More than 200 volunteers currently are giving time in the program, devised as a means of assisting in relieving the tedium of convalescence for the hospitalized men.

Watermelon is one of our abundant fruits, and it's probably the most refreshing of all, because there's little to it except a crisp rosy mesh holding a sweet, cool fluid. Melon must be cold to be good, and that sometimes presents a problem, for few home refrigerators are equipped to hold an enormous melon in addition to the usual food supplies.

We often pickle or preserve the melon rind after eating the pink flesh, but rarely do anything with the seeds. In some countries the seeds are toasted and eaten as a great delicacy.

A delicious watermelon dessert which doesn't require a lot of refrigerator space is this: Buy a slice or quarter of melon and cut out the flesh. Remove seeds and cut into pieces. Pour a little of any good sweet dessert wine [port, tokay, sherry, muscatel] over the melon and chill until extremely cold. Orange or lemon juice may be combined with the wine, if desired. Simple and delectable!

Collards, mustard greens, and turnip tops rival spinach for favor these days. Any of these greens is best when cooked quickly, by steam, or in only the water which clings to the leaves after washing. Quick cooking preserves all of the color and flavor. Ham or bacon drippings are the perfect seasoner, when available, and most lovers of greens like the sharp accent of a little vinegar or lemon juice, too.

Out in California they put whole ripe olives into a good many dishes. Here's a chili-spiced lima bean casserole which is made more remarkable by the addition of olives.

Spanish Style Lima Beans

[Serves six]

1½ cups dried lima beans
1 small clove garlic
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup drippings or salad oil
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 cup water
1 cup whole ripe olives
½ cup grated American cheese

Cook lima beans in salted water until tender and drain. Saute minced garlic, onion, and green pepper in fat for several minutes. Combine salt, cornstarch, and chili powder with a small amount of the water and mix smooth. Add remaining water [liquid from ripe olives can be used instead], heat until thickened. Add beans, sauteed vegetables, ripe olives, and blend. Pour into casserole and sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 400 degrees until hot and lightly browned.

Blouse and Frock

Looking for some really cool summer fashions? These two patterns answer the need beautifully. One makes a sleeveless blouse to go with your tubbable summer suits, and the other fashions a frock with the new shoulders and lean lines. Style No. 3860 is designed for sizes 10 to 40. Any size requires 1⅝ yards of 39 inch material. Style No. 3802 is designed for sizes 14 to 46. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 35 inch material with 1¼ yards of ruffling.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents; 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"Waffles seem to stick to my waffle iron. What causes this?"

The recipe used may not call for enough shortening. Increase it slightly. Or the iron may be too hot or not hot enough. A drop of water on the hot iron will sizzle and turn to steam if too hot. If temperature is just right, the drop of water will bounce.

It may be that the waffle iron needs re-seasoning. Brush grids thoroly with a melted, unsalted fat while iron is cold. Heat to baking temperature and allow to cool. Reheat to baking temperature, bake a waffle to absorb extra grease, and discard that waffle. Iron is then ready for use.

"Since arthritis makes it hard for me to knead rolls or bread, I'd like to use the no-kneading rolls recipe. I can't seem to get them light and fluffy, however."

The sad answer is that the beating required in this recipe to make a light roll takes even more arm power than kneading. To save energy, use an electric mixer on low speed to beat in part of the flour, and work in the rest by hand.

"Is an egg bad if the white seems watery when broken?"

The older an egg is, the more watery the white becomes. Eggs with very watery whites are all right for cooking purposes but not good as breakfast eggs. If the egg were spoiled, there would be a bad odor.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. Ed. L., Oak Park—Why not neatly fitted drawer space built in as part of the bedroom closet in our post-war homes? It would come in handy in all small or even moderate size homes.

Hazel K., Gary, Ind.—I use a good wallpaper cleaner to keep my parchment paper lamp shades clean.

Mrs. George F., Chicago—I keep my rubber articles in the basement. I've learned it is poor policy to store them in an attic or even on a south wall, or to place them near hot water or steam pipes or hot-air ducts.

Dad Overseas Must Be More Than Picture

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

This young mother whose husband is overseas [and whose letter I am quoting] realizes the difficulty of creating, with words and photographs, a live, real mental picture for a baby or young child, of a father whom they have seen only when little, or for a short time—or in some cases, not at all. Her approach is interesting—she presents their father to the children as a person who will do this and do that when he comes home, so giving him a sort of active substance to their imagination. But also, like all the other mothers I know, she found a photograph of daddy one of the best means to this end. Her letter follows:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"My husband has been in the marine corps for a year and he has now been overseas for seven months on combat duty in the Pacific.

"We have two little girls—Patty, aged 3, and Bonnie, aged 2. I have tried various ways of keeping 'daddy' in their minds and like the other mothers I find the photograph one of the best.

"But it is quite a task to keep them from thinking about 'daddy' as just a figure or a name. We want our children to think of him as a living person who talks and walks like every one else.

"I've told our girls that when their daddy comes home we are going to move in a new house all our own. Daddy is going to plant trees in the yard so it will be shady and cool for us. And that he will buy them a nice dog and he'll teach the dog lots of tricks.

"I also make up little stories of how he'll fix up different things in our new home—like screens and faucets and 'everyday' things. I tell them that dad will take us for a nice long drive in the country and we'll stop and have lunch, and many other little things that are so important to young minds. Also I have formed the habit of writing to my husband supposedly from our daughters. I write things I imagine they must be thinking.

"My husband likes the idea very much. He says it keeps the girls close to him and for that little while he is a 'daddy' again. He answers 'their letters,' too.

"I hope my ideas will be of some help to other mothers who are faced with the same problems. And when the 'daddies' do come home to stay we wives will be richly rewarded for our work when we see the smiles of happiness on our husbands' faces when they see recognition in their children's eyes."

This last is indeed a rich reward.

Colombian Editor to Speak Today at Pan-American Tea

Alfonso Esse-Hernandez, editor and writer of Medellin, Colombia, will be the special guest and speaker at the Pan-American council's final tea of the current season, to be held this afternoon at 84 E. Randolph st.

Mr. Esse-Hernandez is in the United States at the invitation of a national radio company to participate in a summer radio course at Northwestern university. The speaker will be introduced by Fernando Paba-Silva of the ministry of mines and petroleum in the republic of Colombia. A program of Colombian music has been arranged by Miss Yvonne Angarola.

Immediately following the party, Mrs. Allen C. Howes, chairman of the teas committee and member of the council's board of directors, will leave for her summer home on Lake Erie at Erieau, Ont.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Molasses Skillet Cake

[Serves six]

¼ cup sugar
¼ cup shortening
1 egg, well beaten
½ cup molasses
1½ cups flour, sifted
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¾ teaspoon ginger
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup sour milk
2 tablespoons margarine, melted
½ cup honey
½ cup chopped nuts
2 sliced apples
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Cream sugar and shortening until light and fluffy. Add egg and molasses and mix well. Add sifted dry ingredients and milk alternately, blending well after each addition. Combine margarine, honey, nuts, apples, and lemon juice, and pour in bottom of skillet. Cover with batter and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 35 minutes. Loosen cake from sides and bottom with spatula and turn out on cake plate.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 29—Walt Disney has bought Sterling North's "Midnight and Jeremiah," a best selling juvenile book. Half of it is to be made with humans, the other half with animated cartoons. North will come to Hollywood to write the screenplay and lyrics. He got the idea from this story which ran in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE: At Christmas time the good father in one of Chicago's churches discovered the Christ child was missing. He went out to look for it and found a little boy on a bicycle with the Christ child on the handle bars. He asked the boy whether he didn't think that was very wrong. "No sir," the boy replied. "I went to church each day and prayed to the Christ child that if he'd give me a bicycle for Christmas I'd give him a ride on the handle bars, and I'm just keeping my word." North's "Speaking of the Devil," with a cover by Salvador Dali, soon will be on the bookstands.

It's Good News to Me, Too

Mrs. Ray Milland phoned to tell me that she and Ray have reconciled. They're both mighty happy about it. Their three months apart has brought about a perfect ending. . . . I know you'll be as sorry as I am to learn that Fanny Brice has suffered a heart attack. . . . Who says Hollywood can't keep a secret? The Junior Jimmy McHughs have been separated for two months. She's one of Eddie Cantor's daughters. They have a young child. Young Jimmy is carrying the most terrific torch. She just doesn't love him any more, is the only word he gets.

Besides, It's Making Us Lonely

If Ann Sheridan doesn't come home soon, Warners will have to take down her pictures which have been put up to welcome her. I have an idea Annie will heed Warners' call. She's been off the screen long enough—too long. After all, she's an actress. The only way to keep on being one is to act. . . . Oscar Levant, en route here for his Hollywood bowl appearance, stayed over in New York for the birth of his third daughter. It looks as tho he's trying to follow in the footsteps of his wife's family. Remember, she was one of the four Gale sisters—all beauties. . . . Wonder whether it's because Bob Benchley has seen so many of them that he's been added to "All Brides Are Beautiful"?

A Word of Advice

When I heard that Dorothy Gish would sing in "Centennial Summer," I asked her about it, and she said, "Listen, honey, if I do and you've got any 20th Century stock, sell it quick!" . . . Groucho Marx's new missus will be able to do hospital tours with him. She sings even better than Groucho. . . . Wedding bells soon will ring for Eleanor Parker and Joe Kirkwood Jr., both under contract to Warners. He's the son of our golf champion. . . . Olivia de Havilland's house was sold out from under her. Now she hasn't even got a dog house. . . . I'm told the David Windsors will visit Hollywood before taking off for Paris. I have a feeling their reception here won't be nearly as warm as the one given Arthur Rank. . . . Fritz Lang had all the arrangements made to take background shots in Greenwich village for "Scarlet Street." The office of defense transportation said no, now the sets are being built on Universal's back lot.

Round and Around

On Frank Sinatra's return from overseas, he and Rise Stevens will make recordings of some George Gershwin melodies. . . . Wally Cassell, playing in "The Postman Always Rings Twice," says he feels so—so sorry for that guy, 'cause he's been getting mail intended for Walter Cassel, Metropolitan star, who's here to sing in "Rose Marie." . . . That pretty Martha Stewart, who graced Joe E. Lewis' arm, is now in 20th Century's "Doll Face" as a singing show girl. . . . Margo Morgan of Paramount is having fun with Egyptian Sen. Mahmoud Aboul Fath. Hope she gets one of those little souvenirs I saw him buy at Shreves in San Francisco. . . . The overflow from the San Francisco conference is flooding our town. . . . Dick Wiley and Teala Loring soon will marry. He's an agent and she's appearing in "Allotment Wives, Inc." Looks like a reconciliation for Wini Shaw and Freddie Vosberg, recently divorced in Florida.

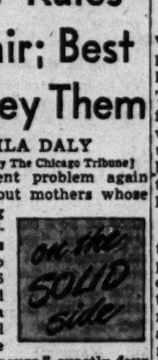
Parents' Rules Are Fair; Best to Obey Them

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

"It's the parent problem again . . . mostly about mothers whose useless worrying over their offspring causes us young-uns a heap of trouble. I'm 16 and have dated boys nearly a year now. In all that time I have been out "after hours" exactly four times. Each time I tried to explain, I was treated like a little girl telling a fib. I was always under the impression that love, particularly parental love, included understanding. Pardon me if I'm wrong.



"The last time I was with a fellow I really liked we happened to have car trouble, something not unusual in these days. When we did arrive home we were greeted with scorching looks and given no chance to explain what had happened. Can't parents see that their distrust is what makes us lie? If they love us as they say they do, why don't they try listening and believing us once in a while? All this stuff about juvenile delinquency is based on parents who don't listen and try to understand their offspring."

It's not so many years ago that you were still drinking orange juice off a spoon and couldn't even tie your own shoe laces, so you won't mind, will you, if your mother is still curious occasionally to know if you can really take care of yourself? Sometimes that curiosity develops into genuine worry, especially if it's late at night and you've overstayed your dating deadlines by an hour or two. If you worked for a business and showed up four times at 11 when you were due at 9, you'd be fired. How about trying to keep to schedule at home? Your mother can't fire you, you know.

PATH CLEARED TO BOOST COOK COUNTY TAXES

Governor Approves Key Butler Bill

BY GEORGE TAGGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 29—A hybrid political blossom, the Kelly-Green combination, reached full bloom tonight on the eve of final legislative adjournment when the way was paved to raise taxes in Cook county by $38,800,000. State appropriations had raced ahead of all past records and were nearing 770 million dollars.

Gov. Green signed the key Butler bill as soon as it reached his desk today. It puts all counties on a full valuation assessment basis.

All but the Chicago portion of the Butler series swept thru the house to final passage today by using the roll call to approve the first one. It cuts downstate tax rates in half and provides for adjustments to the new system during a five year transition period.

Smother Opposition

Then Kelly-Green forces smothered opposition in the house to 11th hour amendments to the Chicago bills. Opponents recalled past events of the 64th general assembly and conceded their protests would be futile even while expressing them.

As amended and advanced for passage in the house tomorrow the bills will:

1—Provide a Chicago board of education tax rate that may be used to produce 80 million dollars a year in 1947 and thereafter, compared with 55 millions levied for this year.

2. Enable Cook county board to levy 21 millions for 1946, compared with 14 millions for 1944, with comparable boosts for odd numbered years compared with 1945.

3. Authorize the Chicago park district to levy $13,300,000 for 1947 and thereafter, compared with $10,500,000 this year.

More for City's Relief Fund

There are other results of the Kelly-Green coöperation. Today the house concurred with the senate in abating 2 million dollars a year in Chicago taxes at state expense. It did so by reducing from 6 to 4 millions the amount in relief tax Chicago must raise to qualify for state relief funds. Increases in the state distributive school fund will yield Chicago about 3 millions a year additional.

Rep. Noble Lee [R., Chicago], dean of the John Marshall law school, and Rep. Sandquist [R., Chicago] led the fight against the tax raising amendments. They were defeated by a standing vote, 64 to 34, on the first test. Thereafter the Kelly choristers, with help from some of the governor's men, shouted down the remaining challenges.

"I am asking for the same protection for the people of Chicago as to tax rates that this legislature has given to downstate taxpayers under the Butler program," Lee said.

Charges "Bad Faith"

Lee charged the majority had employed an enveloping movement. He recalled efforts to hold up the key Butler bill until all of the cards were on the table. After the bill was passed, the Chicago bills were changed.

With Rep. Clabaugh [R., Champaign] charging "bad faith" in the matter, Sandquist demanded to know why the Chicago-Cook county rates were raised.

Rep. McCabe [D., Chicago], research chief for Cook County Assessor Clark, said it was done at the request of Sen. Daley, Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman.

"We won't take advantage of these rates," McCabe said. "We have proved it. We could have levied much more than was done after Assessor Clark placed Cook county on a full valuation basis, but we didn't."

"Evidently you trust Cook county officials more than you do downstate officials," Sandquist remarked.

McCabe asserted the Civic Federation, a taxpayers' organization, was "confusing and lying to you." He charged that in opposing the Butler bills, especially the amended Chicago bills, the federation was speaking in behalf of railroads and public utilities, not home owners.

CITES RAT HORDE GROWTH DESPITE EXTERMINATORS

Chicago's rat population is growing despite the efforts of 50 trained exterminators, Lloyd M. Johnson, superintendent of streets and electricity, said yesterday.

Johnson attributed the rat increase to the lack of garbage cans. Garbage dumped in alleys provides a constant feast for the rodents, he said, and their propagation is beyond the power of the exterminators to check.

Under present laws, he said, exterminators are held to public property and cannot invade private property unless invited by the owner. Chief weapons against rats are red squill and cyano gas, he said.

Johnson will present a report on the city's garbage situation at a meeting of a council subcommittee which Ald. Grealis [44th], its chairman, said he would call shortly after July 4.

"Invite them over here. If we go to their place I'll have to get dressed."

TOWNSHIP ROAD MEASURE SENT TO GOVERNOR

Chicago Slum Project Approved

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 29—Final passage of a bill appropriating 15 million dollars from the treasury surplus for improvement of township roads today boosted Gov. Green's post-war supplemental budget to nearly 139 million dollars.

The treasury balance, to be used on the post-war spending program is about 10 million dollars less than the appropriations.

Also sent to the governor for approval were post-war bills to spend 10 millions for Chicago slum clearance and 5 millions for blueprints of public works projects. The senate quickly concurred in house amendments as the legislature voted on dozens of bills during morning, afternoon, and night sessions.

Not in Original Budget

The township road bill was not in the original post-war budget. Earlier items included a 101 million dollar omnibus spending bill, sent to the governor yesterday, and $7,800,000 for veterans' rehabilitation centers.

Bills to use the "party circle" method of boss controled voting in adopting the "gateway" constitutional amendment in 1946 were advanced to the final passage stage in the house as both chambers shortened their calendars in preparation for sine die adjournment some time tomorrow.

Gov. Green signed a long series of bills ranging from a 4 million dollar program for care of spastic crippled children to the salary increases for most of his subordinates.

O. K. Wolf Lake Project

The senate concurred in house amendments to the Butler bill for a $250,000 development of Wolf lake as a recreational area.

Extensive revision of the fish and game codes also were enacted, and the conservation department was voted $400,000 to be raised in increases from $1.50 to $2 in hunting license fees and 75 cents to $1 in fishing licenses.

Restored to the calendar, in position for passage tomorrow, were bills to tax strip mining and to legalize absences from public schools of children who are attending religious education classes.

Other bills sent to the governor create a state department of aeronautics, increase salaries of city judges, and provide that civil service appointments may be made from the top three names on eligible lists.

HEART BALM SUIT BAN OVERRULED BY U. S. JUDGE

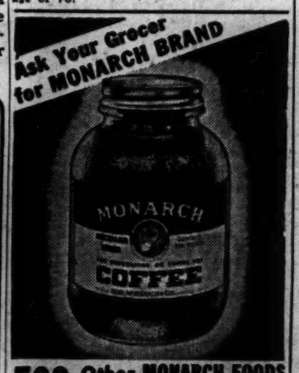
Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan ruled yesterday that the Illinois anti-heart balm act was unconstitutional and denied a motion to dismiss the $300,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Olive M. Daily, 45, of Oil City, Pa., against Mrs. Marian L. Parker, 42, of 77 Cedar st.

Mrs. Daily charged Mrs. Parker with alienating the affections of her husband, Wilfred J. Daily, 71 Cedar st. Mrs. Parker is the wife of a navy officer. Judge Sullivan said he agreed with a previous ruling of Judge Frank M. Padden in Superior court in another case that the heart balm act was a violation of the constitutional rights of redress in court.

"I cannot believe the legislature intended to enact a law," Judge Sullivan ruled, "which would result in the protection of persons guilty of alienating the affections of a husband or wife and make it unlawful for an aggrieved husband or wife to seek any redress for such injury."

$225,000 WEDELES ESTATE

Joseph Wedeles, part owner of Wedeles Brothers Leaf Tobacco company, 321 W. Lake st., left an estate of $225,000, according to a petition to admit his will filed yesterday in Probate court. Wedeles died June 18, at the age of 76.



WIFE DEMANDS 3 ELEPHANTS AS PART OF DIVORCE

Kokomo, Ind., June 29 [Special]—Mrs. Marie [Dolly] Jacobs, former circus equestrienne, was granted a divorce today from Terrell M. Jacobs, wild animal trainer, on her testimony that Jacobs beat her.

Mrs. Jacobs was given the custody of six year old twin boys by Circuit Judge Forrest E. Jump and Jacobs was ordered to pay $80 a month for their support.

Jacobs worked a menagerie of 28 lions, tigers, leopards, and monkeys in the Terrell and Dolly Jacobs circus. His wife handled the act put on by three elephants. She asked that the elephants be awarded to her, but the court held he had no authority to make a property division.

Modoc, one of the three elephants, ran away in November, 1942, and kept the area around Peru, Ind., in a turmoil for five days until she was captured.

CIVILIAN COAST GUARDS TAKEN OFF WAR DUTY

Effective immediately, 1,200 members of the coast guard temporary reserve [civilians] in the Chicago area will go on an unassigned status, Comdr. Petter G. Petterson, commanding officer of the operating base, said yesterday.

Temporary reserves numbering 3,413 will be affected in the 9th [Great Lakes] naval district. This was made possible by elimination of war precautions in the area.

Temporary reserves comprise part of a force of 50,000 civilians thruout the nation who have served a minimum of 12 hours weekly without remuneration. It is estimated they have relieved 7,000 coast guards for combat duty.

MORE PENSION BILLS PASSED BY LEGISLATURE

BY ROBERT HOWARD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 29—The legislature, disregarding Gov. Green's request, today passed more bills raising the cost to the taxpayers of pensions systems for public officials and employes.

Fiscal experts said the bulk of the pension bills are actuarially unsound, that they give the payrollers a sizable increase in benefits but put the financial load on the public.

"In general the bills call for a big increase in pensions but for no increase in the contributions paid by the employe," said Sen. Dick [R., Quincy] in an interview. "Apparently it does no good to vote against them."

Try to Halt Raises

Sen. Cash [R., Towanda] and Rep. Rhodes [R., Normal] attempted to stop the pension increases, pointing to the governor's request that the issue be held in abeyance until a legislative commission could make a report in 1947.

Officials of the pension systems for Chicago policemen and the University of Illinois took the governor at his word and amended the bills so that costs are not increased.

Other local governments insisted on higher pensions and ignored the question of future tax levies, with the result that some legislators said privately they were hoping to force the governor to sign all bills.

More than 2 million dollars already has been appropriated for the state employes' retirement system for the next biennium, plus $176,962 for administrative expenses.

State pension costs would be increased under a bill, passed today by the senate and sent back to the house for concurrence in amendments. It would make Chairman John D. Biggs of the state commerce commission eligible for a pension by allowing him credit for past service as Bond county judge. Nine former Chicago municipal judges now on the state payroll also would become eligible.

Permits Earlier Retirement

The state pension amendments also would permit earlier retirement of some 980 payrollers who have passed their 65th birthday but still haven't qualified for pensions. Of that group, 80 are past 75, Sen. Thompson [R., Galesburg] told the senate.

Also passed by the senate were bills relaxing pension requirements for Chicago park and sanitary district workers. The measures were sent to the governor. Earlier bills provided increased costs for the Cook county and Chicago municipal employes, among others.

An attempt to achieve uniformity in pension plans, as well as to put them on a sound financial basis, was urged by the governor when he asked that the bills be held up.

Seven clerks and bailiffs of Cook county and Chicago courts, all elective officials, would become eligible for payments under the judges' pension law under another bill, passed by the house and sent to Gov. Green.

Its sponsors said not all of the officials, prominent Democrats, are yet eligible, and that none of them would be expected to leave the payroll.

NORMAN THOMAS URGES TELLING TERMS TO JAPS

End the Japanese war, defeat proposals for peace time compulsory military training, and avoid by statesmanship and fair dealing the danger of an eventual collision with Russia, Norman Thomas, five time Socialist nominee for President, urged at a meeting of the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

He took the negative in a debate on the subject, "Will America's best interests be served by the San Francisco Peace Charter?" He advised ratification of the charter as a possible step toward lasting peace, but asserted that the real bases of such peace were not to be found in the document. Thomas contended that an announcement should be made on terms of which the war with Japan could be ended. The affirmative was upheld by Frank Smothers, Chicago newspaper man.

Smothers conceded that the San Francisco charter had several faults but declared that it established such worthy goals as international justice and universal basic human rights. He thought that even the powerful nations would not dare to use their veto power irresponsibly.

OUTLINE 10 YEAR AIRPORT PLAN IN NEW HOUSE BILL

Washington, D. C., June 28 (AP)—Legislation to establish a 10 year federal aid airport construction program was approved today by the house commerce committee.

The bill, introduced by Chairman Lea [D., Cal.], revised by the aviation subcommittee and resubmitted by Lea in the new form, provides for total federal expenditures of $650,000,000 over the decade beginning July 1. No more than $100,000,000 would be spent in any one year.

Except in the case of Alaska, where the government would pay 75 per cent of airport development costs, the federal funds would be matched by state or municipal sponsors, acting separately or jointly, and by territories.

Land Costs Not Included

Land acquisition costs would not be included in the government's share of any of the airports.

Seventy-five per cent of the funds would be allocated among the states under a formula giving equal weight to population and area. The remaining 25 per cent, set up as a discretionary fund, could be spent regardless of state quotas depending upon individual states' "need for or lack of" development of airport facilities considered necessary to a national program.

Money set aside for a state under the quota plan would be reserved for that state for the entire 10 years, Lea said.

States Want Full Hand

During hearings on the bill, spokesmen for the state governors insisted all federal airport funds should be funnelled thru state agencies. The United States conference of mayors contended as vigorously that cities should be given a free hand in seeking airports without having to deal thru state agencies.

As interpreted by Lea and by Rep. Bulwinkle [D., N. C.] the final bill leaves distribution of the money within states largely up to the provisions of state laws.

A total of $50,000,000 over the 10 year period is set aside in the bill for territories and possessions.

CUBS SPLIT; BOSTON BEATS WHITE SOX, 4-2

WHIP DODGERS, 3-1, AFTER 5-4 LOSS IN OPENER

Vandenberg Yields Only 4 Hits

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 29—Hy Vandenberg's handsome job of pitching, in which he did not yield the fourth hit until Dixie Walker doubled with two out in the ninth to put the tying runs on third and second base, enabled the Cubs to win the second game of a double header with the Dodgers, 3 to 1, this afternoon. The victory and a split of the series couldn't quite make the Cubs forget the loss of the first game in which the Dodgers made three runs in the ninth, two of them after two were out, to take a 5 to 4 decision.

The Cubs' offensive in the second game victory was much less than boisterous. They made only five hits, two of which reached the outfield and all three runs were made by gents who got on base without hits. Bill Nicholson, who walked, and Phil Cavarretta, who was hit by a pitched ball, scored in the fourth on two hits by Andy Pafko and Peanuts Lowrey and a fly ball. The run Chicago didn't need was made on Cavarretta's walk, Pafko's sacrifice, and Lowrey's single to left in the eighth.

Waste Hits in Opener

The first game saw the Cubs make nine hits, including a homer by Nicholson and a triple by Cavarretta, but there were many other dire incidents. A heat and humidity wave hit the Cubs offensively and defensively late in that game.

Leading 4 to 2, they left eight men on bases in the last three innings and would have had the maximum of nine except for a double play—all without scoring a run.

All of this became increasingly painful as the Cub defense blew up in the ninth for those three runs as Ray Starr, Bob Chipman, and Wally Signer proved unable to halt the Dodger uprising. The starting pitcher was Ray Prim, but he was stricken by the heat and retired in the sixth with the score 4 to 1 for the Cubs and runners on third and first with none out. He was rushed to Caledonian hospital while Starr was getting out of this inning with only one tally scored.

The Cubs will open a three game series against the Giants tomorrow, going into the Polo Grounds with a record of one victory against five defeats in competition with the New Yorkers.

Nicholson Starts 'Em Off

Nicholson's sixth homer, with his roomie, Hack, on base as a result of a walk, gave the Cubs a 2 to 0 lead after two were out in the third inning of the first game.

The Dodgers halved the Cub lead in the fourth. Galan singled with one down and stopped at third on Walker's double to left center. Olmo was given an intentional pass to load the bases. Basinski sent a long fly to Pafko, which scored Galan. Nicholson walked at the start of the sixth and scored on Cavarretta's 399 foot triple to center. Pafko lined a single to left, scoring Cavarretta.

Prim indicated he was ill from the heat at the start of the sixth, but asked to continue. He walked Galan, then Walker singled to center, putting Galan on third. This brought Prim's replacement by Starr. Olmo flied to Pafko, Galan scoring.

Starr walked Peacock to get the

Fitzsimmons Out; Chapman to Boss Phils

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29 (AP)—Fred Fitzsimmons quit today as manager of the last place Philadelphia Phillies. His resignation was announced by General Manager Herb Pennock just after the Phils dropped a 9 to 1 game to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Pennock picked Pitcher Ben Chapman, acquired from the Brooklyn Dodgers in a June 15 trade, to succeed Fitzsimmons. He said, "I'm not sure whether Ben will continue as manager after the end of this season or not."

Succeeds Bucky Harris

"I want to emphasize the point that this was entirely a voluntary action on the part of Fitzsimmons," said Pennock.

Fitzsimmons, former pitcher for the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers, took over the Phils in the summer of 1943. He was hired simultaneously with the firing of Stanley [Bucky] Harris by William D. Cox, then president of the club.

At the time, Fitzsimmons was player-coach for the Dodgers. He had been traded by the Giants, after 12 years of service, to Brooklyn in 1937.

Fitz Just Gives Up

Pennock said Fitzsimmons came to his office and handed in his resignation, saying he hoped it would help the club.

"His mind was made up and there was nothing for me to do but accept," said the general manager.

Schreiner of Badgers Dies on Okinawa

Lancaster, Wis., June 29 (AP)—Lt. David N. Schreiner, 24, University of Wisconsin's All-American football star of three years ago, died June 21 of wounds received in action on Okinawa, according to a telegram received today from the marine corps by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Schreiner of Lancaster.

Lt. Dave Schreiner

Schreiner played end on the Badger elevens of 1940, 1941, and 1942, and was placed on the Associated Press All-America teams of 1941 and 1942. He also was named on other national selections and received Western conference honors.

Lt. Schreiner previously had been wounded by shrapnel when his regiment crashed the Japanese lines in the first offensive on Guam, but he rejoined his unit 10 months ago.

ONE OF GREATEST

Dave Schreiner was one of the greatest players ever to represent Wisconsin, and his ability won recognition from his teammates in 1942 when they named him as their most valuable player in the annual Western conference elections. Schreiner then was chosen the most valuable player in the Big Nine for that season, which saw the Badgers defeat Ohio State and finish second in the Western conference race. Schreiner thus received The Chicago Tribune silver football, the 19th athlete to be so honored since the award was established in 1924.

Schreiner was a great defensive end and his pass catching ability seldom was matched. During his last year of competition he made 18 completions in Big Nine competition and gained more than 350 yards while scoring six touchdowns.

Leader on Campus

He was equally brilliant in his studies and was a leader on the campus. He received the Wisconsin Alumni association award in 1942 for "outstanding contributions and capabilities in the fields of scholarship, leadership, value to his team, loyalty, and sportsmanship."

Schreiner was a unanimous choice for the 1943 College All-Star eleven which played the Washington Redskins in Dyche stadium, but he was called to active duty in the marine corps immediately after graduation and began training.

POLICE NINES RESUME TITLE SERIES TODAY

The Chicago Police department baseball championship series today moves into the second game in Wrigley field. The North Side has a chance to clinch its third straight title with a victory over the South Side team. The game starts at 2 p. m. The third contest will be played tomorrow in Wrigley field.

The Best Friend of All

I walk the streets of loneliness,
No friendly face I see,
And yet I have so many friends. . . .
The robin in the tree

Extends a cheerful greeting
As I go on my way.
A romping pup invites me
To join him in his play.

A vagrant sunbeam pauses
To dance about my feet.
Lilacs bend their fragrant heads
To share their honied sweet.

O, Loneliness is passing
And so I never mind
If humans all are strangers. . . .
When nature is so kind.

We Without Sons

I met Mary Waring this morning,
Her face with joy was alight,
"I can't stop to talk," she called to me,
"Our Jim come home last night!"
And away she went to forage for food
For a feast for the homecoming lad,
And I turned and watched the new tilt to her head,
The new spring that her step now had.

I phoned my friend Stratton an hour ago,
"Look, John, will you call me back?
We just got a wire, the kid's in the States
And this house is a pretty glad sack'"
And thus one hears on every side
Tidings of glad returns,
Joy surging back to those weary hearts
Which for years have not ceased to yearn.

O, we without sons in this war have been spared
Days and nights of anguish and pain,
But it's likewise true, we're missing, too,
The thrill when they come home again!

McSPADEN AND LAFFOON SHARE LEAD WITH 68S

15 Are Under Par in Victory Golf

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Harold [Jug] McSpaden, Ky Laffoon, and Byron Nelson yesterday made the first round of the Chicago Victory National Open golf tournament at the Calumet Country club what the turf folks would call a chalk players' day. All three ran to form as the field of 34 top professionals and nine amateurs sprinted thru the first 18 holes of the 72 hole race for $10,000 in war bonds, as conducted by the Chicago District Golf Charities, Inc., for the hospitalized service men of World War II.

To carry out the racing idiom, you couldn't ask for a more snugly bunched set of leaders rounding the clubhouse turn than you will find in this afternoon's second round, beginning at 12:30 p. m. Up in front there are McSpaden, the defending champion from Sanford, Me., and Laffoon, the brilliant campaigner of the early '30s, running head and head with 68s, four under par. Only a stroke back is the favorite, Nelson, with a comfortable 69, and nudging the pacemakers is a pack of seven 70 scorers, any one of whom may move to the front today.

Laffoon Finishes Strong

McSpaden who always runs well on Chicago golf tracks, having won the All-American Open of 1943 as well as last year's Victory National Open, broke first with a rapid 68. Nelson then made his move with a 69 which included a final nine of 33, three under par. It appeared the chart for the start would read that way until Laffoon rushed up with a fine explosion from the right hand bunker off the 18th, then whipped in a 12 foot putt to tie McSpaden.

The seven who were tied at 70 yesterday include Sam Byrd of Detroit, Johnny Bulla of Atlanta, Ga., Claude Harmon of Detroit, Jack Grout of Butterfield, Jimmy Thomson of New York, George Schneiter of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Bill Kaiser of Louisville.

Five More Tie at 71

Only others to beat the par clock yesterday were a fivesome at 71, including Sgt. Ernie [Dutch] Harrison of Wright field, Dayton, O., Jim Foulis of La Grange, Toney Penna of Dayton, Jim Gauntt of Ardmore, Okla., and Wilford Wehrle, the Racine amateur who paced the simon pure delegation. Only one to run even with the card was Mike Sipula, Ottawa, Ill., professional, who put together a pair of 36s for his 72.

After today's round, the field will begin the final run tomorrow morning with the third 18 to be followed by the afternoon's stretch dash for first prize of $2,000 in war bonds.

Cards of the three leaders:

Par out	544	434	435—36
McSpaden out	544	335	334—34

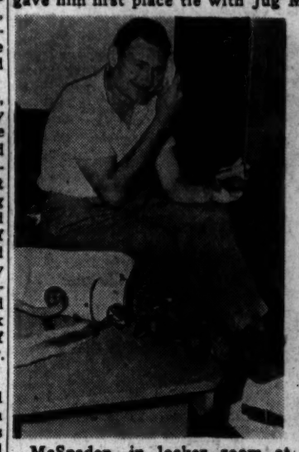
CALM HANDICAPS YACHTS IN RACE TO SAUGATUCK

Twenty-six sailing yachts left in a calm last night for Saugatuck, Mich., in the Jackson Park Yacht club's 25th annual race to that port.

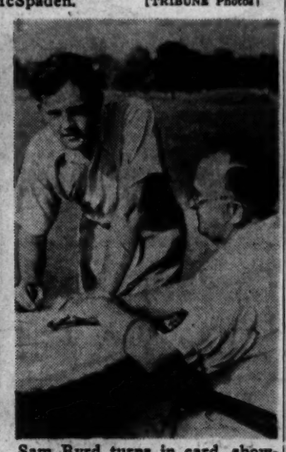
Tar Baby, 58-foot 10-meter class cutter owned by H. C. Griffin of the Chicago Yacht club, was first of the fleet to drift across the line, at 7 p. m.

THEN IN CAME LAFFOON!

Group of caddies surrounds Ky Laffoon to congratulate him for his 68 in first round of Victory National Open golf tournament at Calumet yesterday. He was a late finisher and his four under par 68 gave him first place tie with Jug McSpaden. [TRIBUNE Photos]



McSpaden, in locker room at Calumet, wipes off grime accumulated in his brilliant round. He is the defending Victory Open champion.



Sam Byrd turns in card, showing he had 2 under par 70, to John Luellen, a tournament official. He was one of seven tied for fourth place.

Segura Meets Mehner Today in Net Finals

It will be the south versus the east today in the finals of the National Collegiate tennis tournament as Francisco [Pancho] Segura, the defending champion from the University of Miami, meets Lt. Frank Mehner of the United States Military academy on the Northwestern university courts in Evanston. The match will start at 2 o'clock.

Segura, who is seeking his third consecutive collegiate title, reached the final bracket yesterday with a decisive straight set victory over Bernard Bartzen, William and Mary freshman, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3. Mehner, meanwhile, took the measure of Stan Clark of California Tech, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Bartzen gave the defending champion his toughest match of the tournament.

The match between Clark and Mehner was a see-saw affair for the first set. The Californian won two out of the first three games and was trailing 4-5 when Mehner captured the decisive game with the loss of but one point.

It was a clean sweep for Segura and Mehner as they both came thru doubles competition unscathed. Segura teamed up with Tom Burke to bring the University of Miami, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, victory over the Bartzen-Macken team from William and Mary in one of the semi-final matches, while Mehner and Warren Drake dropped the Georgia Tech team of Willett and McCall, 6-4, 6-3, 6-8, 10-8 in the other semi-windup match. Summaries:

SINGLES

Francisco [Pancho] Segura, Miami, defeated Bernard Bartzen, William and Mary, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

Frank Mehner, West Point, defeated Stan Clark, California Tech, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

DOUBLES

Segura-Burke, Miami, defeated Bartzen-Macken, William and Mary, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Mehner-Drake, West Point, defeated Willett-McCall, Georgia Tech, 6-4, 6-3, 6-8, 10-8.

RED COCHRANE IS KNOCKED OUT BY GRAZIANO

New York, June 29 (AP)—Rocky Graziano of Brooklyn knocked out Welterweight Champion Freddie [Red] Cochrane of Elizabeth, N. J., in 16 seconds of the 10th and last round of their nontitle bout in Madison Square Garden tonight.

The end, marking Graziano's third straight knockout triumph, came with the first punch in the 10th after the bell had saved the champion from a ninth round knockout.

Cochrane, revived between rounds, came rushing across the ring to start the 10th, but Graziano sidestepped and tagged him with another smashing right to the chin. Cochrane fell flat on his back.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

James Dykes' White Sox were unusually stubborn yesterday but in the end it amounted only to their third straight defeat at the hands of Freshman Dave Ferriss, the retired air force corporal now enrolled with Boston's Red Sox. The youth not only pitched but exploded two singles as well as a homer, the latter featuring a decisive three run ninth inning splurge that broke a 1 to 1 tie and sent Johnny Humphries spinning. The score was 4 to 2, making 11 victories for the Boston strong man against two defeats.

It isn't going to do them any good in the standings of the clubs, but the Chicago Sox, at least, had the satisfaction of proving to themselves that it is possible to score on the Boston expert. They hadn't done it in 18 previous innings against him and the drouth continued until the third yesterday, this rare development giving Humphries a one run edge. He lost it in the fourth, Ferriss' bat assisting, and then collapsed in the ninth, the White Sox following with one useless run in their half.

John Hits a Snag

Humphries went into the ninth after four successive innings in which only two hits were produced, but the visitors quickly submerged this fancy streak under an avalanche of bats. Bob Garbark took a healthy shot at the tie score by opening the final session with a double to left, his second hit of that variety. Then Ferriss casually hoisted his first homer of the year into the right field first story and, while this would have been enough, the guests weren't satisfied. They picked up another run on singles by Eddie Lake and John Lazor, with a pass to Bob Johnson sandwiched in.

Ferriss was considerably disturbed by errors, his mates blundering five times, but even with all this outside assistance Dykes' lads earned what little they got. For instance, they expended two hits for their run in the third. LeRoy Schalk singled with one out and was forced by Kerby Farrell, who promptly stole second. He rode home on a single by Johnny Dickshot. Leon Culberson fumbled the hit, giving Dickshot time to sneak to second, but Floyd Baker, who was working so that Tony Cuccinello could enjoy an afternoon in the rocking chair, bounced to Ferriss.

Hockett Singles, Scores

Humphries was belted for two hits in the second inning and two more in the third so it wasn't exactly a surprise when he yieled two more in the fourth, the latter pair accounting for the tying run. The same Garbark whipped his first double into left after two were out and Ferriss immediately proved his handiness with the bat by singling to center for the tying run. Ferriss also singled when he appeared in the seventh but the tap caused no distress.

Orris Hockett, who was back in center after a lengthy rest, singled to right to open the ninth and this eventually became the second run off Ferriss. Cass Michaels also singled, putting Hockett on third, Michaels later stole second and, with two out, Wally Moses singled for the third time, Hockett scoring and Michaels stopping at third. The whole party ended when Garbark took Schalk's tall foul fly.

PAIR OF $15,000 RACES TOP DAY'S ARLINGTON CARD

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Arlington-Washington Parks' $2,000,000 racing program will gather a lot of momentum this afternoon with the running of two $15,000 added stake events, the historic Hyde Park for juveniles which goes back to 1884, and the fourth presentation of the Princess Doreen for 3 year old fillies.

The Hyde Park, opening engagement of the summer campaign for supremacy among the 2 year olds, has gathered fine traditions since Verano took down the first purse, and today there will be 17 competing for acclaim.

Belmont Juvenile Winner

Among them is the Maine Chance farm's They Say, a son of the sensationally fast Roman and a Man o' War mare, Vagrant. This colt already has acquired prestige in the east by winning Belmont's Juvenile stakes.

Warren Wright's Calumet farm will send out two of its candidates for the $30,000 added Arlington and Washington Park Futurities—In Earnest and High Shine, both of which have won races during their brief careers.

Mrs. Louise Donovan will send two stake winners into the Hyde Park, Fighting Frank, which won the Bashford Manor in 1:00 2-5 on a slow track, and Breezy Louise, a filly which took the Debutante stakes at Louisville. John Marsch, whose horses have won six futurities at Arlington and Washington in the last three years, will be represented by Frank's Choice, which scored by five lengths in the opening race of the Arlington meeting.

Both Calumet and the Maine Chance farms have formidable entries in the Princess Doreen. The Ben Jones trained Calumet thorobreds are two daughters of Bull Lea, Twosy and No Blues.

Thirteen Nominated

Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's Maine Chance pair are War Date and Sharp Watch.

One of the favorites should be Thomas Piatt's Come and Go, with the Ashland stakes and the Kentucky Oaks already to her credit. Thirteen have entered the six furlong test.

The Calumet farm's Ocean Wave, which went postward the favorite at the prohibitive odds of 1 to 5 in the featured sixth race yesterday, gave the form players a kick-

LOTT AND HARE LEAD NET TEAM AGAINST BRITISH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 29—Two Chicagoans tomorrow will lead the American army tennis team against British empire players at Wimbledon in the famous stadium's first post-war match. Co-captains of the American team are Staff Sgt. Charlie Hare, former British Davis cup player, and Sgt. George Lott.

YACHTS TO START MORTON TROPHY SERIES TODAY

Emerson Raymond, commodore of the Sheridan Shore Yacht club and owner-skipper of the 22 foot sloop Dolphin, will defend the Sterling Morton interclub trophy for Star class yachts today, tomorrow, and next Wednesday in the Chicago Yacht club's annual series off Belmont harbor.

ninth inning downfall started. Hart then batted for Buker and beat out a single to deep short. Sandlock sacrificed and Chipman replaced Starr. Rosen singled to short center. Peacock scoring and Hart stopping at third. Galan fouled to Hack for the second out, but Walker singled to right, scoring Hart with the tying run. Signer replaced Chipman and Olmo drove his first pitch into center for a single, sending in Rosen with the winning run.

The second hit off Vandenberg in the second game, like the first, was by Galan and it was Augie's sixth homer of the season, a clean shot over the right field wall.

BIDDLE SEEKS TO AID WEST'S STEEL INDUSTRY

Hints Fight Against East's 'Monopoly'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 29—Future large scale steel production in western states depends primarily on orderly conversion and elimination of "monopolistic control" from the east, Atty. Gen. Biddle said today in his fourth report to congress on disposition of surplus government property.

Orderly conversion of the western steel industry, developed to meet the vast war needs of west coast ship building, would supply half the west's demand for tin plate containers, the report predicted. The inevitable drop in west coast ship production will result in a reconversion problem "unequaled in the country," but continuous steel making in the west is the soundest basis for future industrial expansion in that area.

Fifth Used in West

Biddle said a survey showed that 20 per cent of all United States tin plate consumption is in the west, altho before the war almost all of this market was supplied by the east. The post-war western tin plate market would be large enough to provide a basis for large-scale steel operations if certain requirements are met, the study showed.

The attorney general's report, required by the war mobilization and reconversion act, said that the most important of these requirements are:

1. Elimination of monopolistic control from the east, which includes a basing point system resulting in artificially high prices in the west.

2. Establishment of railway rates which bear a logical relationship to transportation costs on raw materials and semi-finished products within or into the region.

Doubled During War

Biddle reported that western basic steel production has more than doubled during the war, and that the 1,280,000 ton ingot capacity of the government plant at Geneva, Utah, and the 675,000 ton ingot capacity of the government financed Kaiser plant at Fontana, Cal., accounted for most of the increase.

Policies of the purchasers of the Geneva plant "may well be the determining factor in the future of the western steel industry," Biddle said, and complete cost studies should be made available to potential buyers. He warned that "control of western operation by eastern steel interests does not promise independent and competitive pricing."

Tracing the history of the American tin plate industry, the report said it is approximately 95 per cent controled by eight integrated steel producing companies and that "historically, tin plate prices have been determined principally by negotiation by the American Can company, the principal buyer, and the United States Steel corporation, the principal seller." Virtually all is used to make cans and other containers.

Expect Half Million Ton Need

The report estimated that of expected post-war western tin plate consumption of 500,000 tons annually, western mills should be able to sell approximately half the total. Competition would come from eastern plants with all-water access to the west coast, such as those at Sparrows Point, Md., and Birmingham, Ala.

The market and the basic facilities exist in the western states, the report said, and recommended that future owners of the newly developed western steel plants should have the opportunity to enter this market on a competitive basis.

BUYING BY MILLS PUSHES WHEAT FUTURES HIGHER

Grain futures prices were mostly higher yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade with the close near the top. Wheat was ⅝ to 1⅛ cents a bushel higher, rye ¾ to 1¼, corn ⅜ to ⅝, and oats ⅜ to ⅝. Barley was unchanged to ¾ cent lower.

Mill buying of wheat was large for the fifth consecutive day, reflecting flour sales to the government and increased domestic trade. A forecast of wet weather in the southwest increased the uneasiness of shorts because harvesting of winter wheat is already later than normal.

Trading in July and September corn was light at ceiling prices, but later deliveries were firm on small country offerings and a belief that a private estimate to be issued next Tuesday will indicate a much smaller crop than the 3 billion 228 million bushels harvested last year.

Illinois Jobs, Pay Fall 5th Month in Row

In the fifth consecutive month of declines, employment and pay rolls in Illinois industries dipped 2.2 and 3.8 per cent between April 15 and May 15, Robert L. Gordon, state director of labor, reported yesterday. In the five months ended May 15 the declines were 6 and 7 per cent respectively.

The Chicago metropolitan area followed the state trend for April-May, reporting a drop of 2.4 per cent in employment and 3.9 per cent in wage disbursements.

The reporting group on which the figures are based includes 6,436 companies employing approximately 35 per cent of all workers in nonagricultural establishments in the state except construction.

Reflect War Economy Cutback

In the state as a whole employment and pay rolls in manufacturing industries declined 2.6 and 4.6, and in nonmanufacturing industries only 0.9 and 0.3 per cent. The decreases in manufacture—including ships, aircraft, agricultural implements, machine tools, chemicals, and explosives—"reflect for the most part a continuation of the cutting back of the war economy," said Gordon.

The dip in the nonmanufacturing industries was attributed largely to a "particularly sharp decrease" in the number of employes in mail order houses.

Chicago metropolitan area employment and pay rolls were off 2.8 and 4.7 per cent in manufacturing, and 1.1 and 0.7 per cent in nonmanufacturing establishments. Reasons for the declines were similar to those for the state-wide declines.

Declines in 16 of 25 Areas

Decreases in both jobs and pay rolls were indicated for 16 of the 25 downstate city areas for which separate tabulations were made. Increases in both were indicated only for La Salle-Peru-Oglesby, Ottawa, and Streator. Mixed trends were shown for Belleville, Bloomington-Normal, Danville, Quincy, Rock Island, and Springfield.

Gordon also announced that permits issued for building projects in 191 reporting Illinois cities during May totaled 2,383 and had an estimated valuation of $4,958,686, a decrease of 4 per cent in number and 11 per cent in valuation from April.

MARSHALL FIELD BUYS STOCK IN INSURANCE FIRM

Part of the 45 per cent interest recently acquired in the capital stock of North American Accident Insurance company, Chicago, by John Nuveen & Co., investment banker, has been resold to Marshall Field and others. The remainder of the block of 33,750 shares of $10 par value will be retained as an investment, officials of Nuveen & Co. said yesterday.

The shares were purchased by the banking firm from the Northern Trust company as trustee for the estate of E. C. Waller, former president of North American Accident. L. L. J. Howe of the Nuveen organization has been elected a director of the insurance company.

The company is planning to enter the life insurance field. Organized in 1886, it now has a premium income of approximately 6 million dollars annually. Admitted assets as of Dec. 31, 1944, were $5,141,902. It has 75,000 shares of stock outstanding.

WPB LIFTS CURB ON STATIONERY, IRON BATH TUBS

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—The WPB today relaxed controls on cast iron bathtubs and stationery.

Stationery may be made in any sizes, styles, weights, and packaging, and may have mechanical closures in addition to adhesive flaps.

Removal of production and distribution controls over cast iron bathtubs, however, may not mean anything to the ordinary citizen because WPB assigned AA-3 rating to distributors who need tubs to fill military orders and for housing and other orders carrying priorities.

INDIVIDUAL, BUSINESS LIQUID ASSETS REACH 194 BILLION DOLLARS

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Liquid assets of individuals and businesses rose from 66 to 194 billion dollars from Dec. 31, 1939, to Dec. 31, 1944, the federal reserve board said today. The increase is continuing at the rate of approximately 50 billion a year. At that rate liquid assets are now approximately 219 billion and will be 270 billion a year from now. In "liquid assets" the board includes cash, bank deposits, and United States government securities.

46,000 Detroit Strikers Start Return to Jobs

Detroit, Mich., June 29 (AP)—An estimated 46,000 Detroit war plant employes started to return to their jobs today after settlement of a union jurisdictional dispute over reconversion jobs.

Eight plants were affected during the two week fight between the AFL Building Trades and the CIO United Automobile Workers' Maintenance council, but union spokesmen predicted normal production almost at once.

The truce announced jointly by AFL and CIO representatives set up procedure for settling differences. The AFL withdrew an ultimatum that members refuse to construct any building unless they perform all the work, and the CIO rescinded one to prohibit hiring AFL tradesmen until all CIO maintenance men were at work.

Remaining on strike in a separate dispute were 1,100 employes of Motor Products corporation.

Threat at Western Electric

New York, June 29 (AP)—A strike of 30,000 Western Electric company employes in 13 New Jersey and three New York plants was threatened yesterday after members of the Independent Employes' association voted in favor of a walkout at a national labor relations board election. George Duval, union president, said a meeting would be held July 6 to choose the date of the strike for wage increases. War electronics and communications equipment are made in the plants.

In another major eastern dispute, 8,500 remained idle at four Mack Manufacturing company plants as a result of a dispute over seniority rights.

Glass Workers Return

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Fifteen thousand CIO Glass Workers were going back on the job at 10 plants of the Pittsburgh Plate and Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass companies today, awaiting a hearing on their wage dispute July 10-11 by the war labor board. Strikes began June 21. Among the Libbey plants affected is one at Ottawa, Ill.

Block Blueprint Paper

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29 (AP)—A walkout at the W. C. Hamilton & Sons Riverside Paper Mills near suburban Conshohocken halted production of blueprint paper for the army and navy. Employes said a foreman broke a promise to give light duties to a man recuperating from an injury.

Thrifty Citizen Becomes Big Man in Stocks

Thrifty citizens with moderate amounts of savings have become important customers of La Salle street securities houses. To a substantial extent they have taken the place of the "big names" that in former years received the favored attention of the investment firm partners in board rooms.

Senior partners of several of the financial district's leading firms said yesterday it was the ordinary citizens who had made the profits in the long advance in the stock market.

Feverish Activity Lacking

Board rooms lack the feverish activity of the period in the late 1920s, but in recent months have been well filled with customers checking on their purchases, particularly during lunch hours. Included among them is a fair proportion of women.

A number of reasons were given for the absence of the old time market operators and the rise of the modest purchasers. For one, the restrictions imposed by the government on trading plus heavy taxation have kept the big traders out of the market.

The high level of earnings in recent years has made it possible for many persons to accumulate savings with little on which to spend them. It is this group that has been buying securities and putting them away. The larger part of trading in recent years probably was in stocks selling under $20 a share.

Large Profits Possible

The amount of profits made by purchasers of some of the once low priced common stocks may be measured by the market action of the following group:

	Depression low	1944 high	Yesterday's close
Armour	2¼	6⅛	9¼
Bendix Aviation	4½	49⅝	50⅜
Borg-Warner	*1⅝	41⅞	41

*Adjusted for stock split.

The brokerage house partners said their advice to customers was to get all possible information on the companies whose stock they proposed to buy, particularly as to management, pre-war earnings record, and post-war possibilities.

"Obviously it is impossible to foresee the future, but intelligent weighing of the possibilities by the purchaser gives him a much better chance of making profits over the long period than the purchaser who merely watches price," one partner said.

UNION DEMANDS MORE RULE OF WARD COMPANY

New York, June 29 (AP)—Irving Abramson, chairman of the Montgomery Ward organizing committee of the CIO United Retail and Wholesale Department Store Employes of America, said today he had demanded that the government either seize the entire Montgomery Ward & Co. or apply sanctions against all its properties not seized by the army.

The demand was made in a letter to Stabilization Director Davis. It said Ward had not complied with a union request that provisions of a war labor board directive be incorporated in an agreement with the union affecting stores in Trenton, N. J., Barre, Vt., and Kansas City, Mo.

Sanctions which Abramson suggested the government apply included withdrawal of postoffice privileges at Ward stores, withdrawal of priorities, elimination of lend-lease contracts, denial of draft deferments, no man power referrals.

Pressed Steel Car Ends Medium Tank Production

Production of medium tanks at Pressed Steel Car company's Chicago plant will end today, the company said yesterday. Approximately 3,100 workers were released since the termination announcement earlier this month. Workers needed to make self-propelled artillery carriages are being retained.

STOCKS LOWER AGAIN ON PLANS TO CURB TRADE

Turnover Exceeds 2 Million Shares

New York, June 29 (AP)—The stock market declined again today. Selling was heavy in the forenoon when declines of three or more points were widespread among rails, steels, motors, and pivotal industrials, but dwindled after midday and timid bidding appeared. While the ticker tape loafed, extreme losses were reduced. Transfers were 2,020,000 shares, compared with yesterday's five year peak of 2,940,000.

Customers were a bit more courageous on the belief liquidation may have been overdone in the preceding session. Selling persisted on the news Washington was preparing to crack down on speculation. Earnings, dividends, recapitalizations and splitups aided some issues.

Stock Average Lower

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.6 at 66 and lost virtually all its advance of the last two weeks. Of 966 issues traded 624 were down, 170 up, and 172 unchanged.

American Distilling again advanced. In the morning it added 4⅛ to its 5 point advance of yesterday, but it backed into a 2 point loss at the start of the last hour on large blocks, then ended with a net gain of 1. Dealings were suspended at intervals in this stock because of no offerings. Little in the news accounted for the price changes of this issue except that negotiations had been under way for the sale of one of the company's properties at a profitable price. The securities and exchange commission is studying the matter.

RAIL BONDS EXTEND DECLINE

New York, June 29 (AP)—Railroad bonds declined again today and many issues lost more than a point. Sales totaled $8,770,000, compared with $9,500,000 yesterday.

The Associated Press rail average declined 0.1. Among issues declining were Central of Georgia, Frisco, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, and Lehigh Valley liens. Advancing were M-K-T adjustment 5s, Morris and Essex 3½s, and Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron 6s.

Industrials were unchanged on the average. Atlantic Refining 3s of 1953, Armour & Co. 3¼s, Bethlehem Steel 3¼s, and P. Lorillard company 3s were among those rising. Celanese 3½s and Standard Oil [N. J.] 2¾s were fractionally lower.

CHICAGO LIST SLIDES

Prices dipped again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange, but turnover decreased to 41,000 shares. Seventy-seven issues of 120 traded declined, and only 14 advanced. Active issues included Admiral corporation, up ¼; Chicago corporation common, unchanged; Middle West corporation, down ¼; Radio corporation, down ⅝, and New York Central, down ⅝. Other prominent declines were Chrysler, down 5; Montgomery Ward, down 3; General Motors, off 2⅛, and Borg-Warner and Quaker Oats, each down 2.

SUPPLY OF HOGS RISES TO 9,500; SELL AT LIMITS

The Chicago stock yards yesterday received 9,500 hogs, including shipments direct to packers, compared with 8,627 a week earlier, but the total for the country again was lower. The 20 largest markets handled 42,000 head, 5,000 less than a week ago and 41,000 fewer than a year ago. Almost all sold at ceiling prices.

Farmers shipped in 2,000 cattle, the largest Friday total since April 27. This lifted the five day total to 45,900, second largest since March. Prices were steady and the $18 ceiling was paid for steers.

Lambs, prices of which have changed little for several days, again sold steady. Top loads of new crop natives brought $16.35. Best old ewes sold for slaughter at $8.

Ford's Surplus Is 685 Million; Mercury, Lincoln Displayed

Files Balance Sheet

Boston, Mass., June 29 [Special]—Ford Motor company reported a surplus of $685,034,092 as of Dec. 31, 1944, compared with $669,102,290 a year earlier, in its balance sheet submitted today to the Massachusetts department of corporations and taxation.

The statement said the company had no contingent liabilities that were not reported, that none of its assets was pledged, but that the company did have investments in affiliated companies.

Real Estate Values Dip

The report showed an estimated decline in the value of its real estate from $127,377,625 to $116,493,498, and in machinery and equipment valuation from $229,720,863 to $178,202,590. Merchandise and supplies likewise showed a drop from $147,945,952 to $89,665,660. Accounts payable decreased nearly 20 million from $258,226,501 to $238,910,466.

Cash, notes, accounts receivable, securities, patent rights, trade marks and other assets were estimated to have increased in value from $503,923,673 to $629,638,662.

Look Heavier, Wider

Detroit, Mich., June 29 (AP)—Two more 1946 model passenger automobiles were presented today at a showing by Ford Motor company of hand assemblies of its Mercury and Lincoln cars.

The company, which earlier announced details of its Ford model, showed all three to a delegation of governors to whom it was host at a luncheon. It was the first public showing of 1946 models.

Mercury Grill Altered

Like the new Ford, the Mercury and Lincoln are given a heavier and broader appearance by changed front design. Principal exterior change in the 118 inch wheelbase Mercury is the grill which consists of die cast vertical louvres extending across the front. The instrument panels are wider with easier to read pointers.

Mechanical changes include trialloy bearings, crankcase ventilation, oil filter air cleaner, and oil cleaner as standard equipment. The eight cylinder engine is retained.

Change Lincoln Front

Similarly the Lincoln on which the company plans limited production of a four door sedan and a club coupe, has most exterior changes on the front. The grill is entirely new, bumpers are broader and wider and built-in fog lights are provided. An electrically operated hydraulic mechanism for opening and lowering windows will be standard. The power plant is a 120 horsepower, 12 cylinder engine.

The company said that the Mercury will go into production "about 30 to 90 days after the first Ford comes from the assembly lines." Production of the Lincoln, it said, was not expected to get under way for "several months."

Ask U. S. Stop Shifting Stand on Food Need

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—The house food committee called for all-out crop production tonight and recommended that government agencies be required to absorb the food they request farmers to produce.

In effect the committee urged the army, for example, not to request a certain quantity of vegetables, then cancel the request after the crop is in, thus leaving farmers with a price breaking surplus.

The recommendation was coupled with a request that the government announce its food goals—and prices—far enough in advance so that producers will not start production uncertain about the amount of money their crop will bring.

A Job for Anderson

The unanimous report came from the committee on the eve of the departure of its chairman, Rep. Clinton P. Anderson, who will become secretary of a broadened agriculture department tomorrow, faced with the job of acting on his own committee's recommendations.

Specific suggestions in tonight's report:

1. That food goals be determined by war requirements and kept on an increasing basis as long as the fighting lasts.

2. That government claimant agencies notify producers in advance what size crops they want—then be required to take everything demanded, thus cutting off surpluses.

Announce Price Plans Early

3. That price support programs be announced far enough in advance to let the farmer know what his market return will be before he starts his crop.

4. That the spring egg support price be raised to end an expanding black market, and that it be announced as soon as possible so poultrymen can plan their laying flocks early.

Asserting the hog goal for 1944 was reduced below that of 1943, even tho the coming demand for pork was apparent, the statement said, "The committee does not understand why war food goals are not directly determined by war food requirements."

VACATION WEAR SALES SUPPORT RETAIL VOLUME

New York, June 29 (AP)—With vacation apparel moving in seasonal peak quantities, retail sales were maintained at a high level this week, Dun & Bradstreet said today in a review of business.

Retail volume for the country as a whole was estimated at 13 to 17 per cent above a year ago. The gain in the middle west was put at 15 to 19 per cent.

MOVE TO BOOST BUSINESS CASH BY 5 BILLIONS

House Unit Rejects Personal Tax Cut

Washington, D. C., June 29 (AP)—Tax revision legislation to improve the cash position of business and industry by 5 billion dollars during reconversion was approved today by the house ways and means committee.

Rep. Knutson.

Efforts to broaden the legislation to cut individual tax burdens were defeated.

The measure raises the exemption under the excess profits tax from $10,000 to $25,000, but makes no other material change in ultimate tax obligations of corporations.

Would Lift Cash Position

The legislation is designed principally to make more cash available to business and industry to hasten reconversion, by speeding payment on 10 per cent rebates due under the 95 per cent excess profits levy and other payments.

Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, senior ways and means Republican, said: "This bill is the first ray of sunshine to come out of congress for small business in a long time. There is a general understanding that the legislation will have the right of way and will be passed before congress recesses."

The five provisions of the bill are:

1. Increase the excess profits tax specific exemption from $10,000 to $25,000, effective at the start of the tax year 1946.

Provide Early Tax Credit

2. Provide that the post-war credit of 10 per cent of the excess profits tax be taken currently with respect to tax liabilities of 1944 and subsequent years.

3. Advance to Jan. 1, 1946, the maturity date of outstanding excess profits tax post-war refund bonds.

4. Speed refunds resulting from carrybacks of net operating losses and of unused excess profits credits.

Move to Speed Refunds

5. Hasten refunds resulting from the recomputation of deductions for amortization of emergency facilities.

The committee wrote in two amendments by Rep. Carlson [R., Kas.]. One provided that reorganized railroads should be treated like old railroads in the carryback provisions of the tax law. The other provided that corporations working on a fiscal year instead of a calendar year basis should get credit for the increased excess profits exemption for the part of their fiscal year falling within the calendar year 1946.

TEXAS, PACIFIC ASKS BIDS ON NEW LOAN OF 39 MILLION DOLLARS

The Texas and Pacific railway yesterday requested bids on 39 million dollars of general and refunding mortgage bonds. Proceeds will be used to retire indebtedness of higher interest.

Pennsylvania Telephone corporation registered 5½ million dollars of 2⅞ per cent first mortgage bonds and 70,292 shares of $2.10 preferred. Offering price will be named in an amendment. Proceeds will be used to redeem $5,200,000 of 3¼ per cent bonds.

The SEC approved the proposal of Mountain States Power company of Oregon to issue and sell at competitive bidding 7½ million dollars of first mortgage bonds. Proceeds plus other funds will be used to redeem 7½ millions of 4¼ per cent first mortgage bonds.

RIVAL OF A. & P. GIVES EVIDENCE ON PRICE DROPS

Danville, Ill., June 29 (AP)—A competitor of A. & P. testified in the anti-trust trial against the food chain today that a change in its personnel resulted in a drop in prices in 1934. Ralph Burkhart, treasurer of First National Stores, was a government witness as the prosecution proceeded with evidence intended to show A. & P. engaged in price wars. He said First National met the lower A. & P. prices as fast as they were made known.

Under questioning by defense counsel, Burkhart said the first super-market in the Boston area was opened by an independent grocer and that lower prices had to be met. He said a decrease in the number of chain stores resulted from an increase in super-markets.

The New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company and 28 officers and subsidiaries have been on trial since April 16 on a criminal information alleging conspiracy to restrain trade.

RECEIVE FIRST LOT OF SWEDISH PULP SINCE WAR

New York, June 29 (AP)—The first shipment of pulp—2,000 tons from Sweden for rayon—to arrive from Europe since the outbreak of war reached New York this week as part of the cargo of the Sparreholm which brought a miscellaneous cargo including steel, it was disclosed today.

Swedish interests said they believed this was the beginning of a fairly consistent arrival of ships with pulp. The Swedish Cellulose association, which comprises nearly all pulp producers of that country, expected to send approximately 1 million tons of pulp to the United States in the next year.

39 S. LA SALLE BUILDING SOLD FOR $1,200,000

The 14 story 39 S. La Salle building was sold yesterday by Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, trustee, to the Sodak company for $1,200,000. A mortgage for $850,000 was negotiated with State Mutual Life Assurance company.

The newly formed Sodak company is headed by Sterling Morton, president and principal stockholder, who acquired his interest to make an investment in a downtown office building. Morton is vice president of Morton Salt company.

Fred Breitling and Leo J. Sheridan, president of L. J. Sheridan & Co., represented Sodak company, and the seller was represented by Robert White, head of Robert White & Co. The Sheridan company has been named management agent for the property, and has appointed Kenneth R. Jensen as resident manager and Robert White & Co. as consulting management agent.

Packer Gets $14,000 Fine for Exceeding Beef Quota

Federal Judge William J. Campbell yesterday assessed a $14,000 fine against the Wimp Packing company, 1127 W. 47th pl., on the charge it exceeded its slaughter quota by 6 million pounds of veal and beef.

Wickwire Steel Board Approves Merger Plan

New York, June 29 (AP)—Directors of Wickwire Spencer Steel company today accepted in principle the proposal of directors of Colorado Fuel and Iron corporation for a merger,
